BANKS CUT RATES IN CANADA, U.S.

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Dominion Bank announced today a reduction in its prime lending rate to 6¼ per cent from 6½.

A statement from the bank said the move "is intended to assist in stimulating loan demand in the expectation this will contribute to the creation of new employment opportunities."

There was no immediate reaction from other banks but a change in the prime rate by one bank is usually duplicated by others.

Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., one of the biggest United States banks, cut its prime lending rate to 5¾ per cent from six per cent today and other banks followed suit.

Kissinger in Peking

Delicate Task Begins

By JOHN BURNS
Special to the Times

PEKING — Though westerners have been visiting the seat of power in China ever since Marco Polo reached the court of the Mongols in 1275, few have been charged with the momentous responsibilities which faced Henry Kissinger when he alighted from his presidential jetliner in Peking this morning.

GUEST HOUSE

Kissinger and his 20-man party were driven through Peking in a fleet of curtained limousines to a luxurious state guest house normally reserved for heads of state. Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia stayed there earlier this month.

Members of the Kissinger party begin four days of talks in which they are to make concrete arrangements for the visit President Nixon himself is to make to China sometime before next May.

NIXON VISIT

It is an assignment fraught with difficulty for the talks will cover not only the key questions, such as a date and an agenda for the Nixon visit, but a web of subsidiary complications such as protocol, security and press coverage.

In the diplomatic community here, as in the world outside, there will be an acute hunger for information on the talks but the present indications are that there is very little chance of the hunger being requited, at least until Kissinger returns to Washington.

LITTLE SAID

Since the talks were announced two weeks ago both the Americans and the Chinese have retreated behind a shield of confidentiality, allowing only the barest of details to be known.

Correspondents here have been told that there will be no statements of any kind while the talks are in progress.

The date for the Nixon visit may prove to be the least of the problems, for the president has already said that he would prefer it to take place sooner rather than later, a sentiment with which the Chinese appear to agree.

A pre-Christmas visit appears sound for several reasons. It would allow the dust to settle after the debate on Chinese representation at the United Nations, which finds the United States pushing a two-China policy unacceptable to Peking.

Chief Dan Bags One-Ton Buffalo

'Salmon-Fishing' George Brings Down a Buffalo

The 73-year-old actor from Vancouver shot the animal while on a hunting trip as guest of big-game outfitter Frank Laviolette in the Grande Detrout Camp region near the Alberta border.

"I guess I'm the first Coast Salish that ever shot a buffalo," said Chief George, an Academy Award nominee last year for his role in the film Little Big Man.

"My people were salmon people although they hunted deer and moose. But it did have special significance for me. Being Indian, whether Coast Salish or Cheyenne, hunting has been an important part of my history and the buffalo was an important part of that past."

He arrived at the camp 40 miles west of here Sunday and spent the night in one of the tents on the bank of the Slave River.

The pilot of a spotter aircraft reported two buffalo Monday and the hunt began. That, however, was the only use of mechanical transport.

"This one was a real hunt," said Laviolette. "We did the whole thing on foot from the river and the old chief can walk better than I can."

Chief George wounded the buffalo with his .308-calibre rifle and it was only after three miles of following a blood-spattered trail that the coup de grace was administered.

"That was one hell of a shot," said the outfitter, describing the first shot. "He hit that bull from 200 yards while the animal was on the dead run away from us through the trees."

The chief said he was "glad to have the privilege" of the hunt.

"This was pretty important to me but it was my last hunt. This was hard. This was the right way to hunt."

The 20-square-foot hide will be used for a rug but the animal's meat was inedible because the buffalo had tuberculosis.

"It was too bad about the meat," Laviolette said. "I know it was important to the old man to use what he shot.

"I'm going to try and get him the hind quarter off another buffalo and send it down to him."

Money To Flow —Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal officials say the government intends to be generous and elastic in doling out $100 million for local community works projects designed to create jobs this winter.

The program is part of a $500 million acceleration of federal make-work and job-training plans announced by Finance Minister E. J. Benson in last week's mini-budget.

PLAN YOUR OWN

Officials are enthusiastic about the $100 million program for community works projects which are to grow from local initiatives. They liken it to last summer's $25 million Opportunities for Youth program in which young people dreamed up their own ideas and submitted projects for federal subsidy.

In this case, the initiative is being left to municipal governments to propose plans through their provincial authorities, and to public-spirited groups ranging from service clubs and community groups to propose their plans directly to the federal manpower department.

The over-all program breaks down this way:

—$160 million in loans for job-creating capital works projects to be undertaken quickly by the provinces and, through them, the municipalities.

—$113 million in mortgage lending by Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. for public housing, home-owner houses, student housing, sewage treatment plants, and housing project land assembly, originally earmarked for 1972 but now to be made before the end of 1971.

CREATE JOBS

—$100 million in grants for labor-intensive projects that will "create jobs without delay" for community improvements, half of the $100 million earmarked for municipal governments and half for voluntary community groups or private organizations.

—$90 million for federal public works, including $10 million for grants to exhibition authorities or similar bodies to build new multi-purpose exhibition buildings that might be used as community centres.

—$35 million in grants or tax relief for job training programs, including on-the-job training to be offered by employers preparing for expansion, with special emphasis given to unemployed young people.

A manpower official said applications for grants can be made to the department's regional offices in Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Community organizations and private groups should submit their requests for grants before Jan. 31, 1972, but they will be approved or rejected as rapidly as they are submitted before that.

TORIES ARRESTED AFTER PUNCH-UP

TORONTO (CP) — Three Progressive Conservative campaign workers in Dovercourt riding were arrested Tuesday following complaints that two New Democratic Party workers were beaten with stakes from election lawn posters.

Police, called by the NDP at a west-end Toronto neighborhood, said they found the two party workers injured and other NDP campaigners surrounding a van bearing posters supporting the Progressive Conservative candidate. Injured were Donald Muldoon and Gary Cristall, both 21.

Charged with assault causing bodily harm and possession of weapons dangerous to the public peace were Joseph Bellissimo, 34, and Vincenzo Orlando, 32, both of Toronto. Joseph Garisto, 38, of Toronto, was charged with common assault.

Canada-Russia Sign Accord

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Soviet Premier Kosygin and Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau today signed a joint scientific and cultural exchange agreement following a stinging attack by the Soviet leader on U.S. economic policies.

The two leaders put their signatures to the agreement which was negotiated over the last few years. The ceremony took place in the chamber of the standing committee on external affairs and national defence.

Kosygin earlier had confronted questioning from Canadian parliamentarians in the same room on international affairs. He caused a furore in the diplomatic community following a speech Tuesday which attacked the U.S. economy as war-oriented and disruptive of international trade.

NO COMMENT

The U.S. embassy declined to comment on the attack, but diplomatic sources said the text of his remarks was under close scrutiny in Washington.

At the signing, Trudeau, with an oversized red rose in his lapel, offered Kosygin a glass of champagne and toasted the signing of the pact.

"To many more," Kosygin replied.

The two sides issued a communique which said in part: "The Canadian government and the government of the USSR are of the view that co-operation in expanding their exchanges will promote the development of good relations and will broaden mutual understanding."

STABLE SYSTEM

Earlier, Kosygin called for international trade to be based on a "stable system of foreign exchange rates" and in a veiled but stinging attack on the United States denounced "economic miscalculations of others."

Kosygin discussed the U.S. 10 per cent import surtax and

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Prime Minister Lon Nol declared a state of emergency today and appointed a new government to rule by "ordinance" rather than by constitutional law. He said he no longer will "play the game of democracy and freedom" since it stands in the way of victory.

The prime minister, in a nationwide broadcast following a silent protest by Buddhists against Saturday's suspension of the national assembly, appealed for unity but coupled it with a veiled threat against dissenters.

"Recently, certain groups have launched acts aimed at creating confusion," he said. "There is a fifth column at work."

He said: "Should we vainly play the game of democracy and freedom which will lead us to complete defeat or should we curtail anarchic freedom in order to achieve victory? The government has made it's decision. We have selected the way that will bring us to victory."

IRA FLUSH-OUT ATTEMPT FOILED BY STUDENTS

BELFAST (Reuter) — Troops and police withdrew today from Queen's University in Belfast following a seven-hour seige to flush out an IRA official.

They moved away from the college just before daybreak after students refused to hand over Thomas MacGiolla, 45, political leader of the official wing of the Irish Republican Army.

The student barricades went up before midnight Tuesday night when detectives tried to arrest MacGiolla, who was addressing a meeting on the Common Market.

In other areas of Belfast, three explosions, within minutes of each other, damaged two shops and a government office near the British Army's headquarters at Lisburn on the outskirts of the city. One man was injured.

A policeman was shot in the leg at Dungannon, when he tried to stop the driver of a stolen car.

In London, government sources disclosed that British Army intelligence and Scotland Yard are investigating reports that West Germany, Belgian and American mercenaries are operating in Belfast.

A report from Belfast said bounties of up to $170 were being offered to hired assassins for every policeman or soldier killed in Ulster.

Brandt Wins Peace Prize

The 57-year-old head of the Bonn government receives about $88,000 from funds endowed by Alfred Nobel, the inventor of dynamite. The peace prize is awarded annually by the Norwegian parliament.

Danish socialists and fellow German Social Democrats had recommended Brandt for the prize, saying his efforts to improve his country's relations with East Europe were the most important initiative for relaxation of tension in the last decade.

Brandt signed non-aggression treaties this year with Poland and the Soviet Union. While the treaties have yet to be ratified, their signing improved the East-West climate and made possible a tentative four-power agreement on Berlin.

Environment Study For Pipeline Plan

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Governor Wendell Anderson has directed the Minnesota natural resources department to begin an environmental review of plans for a Canadian-based gas pipeline.

Under state law, Robert Herbst, commissioner of natural resources, has to review the plans and a company cannot use condemnation powers to obtain right-of-way until the plans are approved.

The 1,500-mile line will be built by Dome Petroleum Corp., of Calgary and will extend from western Saskatchewan to Green Springs, Ohio.

Plans for the line were submitted to the department of natural resources last Thursday.

In a letter to Herbst, Anderson said representatives of the Canadian firm "appear sensitive to the necessity of public review of their plans."

The company plans to begin construction early next year, with costs estimated at more than $200 million. Additional state permits will be needed where the line crosses public waters in Minnesota.

3 Plucked From Lonely Beach

A man and woman and a seven-year-old boy were rescued Tuesday from an isolated beach on Langara Island in the Queen Charlottes after being stranded for 11 days.

Edward Besner, Ellen Lorraine and her son, James, all of Masset, had gone to the island in the 26-foot trawler Vernon Bay.

They were ashore, unloading supplies, when the boat broke up on the rocks.

They were taken in by a man who lives in a cabin at Sialun Bay but were unable to send a radio message until Tuesday.

The boat is owned by Billy Bowman of Prince Rupert. Rescue Co-ordination Centre officials were told by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Masset, who investigated the incident, that Bowman had either loaned or chartered the boat to Besner.

Clearwater Gets Its Hospital

In a letter to the Thomson-Nicola regional hospital district Loffmark said initial construction will provide a diagnostic and treatment centre which will be expanded later to include kitchen facilities and hospital beds. Clearwater residents have fought for two years for a hospital.

Loffmark's letter states additional cost of the kitchen facilities and beds will be $200,000. He gave no estimate of total hospital costs.

Loffmark said his action followed discussions with Clearwater residents who were united in pushing for a hospital.

"What the Clearwater and district residents want and must have is a hospital which will provide facilities where a doctor can function effectively and bring good medical care to the residents of the valley. This is a reasonable request and it will be met," Loffmark said.

Canada Fares Best

ZURICH (AP) — Britain is leading the inflation stakes among the world's industrialized nations with a cost-of-living rise of 10.1 per cent during the 12 months ending in September, a Swiss bank survey says. Canada fared best at 2.9 per cent.

The Swiss Credit Bank figures put Holland after Britain with a rise of 7.6 per cent followed by Japan seven per cent, Switzerland 6.7 and West Germany 5.4.

Jobs Plan 'Generous'

Money To Flow —Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal officials say the government intends to be generous and elastic in doling out $100 million for local community works projects designed to create jobs this winter.

The program is part of a $500 million acceleration of federal make-work and job-training plans announced by Finance Minister E. J. Benson in last week's mini-budget.

PLAN YOUR OWN

Officials are enthusiastic about the $100 million program for community works projects which are to grow from local initiatives. They liken it to last summer's $25 million Opportunities for Youth program in which young people dreamed up their own ideas and submitted projects for federal subsidy.

In this case, the initiative is being left to municipal governments to propose plans through their provincial authorities, and to public-spirited groups ranging from service clubs and community groups to propose their plans directly to the federal manpower department.

The over-all program breaks down this way:

—$160 million in loans for job-creating capital works projects, to be undertaken quickly by the provinces and, through them, the municipalities.

—$113 million in mortgage lending by Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. for public housing, home-owner houses, student housing, sewage treatment plants, and housing project land assembly, originally earmarked for 1972 but now to be made before the end of 1971.

CREATE JOBS

—$100 million in grants for labor-intensive projects that will "create jobs without delay" for community improvements, half of the $100 million earmarked for municipal governments and half for voluntary, community groups or private organizations.

—$90 million for federal public works, including $10 million for grants to exhibition authorities or similar bodies to build new multi-purpose exhibition buildings that might be used as community centres.

—$35 million in grants or tax relief for job training programs, including on-the-job training to be offered by employers preparing for expansion, with special emphasis given to unemployed young people.

A manpower official said applications for grants can be made to the department's regional offices in Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Community organizations and private groups should submit their requests for grants before Jan. 31, 1972, but they will be approved or rejected as rapidly as they are submitted before that.

TORIES ARRESTED AFTER PUNCH-UP

TORONTO (CP) — Three Progressive Conservative campaign workers in Dovercourt riding were arrested Tuesday following complaints that two New Democratic Party workers were beaten with stakes from election lawn posters.

Police, called by the NDP at a west-end Toronto neighborhood, said they found the two party workers injured and other NDP campaigners surrounding a van bearing posters supporting the Progressive Conservative candidate. Injured were Donald Muidoon and Gary Cristall, both 21.

Charged with assault causing bodily harm and possession of weapons dangerous to the public peace were Joseph Bellissimo, 34, and Vincenzo Orlando, 32, both of Toronto. Joseph Garisto, 38, of Toronto, was charged with common assault.

MILITARY COLLEGES, CADETS TO EXPAND—MACDONALD

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Donald Macdonald said Tuesday he will try to build up cadet forces and military colleges in Canada — contrary to recommendations on government youth policy.

A government-appointed committee on youth recommended last summer that cadet military training be dropped. Michael Forrestall (PC—Dartmouth-Halifax East) asked for the minister's reaction.

"I can confirm statements that I made outside the House . . . that the recommendation of the committee on youth in this regard will not be accepted," Macdonald said.

"Quite the contrary — we will try to find all possible resources to further assist the cadet groups."

He added that "exactly the same answer" applied to a question about the future of military colleges.

Tougher Fire Regulations Urged by Death Probe

Tougher fire regulations and rigid enforcement of them by fire departments were recommended Tuesday by a coroner's jury investigating the death of a 92-year-old woman in a fire where the alarm system was inadequate.

The jury found that the woman, Mary Green, of 830 McClure, died accidentally in a fire that swept her lodging house home Sept. 24. The recommendations and findings will be sent to the attorney-General's department.

Mrs. Green died in the second-floor hallway of the 45-year-old building. Evidence was that she suffered asphyxiation and burns to 95 per cent of her body.

Victoria fire department Insp. Alexander Satchwell testified that department records showed the building's alarm system was "non-conforming."

The method of activating it, by a light switch, Satchwell said, "was not a proper, easily discernible system.

"I felt that the alarm system was inadequate for the residence and the stairwell contributed to the high conflagration rate of the dwelling."

He said records revealed that the fire alarm system had a history of malfunctioning.

The cause of the fire, the inspector said, was a heating pad in the room rented by Frank O'Leary on the floor below that of Mrs. Green.

Economic, scientific and technical exchanges can be developed between Canada and the Soviet Union "with regard for the international division of labor and the position which both countries occupy correspondingly in world systems," Mr. Kosygin said.

SAYS TRADE MUST GROW

At the same time, both the Soviet Union and Canada, like any other nation engaged in international trade, are naturally concerned that this trade should be on a stable footing and that it should expand as the economies of the countries involved grow.

"This means of course that it must be based on a stable system of foreign exchange rates, on a system which does not compel some countries to pay for it by slowing down their economic development, by curtailing their commercial operations, by increasing unemployment on account of the edonomic miscalculations of others.

"This is all the more unacceptable when these miscalculations are not due to chance circumstances, but are in fact rendered ineyitable by the pursuit of policies creating focuses of tension and conflict in various parts of the world.

"Those who pursue such policies still maintain that an end to the arms race and limitation of military expenditure will create even greater difficulties for the economies of the Western countries.

"But to accept this argument is to accept the fatal inevitability of unceasing growth of military expenditure and arms production in the world and, hence, the constantly growing danger of war."

The times of colonial usurpations are past, he said, adding a tribute to what he called the heroic epic of the Vietnamese people and "the struggle for freedom and independence waged by patriots of other countries of Indochina."

He also commended the struggle of Arab peoples "for the liberation of Arab territories occupied by Israel."

For a change, no protest placards or shouting demonstrators were visible as Kosygin began his rounds today.

He was preceded, surrounded and followed by several dozen security personnel as he left his hotel, five minutes late, for a meeting in the Parliament Building with the Commons external affairs committee.

He was whisked from one place to another so fast that one woman bystander told a friend "he just got out of the car and all we saw was the bald spot on the back of his head."

Tuesday night the premier was hustled into the National Arts Centre through a subterranean entrance as RCMP decoyed yelling Maoists at the main entrance.

An expectant hush was followed by standing applause as Trudeau and Kosygin arrived.

All smiles, they clapped back from their first-balcony box near the stage, Mrs. Trudeau and the premier's daughter, Mrs. Lyudmilla Gvishiani, joined in.

Moments later, everyone stood silent for the Soviet and Canadian anthems — except a man near the stage who remained seated for the Soviet anthem, but stood for O Canada.

While the concert was in progress, plain-clothes security men ringed the hall, uniformed RCMP kept watch outside and faces could be seen peeping down from a ceiling catwalk.

terim period and with it the things that can go wrong.

An agenda may prove more difficult, for each side may try to include issues which the other finds unacceptable. For example it is doubtful that the Chinese will want to give hte appearance of negotiating with the Americans on Vietnam, an issue they have always said is for the Vietnamese to settle. For their part the Americans may balk at discussing their military presence in South Korea and Japan, which the Chinese want ended.

Security is a topic which gives rise to endless speculation on the Peking cocktail party circuit. On the face of it it should present few problems, since the kinds of people who present an ever-present threat in the west — demonstrators, would-be assassins and others — are simply not a problem in China.

But is this a point of view which will win ready acceptance with Robert Taylor, chief of the president's secret service detail and a member of the Kissinger party, who is notoriously hawkish about protection?

Taylor will not be alone in his dilemma. In the past much has been made of the importance of the president keeping in direct touch with the Pentagon while abroad — there is talk of a little black box, capable of transmitting the president's order to launch a nuclear strike — so observers here will be fascinated to see how Briggen Albert Redman, chief of the White house communications agency, handles the problem.

PUBLICITY?

And what of the press? Although Kissinger is coming without reporters it is inconceivable that the president would forego coverage at home. Kissinger may have been closer to the mark than he thought when he told a Washington press conference recently that the Chinese have never encountered anything like a presidential press party (upwards of 150 is common) so there may be some hard bargaining on the number of newsmen to be admitted.

And then there is the question of television. Chinese TV, for all its merits, is hardly equipped to meet the requirements of American-style coverage, live by satellite, in color, so there will likely be some tricky negotiation on the question of the U.S. networks establishing temporary transmitting facilities.

TACT NEEDED

All in all it is an assignment which demands all the tact and discretion the Americans can muster. So it seems safe to predict that they will be doing their utmost to deny the Chinese any new evidence to back the accusation made in one of the chairman's quotations, currently on display across the street from the great hall.

"United States imperialists," says the chairman, "are the kind of people who barge around the world subjecting others to "aggression, control, interference and bullying." It doesn't sound a bit like the quiet bespectacled professor who will be leading the most important American mission to China in a generation.

THE WEATHER

Snow fell in the central interior and in mountain passes. Two inches of snow remain on the ground at Mackenzie and reports from Allison Pass of the Hope-Princeton Highway indicate four inches of new snow there. A ridge of high pressure will build over western British Columbia today. Most areas will be cloudy but with some sunny periods. Late today a storm from the Gulf of Alaska will bring gales and rain to the Charlottes and the rain will spread southeastward through the province tonight and Thursday.

All 19¢ pens are no longer created equal.

Introducing

The Eagle

From Eagle/North-Rite. And with our reputation for quality products, there's no way we'd bring out an ordinary pen. Not even for 19¢.

If you've written with 19¢ pens before, good. Now try the Eagle. It's so smooth, it virtually glides on paper.

More good news: it writes up to 50% longer than its best-known 19¢ competitor. By test. And down to the last bit of ink, it won't skip or blob. We put our most expensive ink in the Eagle. It's non-goop and ultra-smooth flowing. Because we didn't skimp, the Eagle performs like an expensive pen — instantly. What's more, we hand-test every Eagle pen to make sure its performance is perfect.

Most 19¢ pens look simply like sticks that write. We wouldn't settle for that kind of styling.

The Eagle has a solid-fitting cap with a secure lock-grip. There's a textured comfort grip to help you write your best, plus a dependable clip that holds the Eagle securely in your pocket.

There are 4 new Eagle pens. Try your hand at them all.

Welfare Cost Change Proposed by Barrett

VANCOUVER (CP) — A New Democratic Party government would remove welfare and education costs from municipal taxpayers, provincial party leader Dave Barrett said Tuesday.

Barrett told a service club luncheon it is "completely wrong" to burden municipalities with any percentage of welfare costs. He said municipal participation "balkanizes" welfare and increases welfare costs by duplication of services by municipal and provincial governments.

He said school taxes on property are unfair to retired people and others on minimal incomes. He suggested meeting education costs out of income tax proceeds because "it is at the peak of income earned that people have kids in school anyway."

Barrett also proposed federal aid to re-establish a Canadian merchant marine, with laws to ensure resources shipped from this country be transported in Canadian ships manned by Canadian crews.

He urged tougher bargaining with foreign interests that obtain rights to B.C. mineral resources to ensure adequate royalties are obtained in place of existing "giveaways."

Barrett also criticized Canadians for their lack of interest in politics.

"People say we must avoid talking about politics and religion because we don't want to upset anybody. Frankly, there aren't two more important subjects. Let me tell you, politics is too important to be left to the politicians."

Accused Hijacker In U.S.

SEATTLE (AP) — An ex-convict accused of hijacking a jetliner outside Anchorage, Alaska, was to be returned to Anchorage today to face charges of air piracy, federal officers said.

Del Lavon Thomas, 28, was turned over to U.S. authorities Tuesday by Canadian immigration officials. He was given a preliminary hearing in Bellingham, Wash., where U.S. magistrate Richard Malle set bail at $150,000, then taken to Seattle.

Thomas, a native of Hawthorne, Calif., and former resident of Kodiak, Alaska, was charged with the hijacking to Vancouver of a Wien Consolidated Airlines jet en route to Bethel, Alaska.

Danish Take First Step Retaliating Against U.S.

PARIS (UPI) — Financial officials of the world's industrial nations ended a three-day meeting today following appearance of the first protectionist barriers in Europe that could lead to an international trade war.

Monetary authorities for the non-Communist world's 10 richest nations said they had considered various revaluation rates of major currencies against the dollar at the closed meeting.

But they left any final decision on forming a new money system to a meeting of their finance ministers scheduled for the second half of November, a spokesman told a new conference.

Announcement by a newly elected Danish government of a 10 per cent surcharge on imported goods, similar to that erected by the United States on Aug. 15, came on the heels of an appeal by French aircraft authorities for France's European partners to join in putting up a 15 per cent customs barrier against American aircraft exports.

In Luxembourg, foreign ministers for the Common Market nations called for European unity in rejecting U.S. Treasury Secretary John B. Connally's hint that the United States might consider lifting the 10 per cent surcharge for West German products.

No Action On Civil Servants

The provincial government has not taken any action on whether to include B.C. civil servants for unemployment insurance coverage, Labor Minister James Chabot said today.

The province has until the end of the year to decide whether to include the civil servants. The B.C. Government Employees Union decided last week it would take a strike vote if necessary to ensure coverage.

A resolution passed at the BCGEU convention last week stated a strike vote would be taken if the province decides to opt out of the federal scheme.

Under existing legislation which will be changed in January, the government has provided coverage for 6,000 part-time civil servants but excluded the remaining 14,000 to 16,000 employees.

MP Says Discussion With Kosygin 'Frank'

OTTAWA (CP) — A majority of Russia's 2.1 million Jews are better educated and have better jobs than other ethnic minorities there, Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin told the Commons external affairs committee today.

"Trouble-makers" are responsible for the uproar about the treatment of Soviet Jews, he said.

"There are a handful who go around shouting about the problems instead of doing an honest day's work," Mr. Kosygin was quoted as saying. "We'll gladly send them to you if you have a shortage on your streets."

The summary of Mr. Kosygin's remarks came after the closed meeting from Grant Deachman (L—Vancouver Quadra), who described the meeting as "pretty good."

"I don't suppose the external affairs committee in its history has had a chance for a frank discussion with a man of his weight."

WELL-INFORMED

The question-and-answer session had found Mr. Kosygin well briefed on the Jewish and Ukrainian issues. The premier also discussed his views of the Pakistan and Middle East situations in some detail.

When asked about co-operation between Russia and Canada on offshore resource research, he replied: "Do you want us to send you instructors or students?"

The diplomatic reply apparently was appreciated by the roomful of Canadian politicians in Parliament Hill's Centre Block.

When MPs asked Mr. Kosygin about problems with Jews and Ukrainians, he said such problems exist around the world. He mentioned blacks in the United States and the Irish in the United Kingdom.

Asked about emigration of Jews, Mr. Kosygin tied his reply to Soviet policy on Israel. His government felt Israel was in the wrong in the Middle East and wanted it to return territory taken from Arab countries.

In the meantime, Russia wasn't anxious to let draft-age Jews emigrate to Israel.

Mr. Kosygin said many Jews and Ukrainians are highly placed in the Soviet Union. He numbered among his friends a top deputy who was Jewish and several important generals, he told the audience. He also introduced several high-ranking Ukrainians who are travelling with him during his Canadian visit.

BOTH KGB, RCMP ARE TICKED OFF

OTTAWA (CP) — Soviet KGB security agents as well as the RCMP have been ticked off for permitting the manhandling of Premier Alexei Kosygin by a lone assailant here Monday, informed sources said today.

Prime Minister Trudeau made known his dissatisfaction with the RCMP while Soviet authorities have dealt severely with the KGB, the sources said.

Two Russian security men were following Mr. Kosygin Monday when the premier was attacked from the rear by a man who clutched the ilor around the throat.

Informants said one reason the Soviet Union did not formally protest the incident was that it considered its own security at fault as well as Canada's.

In any case, they added, Mr. Kosygin is fully aware of Mr. Trudeau's chagrin over the incident and is apparently satisfied with the tightened security since.

Rites Held For Former Trustee

Funeral services were held this afternoon for Norman W. Patterson, 70, former school trustee and Esquimalt police commissioner and retired assistant superintendent of HMC Drydock.

Patterson, 660 Grenville, was a carpenter's assistant for a contractor building the dock in 1927 and transferred to the civil service when the job was completed.

He started as a machinist's helper, then went to crane operator, pumphouse operator and finally was assistant superintendent from 1953 until his retirement in 1963.

Patterson served as police commissioner from 1951 to 1954, and was elected for a term in the same period to the Esquimalt district school board.

He is survived by his wife Sadie, sons Malcolm of Port Coquitlam and Gary of Maple Ridge, daughter Lorraine Lanthier of Victoria, brother Willard of Yellow Point, sisters Althea Stewart and Evelyn Whittaker of Victoria and Jean Arnold of Vancouver, four granddaughters and three grandsons.

THESE CATS FACING A MAN-VOTED LEASH

SHAKOPEE, Minn. (AP) — Shakopee citizens have voted 657 to 419 to enact a leash law for cats.

Tuesday's vote to chain cats as well as dogs followed complaints that roaming felines had been raiding garbage cans, nabbing songbirds and occasionally mistaking children's sandboxes for litter boxes.

The city had passed a cat leash ordinance previously but a rash of petitions blocked it and forced the referendum during the regular city election in this community of 7,000 just south of Minneapolis.

B.C. Could Run Better Program Of Job-Training, Says Chabot

British Columbia could run a more effective job-training program than Canada Manpower, because a provincial program would concentrate on on-the-job training, Labor Minister James Chabot said today.

Chabot said Manpower training programs teach proper skills but would be more successful under working conditions. The minister said B.C. pays more money to Ottawa for manpower training than the agency spends here, and he also criticized Manpower for being too bureaucratic.

B.C. has no plans to institute its own job training program, Chabot said, for this would be very costly. He emphasized the value of on-the-job training by saying that similar programs in the United States spent 76.8 per cent of their funds for this purpose.

He said the United Kingdom also concentrates on training at work. He quoted a report of the Economic Council of Canada which stated that manpower spent only 3.9 per cent of its funds on industry training programs and the rest on institutional training such as vocational schools.

"The question is whether we can continue to rely on the federal government to solve the dilemma facing our labor force or do we have to get more actively involved on a provincial basis."

Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi proposed a federal-provincial on-the-job training plan this spring but had to abandon it when Ottawa said it could not co-operate.

The Accounting

Warnings against the destruction of our planet through introduction of too many injurious substances and a too rapid consumption of vital ingredients, such as oxygen or pure water, tend to dull public concern through repetition. Almost every day one spokesman or another reports the discovery of some new hazard to human, animal or plant life, or a new danger to the soil, air and water which make the world a habitable place. The tragedy is that these warnings may eventually fall on deaf ears and that despite the efforts of a few, the planet which we know will become a prison of hunger, disease and slow death from which there is no escape.

That may sound like sheer pessimism, but it has a factual background. Any day's issue of the paper is likely to carry news items about efforts to improve or save our environment; and equally prominent will be reports of official or private action — or lack of action—which is in direct contradiction of the warnings we hear.

We deplore, for instance, news that somewhere on the continent some community has allowed a pure lake to become polluted so that it is unusable by humans and unable to support normal life. Yet at the same time we are confronted by warnings that exactly the same process could take place here — at Thetis Lake — unless steps are taken now to prevent future dangers. And voices can still be found to argue that nothing need be done, or that the expense is too much, or that someone else can worry about it some other time.

A new generation is growing up in which natural deterioration is a part of normal life. There are cities in which tap water can be made to froth because it contains detergents. There are thousands of young people who have never drunk pure spring water but only recycled supplies. There are thousands of people who do not know the taste of natural foods — fresh-picked berries, home-made bread, cream skimmed from a milk pan, meat that has not been frozen, dyed, moisturized and processed.

The adaptability of the human organism to an increasingly manufactured environment, as opposed to a natural one, will determine the future of the race. It will be up to medical science to keep up with the deterioration which artificiality can engender.

Some of the problems of a viable environment were sketched by Mr. Robert Shaw, the deputy minister of environment, in an address to the Canadian Institute of Forestry here this week. He said that industrial design must be accompanied by environmental design if we are successfully to combat a rapid deterioration of the environment. Much of what we do in industrial development is inevitably accompanied by adverse effects on the world in which we live. We must "measure cost against benefit," says Mr. Shaw, if we are not to lose out.

Hydro power is one of the essentials of the modern world, yet its production can result in harmful effects quite unrelated to its uses. The giant dam that produces thousands of kilowatts can ruin an estuary a thousand miles away, wipe out a fish run, lower a water table, change the ecology of thousands of miles of terrain. The benefits of ready power become quickly evident; the environmental costs may take longer to make themselves known. But they are inevitable, as many a vast power scheme has proved.

Mr. Shaw mentioned the alarming changes that had taken place in Egypt's Nile economy as a result of the Aswan Dam, which ended some coastal fishing, changed land fertility and brought other calamities in its train. The Peace River Dam in B.C. is having similar, but so far not so pronounced, effects on the Peace-Athabasca delta and its wildlife. A dam on the Fraser River could have tragic consequences in return for a great hydro power output.

Benefits versus cost. We must decide today, and on many days ahead, if we are to keep our planet habitable. Log the mountainside, or vacation on it? Dam the river or fish it? Grow houses or vegetables in the fertile valley? Exploit a valuable resource or preserve the air and water that would be consumed? Without such foresight and wise balancing of benefit and cost, "mankind will decline," says Mr. Shaw, "as other species have declined."

We can agree or we can disagree. But we cannot ignore it.

Taking the Pay Out of Crime

In a financial sense at least, criminologists have frequently questioned the old adage that "crime does not pay." For a large number of criminals, it obviously does in dollars and cents.

Recognition of that fact lends strength to the proposal of Britian's Home Secretary, Reginald Maudling, that government action be taken to make all criminals bankrupt so their possessions can be divided among their victims and the criminals denied the fruits of their crimes.

In theory, the plan sounds excellent. Admittedly, many claimant victims will argue that they failed to receive a fair share of the divided proceeds. But in bankruptcies half a loaf, or even less, has proved more acceptable than no bread at all. There still remain the problems of catching the crooks and finding the loot — and perhaps new incentives for police to have "their man in Switzerland."

A Power Plant at Hat Creek?

In the misty eons before history, trees grew tall and lush in the tropical country man finally called British Columbia. The forests rose, and, their cycle completed, fell on the marshy ground, piling trunks on trunks over the centuries. Water running from higher ground flowed over them, depositing silt. The downed trees were compressed, denied air by the water over them and, in the long processes of nature became coal as the crust of the earth shifted, creating immense pressure.

In the area now called Hat Creek, the transformation was relatively recent in the unrecorded millenia of the earth, creating a "young" field of lignite, a low grade coal.

Commercially its value is limited. Lacking coking qualities, it is useless for steel production. Its other uses are restricted. But it could be exploited for some coal-based synthetics and, in the opinion of those qualified to judge, it would be excellent fuel for thermally produced electric power.

Automatic Advantage

The Hat Creek deposits have automatic advantages for that purpose. The seams run deep; they are concentrated in a relatively small area and contain, under a surface about a mile square, 340 million proven tons — perhaps as much again unproven. The overburden runs from 30 to 100 feet in the proven field, making strip mining phenomenally inexpensive. Estimates range from 54 cents to $1.05 a ton, delivered at an on-site plant that could be erected at Hat Creek, 15 miles west by north of Ashcroft.

This was the attraction which drew the attention and investment of the forward-looking British Columbia Electric. The private company foresaw the day when it could be squeezed for power sources and dependent on the goodwill of the provincial government to make additional hydro sites available. So the B.C. Electric bought the Hat Creek field to protect itself from potential prohibitive pricing by the government. Hat Creek was insurance. It was there, but it lay dormant. It still is and still does.

When Premier Bennett took over the B.C. Electric, through legislation in August 1961, and formal establishment of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority a year later, Hat Creek was among the assets passing to public control.

The surging growth in power consumption soon outpaced available production in the province. Premier Bennett, like other premiers before him, harbored his "northern vision" — abetted by the Prince George member and cabinet minister, Ray Williston. The vision crystallized in the Bennett Dam, Williston Lake, the construction of the power station and long transmission lines — at a cost many agree will keep power expensive to consumers for the foreseeable future. First power flowed south from it in 1968.

The government was approached before the commitment to the Bennett Dam by highly informed sources reminding it of the Hat Creek potential. Their argument might have appeared compelling on economic grounds. Studies indicated power could have been produced there for an estimated 3.5 mills per kilowatt hour, with transmission lines already erected a scant 15 miles away at Shalalth.

Adequate coal supplies existed, said the experts, to fuel an expanding thermal plant for from 50 to 100 years. And thermal plant construction possessed a particular advantage. It could be constructed in phases, as the demand for power increased, producing revenue when the first unit was installed and permitting additions while operations continued. It would not be necessary to build a highly expensive dam and long transmission lines.

One estimate placed the cost for a Hat Creek plant, in operation, at one-quarter that needed to finance the Peace River project. Furthermore, it would be closer to the main bulk of consumers in the southwest section of the province.

That, in brief, was the case presented to the government. It was less than compelling to the men who made the decisions, dazzled, perhaps, by the glitter of the yet-unfulfilled "vision of the north". The answer to the Hat Creek advocates was: "We're saving that for when we need it."

Pressure from some sources to build the Moran dam, from others to establish nuclear plants and, more recently, mysterious investigations in the far north, emphasize the story told a few weeks ago in Victoria by Dr. Gordon Shrum, chairman of B.C. Hydro.

His outline of changing patterns in electrical use underscored the need for more production.

Hat Creek lies idle. If British Columbia's present administration has been saving it for when it was needed, that need now seems immediate.

Problems

Creation of a thermal plant at Hat Creek poses certain problems. It would entail strip-mining. It would involve emissions from smoke stacks. Strip-mining can be followed by restoration of the terrain, though at Hat Creek it would leave a deep hole in the ground, a hole contained within a square mile perimeter, and eventually a potential lake.

Stack emissions do not cause concern to thermal plant proponents. The fly ash can be controlled, they say, with adequate precipitators, and, at all events, it is not toxic. The sulphur in the coal is relatively low — .6 of 1 per cent. It would, they say, produce a toxic sulphur dioxide output at a level considered acceptable and no worse than many emissions from operating thermal plants which have done little ecological harm to the surrounding country in this province.

Hat Creek is neither a park nor a park reserve. Its chief use now is for grazing land. No one suggests that mining and creating a thermal plant there will improve the beauty of the countryside. On the other hand, informed authorities on parks in British Columbia tolerate the proposal for a very simple reason.

Whatever form of power production is used, some change and some damage to the countryside are involved. The question to the parks-minded is simple: Which method would cause the least damage and be the most economical? Compared with alternative projects, Hat Creek gets their nod.

Nobody Admits to Pollution

EDMONTON — Though the attitude of the general public toward pollution has changed radically in recent years, the change in industry reaction has been very much slower. In Alberta the attitude of many industries when pollution is called to their attention is to blame somebody else. Latest example of this is the reaction of the Calgary Power Company to the Wabamun Lake weed problem.

Wabamun is one of a dozen sand beach lakes in the northern half of Alberta which is a popular vacation spot for Edmontonians, many of whom have cottages there. In recent years the shallow lake has become badly infested with water weeds. The growth has interfered with boating and cluttered the beaches with decaying vegetable matter.

This fall the residents have spent their time raking up the masses of weeds that float in with the high winds. The hope is that they will dry out sufficiently to burn. It appears to be a vain hope, for while the surface layers dry the interior of the piles remain a sopping, stinking mess.

Despite Weed Cutting

And this was supposed to be the year when the weed problem was going to be solved. A water-borne weed cutter patrolled the lake last summer, harvesting the weeds and loading them into a barge towed behind it. Hundreds of tons were gathered and destroyed. It did seem to help the east end of the lake but this fall the growth elsewhere has been unusually lush.

The main cause of all the trouble, the residents claim, is the power stations operated by Calgary Power. Two power stations use water from the lake for cooling their heat exchangers. The water is returned to the lake after being heated up in the process of cooling down the machinery. The residents claim that it is the steady addition of hot water to the lake which is intensifying the weed growth.

To this Calgary Power issues a blanket denial. At best, it says, the case is not proven against it. On the face of it, it does not seem reasonable that the water temperature in a lake a dozen square miles in extent could be raised by the heated water from the power plants. Anyway, substituting cooling towers for lake water would be too expensive, in the eyes of the company.

Blame Low Water

In addition, the company points out that there has been much heavier weed growth than usual in many other lakes. It attributes this to low lake levels generally in Alberta. So, regardless of the anger of the residents, nauseous beach pollution and mounting demands for government action, the company rejects any blame for what has happened.

This has been an almost unvarying pattern for industry behavior in Alberta. In the past, it has been an attitude that was at least tacitly encouraged by the Social Credit administration.

Pollution of the Bow River below Calgary by seeping waste oil from two refineries has for 30 years made the fish inedible for 40 miles below the plants. In Turner Valley, it was only after another refinery was hauled into court and fined $1,000 that contamination of a neighborhood stream was ended.

In southern Alberta, fumes from a natural gas processing plant forced several district farmers to abandon their homes. They got nowhere with complaints to either the government or the plant operators. Eventually they went to court and in a collective action 16 plaintiffs finally got a judgment for $700,000 in damages against the company.

In almost every area of Alberta where the gas processing plants are located complaints have been heard about air pollution. The government has set up monitoring devices on fence posts all over the country. But somehow the devices never seem to back up the claims of local farmers. It is seldom indeed that the processing plants will ever admit to causing air pollution.

Smell of Beeves

Nor is it only big industry which is culpable. There is a large beef-cattle feeding operation on the outskirts of Brooks, Alta., 100 miles southeast of Calgary. The odor from this plant can be detected half a mile away and when atmospheric conditions are right it blankets the town of Brooks.

Closer to Calgary, indeed on its eastern outskirts, the water in Chestermere Lake has been declared unsafe for either swimming or boating. Culpable here is not a nearby industry but the people who have ringed the lake with cottages and have allowed their sewage to pollute the water. But like the power companies and the gas plants and refineries, they too deny responsibility. And will undoubtedly go on doing so until costly damages are assessed against somebody.

Lifting the Parks Policy Curtain

LETTERS

Your article on the proposed subdivision development adjacent to Thetis Lake Park has thrown the curtain wide open on the reason for Victoria City Council's hesitancy to declare this area as perpetual parkland.

It would seem more and more to me that only to the almighty dollar does our council bow. Let's face it. An administration which always has patted on the amount of parkland being made available has shown its true face with this underhanded move.

With sea beaches all around our "fair city" badly polluted, our two nearest lakes, Elk and Beaver, are also of questionable cleanliness. These are hard pressed to fulfil the recreational need of this area each summer. It seems strange (or does it?) that our largest-by-far park, relatively unspoiled, is going to fall prey to the hands of big finance interests and, let's face it, eventual death.

Your article had pointed out the few organizations fighting for the dedication of Thetis as parkland in perpetuity, and I urge Victorians all over, to join in an outcry against this proposed development and in December, think carefully when it comes to voting.

These latest occurrences make me wonder whose welfare our council is really concerned with. Pollution and unrestricted development are not just things that happen in other cities, they are happening here, and if more is not done soon, it will be too late. — Concerned Alan W. Quin, 3104 Quadra St.

Look and See

Before making a decision on the controversial Reid development, may I suggest to the remaining aldermen of Victoria that they walk to the corner of Quadra Street and View Street, look up the whole height of that concrete monstrosity and then think.

Is this what the people of this lovely city want? Right smack on the waterfront in the Inner Harbor? Not one of them but two, and even higher.

And please take Mayor Haddock with you. — "Concerned Citizen."

Help in Emergency

We have returned home from a holiday to your fair city with mixed emotions. We loved the beautiful, scenic drive all the way from Kelsey Bay to Victoria. The natural beauty of the island is indescribable; the quaintness of Victoria we enjoyed. Our special thanks goes to the St. Joseph Hospital, and all their sweet patient nurses — especially those on 300.

We had a terrible accident, out toward Langford, and it seemed that immediately after our camper-truck was totalled out we had help. It came from passers-by, the Mounties, the courteous ambulance driver, whose uppermost thoughts were to make one as comfortable as possible, and the family of the man who towed our truck away, for taking such good care of our little dog for the duration of my stay in the hospital. Our special thanks go to Dr. John Cooper and Dr. Anderson. Last, but not least to Mrs. Smith, the very sweet social worker at the hospital. It is an inspiration to know you have such kind and dedicated people at the hospital.

We were 1,000 miles from home, knowing not a soul, but before many days had passed I felt I had known the hospital staff a long time. I felt I had friends. When I felt discouraged and ready to give up they sensed how I felt and always tried to cheer me up and make me feel life was good after all.

Both Mr. Tolman and I have a close feeling to Victoria and we do hope to return there someday. — Mrs. Orin H. Tolman, Sandy, Utah.

60 Years Ago

From the Times of Oct. 20, 1911:

SHANGHAI — The following message from Vice-Admiral Winsloe, the senior British naval officer at Hankow, sent by wireless from a British vessel off Hankow, was received this morning:

"All telegraph lines to Shanghai and Pekin are destroyed by fire last night for a distance of a mile beyond the settlement."

Another wireless message from Hankow at noon today and retransmitted over the land lines at Kiu Kiang, reaching there at four o'clock, says that the government troops retreated up Seventy Mile Creek, while Chinese warships withdrew down the river out of sight. The revolutionaries claim a great victory.

THE LIPPMANN VIEW—Part 2

Land of Inflated Hopes

Walter Lippmann, the noted political philosopher and journalist, discusses the quality of America's leaders and the present and future state of the nation in this interview, the second of two parts. The interviewer is author Ronald Steel, who is writing Lippmann's biography.

Q: You've lived through and written about many social crises in the U.S. Do you find the present situation unique?

A: It's much more severe because there are at least two things that have changed radically the nature of the crisis. One is the growth of population. The American political system never has experienced a time when it had to govern so many people, be governed by so many voters, govern for so many different purposes. The quantitative difference is a radical difference. Then there's the technological revolution which has changed the whole manner of life — where the argicultural community is no longer the mainstay of the nation. All problems get more severe if you multiply the number of people involved in them.

Q: Given the severity of these problems, compounded by racial animosity and the increasing anxiety of ethnic groups, do you think the effect is to corrode the democratic system in the U.S.?

A: Yes, it is. I've never known a time when people had so little confidence in the future. They're afraid, they're not sure they're equal to it, and there is a great deal of diffidence about the future. But I don't think that that is irremediable. I think even with all our size and complications and so on, if there comes a group of leaders and there well may and they can strike the right note, the country will respond.

They'll Use Violence

Q: But given the fact of really severe anxieties caused, among other things, by growing violence in the society and disrespect for social norms — not only law, but simply civility — do you see the danger of fascism in America?

A: There will be a danger. I don't think there will be fascism on a national scale — the country's too big for natural fascism. But I think there will be local fascism. In local communities, majorities or strong minorities will rise up if they think they're threatened. And they'll use violence ruthlessly.

Q: The rise of extremist groups stems from anxieties in the society, which is something we've experienced before in our history. For example, during the Scopes trial in Tennessee in the 1920s (in which the legality of teaching the theory of evolution was at issue) you criticized the inability of intellectuals to take seriously the anxieties of simpler people whose traditional values were being undermined. What do you think is the responsibility of intellectuals in dealing with these anxieties today?

A: I think that one of the main responsibilities of an intellectual who writes and speaks, is to be able to state the case or the grievance or the proposal or the will of more inarticulate people — more clearly than they are able to state it themselves. There's nothing so disarming in criticism as to state the case of your opponent better than he can state it himself, and that is one of the roles of the intellectual; to make articulate and verbal and conspicuous the things that he within people's minds, but that they are unable to put into words.

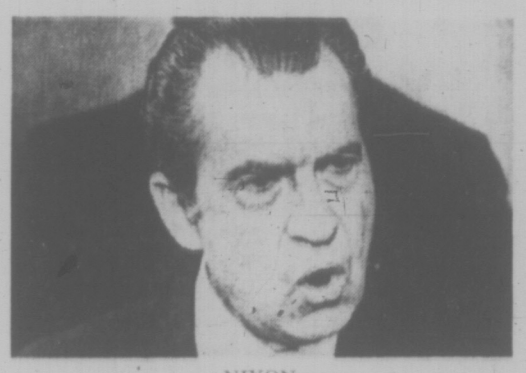
Q: Do you think that a certain amount of public sympathy to Spiro Agnew's attacks on the television stations and the press are related to these anxieties?

A: I do. I think the effective way to deal with Spiro Agnew is to state the evils he was objecting to — and there are some genuine ones there — at least as well as he does, and instead of attacking him, take the issues away from him.

Q: Do you feel there's justice in the criticism that the press and the television manage and distort the news, twist the information that the public is receiving?

A: I don't think the press starts out to distort and manage it in the sense that Agnew has implied it does. I think, however, that being partial and inadequate to the task, the press could state many of the things it does, many of the things Agnew's objecting to, better than Agnew himself, and therefore disarm him.

Q: Much of the optimism about American society — that it has been successful and able to achieve the goals



NIXON
. . . the Great Deflator?

it sets — this is under attack today. Is this something new in your experience?

A: Yes. That has come since the 1950s. I think the frustration is largely due to the basic fact that the country promised to do things in the postwar world that it never had the slightest chance of doing. We are a country that overreached itself and is out of breath.

Q: I know you feel we've overreached ourselves in foreign commitments, in being a kind of world policeman. Did you feel that the goals of the great society were overcommitments?

A: Yes. They were inflated. We lived from the beginning of the First World War until very recently in an atmosphere of terrific inflation, not merely of the monetary system but the inflation of our responsibilities. Our hopes and our promises were stretched out wide, and they had to be deflated. That is the role of Nixon in history, and it's the role that he's only just beginning to play. And he's beginning to succeed with that. We have to deflate in all directions. Nixon goes along saying he isn't deflating, but he is, and he's going to have to do it.

Majority Democratic

Q: You supported Nixon for election reluctantly, on the grounds that he could end the war. But you also said we may be moving into a time of repression and it's better that the Republicans carry out that repression than the Democrats. Do you still feel that way?

A: I don't know whether we'll move into an era of repression, but if there is going to be one, I'd rather have it done by the Republicans; because it would unite the majority of the country against them, and the majority is democratic.

Q: Do you think that the kind of repression the Republicans would carry out is dangerous?

A: I think it's not very dangerous because I don't think they'll do much repression. I think the great mass of Republicans are not very far away from the general view of the world held by the great mass of Democrats.

Q: How would you rate Nixon as president?

A: In 1968, when I decided that I had to be for Nixon, it was because I had come to the conclusion that we were at the end of a period of probably 40 years of inflation of foreign policy commitments; we had promised too much and committed ourselves to too much; there had to be a big deflation. And a man who wasn't popular couldn't lose much by doing such a deflation, which is always an unpopular thing to do. And I think on the whole he's proving to be a deflationist. He deflated his own anti-communist policy, which only he could do, and on the economic plane he is doing deflationary things which the Democrats couldn't have succeeded in doing considering the temper of the country. Deflation is necessary but unpleasant.

Q: Is your historical assessment of Nixon that he will go down as the Great Deflator?

A: If I had to write his biography now, I would call him the great deflator and examine how he got to the positions of deflation by roundabout methods, such as Vietnam and particularly his China policy — and always trying to do something else, but getting there because the necessity of events was behind him.

Q: Do you see any guiding principle behind Nixon's concepts of the presidency or his role as president?

A: His guiding principle, which I don't say in any disparaging way, is to be successful, to be re-elected; and that, in the worldly world, is not such a bad principle. After all, he isn't trying to be the savior of the world, he isn't trying to build Camelot, and he isn't trying to be a whole lot of other things. He is doing what has to be done, which is to his credit. Expediency is a good quality in a statesman. These high-principled men who rule the world and ruin it are men who won't be expedient, won't compromise. Woodrow Wilson was a little like that, you know. Franklin Roosevelt wasn't. He was just like Johnson and like Nixon.

Q: Talking about inflated rhetoric, the Kennedy administration came in with flying colors and now that whole era's beginning to look rather different. How do you feel about the significance of the Kennedy era and the policies that were followed during that time?

A: I didn't agree with almost anything that Dean Acheson said, but his recent estimate of Kennedy as a president I think is correct. Kennedy was out of his depth. The result is that we had that very dangerously inflated inaugural speech and then we had the Bay of Pigs and a lot of other things, and the mess he made during his meeting with Khrushchev at Vienna. Only in the last few months of his life did he begin to see things more or less in their true proportion.

Q: Did you feel that he was growing in his understanding?

A: Yes, I think that failure made an impression upon him; he responded to it, he grew. That was his greatest strength.

The Greatest Disaster

Q: What do you think accounts for the perpetuation of the Kennedy "myth," if you will, in spite of all the failures of his foreign policy?

A: Well, it represented a hope. People would like to see a new generation give a new turn to politics and they hoped he would. That's the mythology. Myths are easy to believe in now that he's dead.

Riot control drill . . . fascism likely at local level

Q: How do you think history will judge the Johnson administration?

A: I think it will probably say that it was involved in promoting the greatest disaster that happened to the U.S. since the civil war. It has divided and hurt the country more than anything in a hundred years. History will give due credit for having passed legislation that was much demanded by the people and was on the whole necessary. But his foreign policy has been a disaster.

Q: Two years ago you said you looked upon this era as a kind of minor Dark Age. Other people have seen us on the threshold of an exhilarating technological revolution. I wonder if you could expand on what you meant?

A: I think the word "minor" is very important in that statement. The Dark Ages lasted for centuries. I think it's a dark age in that the standards by which the world has lived in a civilized and free and, in a sense, democratic way, have been broken in our time, and that makes it a dark age from my point of view. By minor, I had in mind that we won't sink into squalor and destruction. What kind of civilization will come out of the technological revolution I don't pretend to foresee. I think it would be presumptuous and rather foolish to try to foresee it.

Q: You talked about living at a time when the old gods have been destroyed and no new ones have arisen to replace them.

A: That's been a kind of recurrent theme all my life.

Q: Do you see this current period simply as an intensification of that condition?

A: Well, for instance, in my book, "Preface to Morals," which I wrote in the '20s, I spoke about the dissolution of the ancestral order. Well, that is the same thing that I've been talking about all the time. It was already dissolving; and when the ancestral order dissolves, when no new one has arisen, you call that a dark age.

Q: There's a kind of minor religious revival going on at the moment. Do you see this as a desire to have something to hold on to?

A: Yes, certainly. I have a very strong belief in the toughness of the human will to survive. I think that's very powerful, and man's not the frail thing that ecologists sometime make you think he is. Men won't stand for it, they won't lie down, and that's what I'd count on. Not that somebody will invent a creed one day or a program to solve all these problems. When I say I believe in the will to survive, it isn't that I have the will to survive alone; but that I think, in the human beings that are born on this planet, that that will is born in them — in many of them — not all of them, but most of them.

A Frightening Assumption of Power

Police should not be judges; they should not be prosecutors. That is axiomatic to anyone with a feeling for justice. It is also axiomatic that those who control the police should not at the same time control the courts and the Crown attorneys.

The reason is simple: the functions clash. Police are there to hunt down lawbreakers; the courts and Crown attorneys are there to establish guilt or innocence. Since the bedrock of our entire system of justice is that the judgment be independent and impartial, it means there can be no favored position for the police in the courts or with the Crown attorneys.

If there were favoritism, however slight, there could be no impartiality; no justice.

In pursuit of this principle Parliament has insisted that no single minister should be responsible for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and for the courts and their officers. That is why we have a Solicitor-General and a Minister of Justice and Attorney-General.

The law sets out their functions. The Solicitor-General's powers "extend to and include all matters over which the Parliament of Canada has jurisdiction, not by law assigned to any other department, branch or agency of the government of Canada, relating to (a) reformatories, prisons and penitentiaries (b) parole and remissions; and (c) the Royal Canadian Mounted Police."

The Minister of Justice has the "the superintendence of all matters connected with the administration of justice in Canada . . ." which means he looks after all criminal cases, and the Attorney-General has "the regulation and conduct of all litigation for or against the Crown or any public department," which means he looks after all civil cases.

No overlapping; no confusion about roles; and a distinct and rigorously maintained division between police and courts.

Now Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer has come along to muddy the waters. Under attack for his efforts to establish a super secret service, which he calls his Security Research and Planning Group, he sought refuge in this explanation: the group's role in security would be like that of the Crown prosecutor in criminal cases.

GOYER

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

It was the prosecutor, not the police, who assessed evidence and decided whether to prosecute, he said. "Likewise the assessment of the seriousness of a security threat to the state should be made by the civil power in concert with police authorities."

It's a frightening statement. On the one hand Mr. Goyer is saying that this assessment of seriousness is a function radically different from that of the police. As deeply different as the functions of the police and the courts. Yet on the other hand he is saying he should control both.

* * *

He is trying to build around himself the apparatus of power, and it is obvious that the power he wants would be built largely at the expense of the Minister of Justice. It's no little coincidence that, after weeks of telling us what the super secret service would not be, Mr. Goyer has chosen Crown prosecutors as his first example of the kind of officials they would be.

Mr. Goyer is a jailer; a cop. That's all. John Turner, who is Minister of Justice and Attorney-General, is responsible for the criminal law; making it, amending it, supervising its application. He decides when changes should be made in the law. His officials assess the seriousness of criminal action and decide what action should be taken.

His should be the main voice in cabinet to give advice on government policy in criminal matters — and make no mistake about it, internal security is a criminal matter. Treason, sedition, assisting alien enemies, sabotage, riots, these are all matters for which Mr. Turner has legislative responsibility. All matters for which he and the prime minister bear the heaviest responsibility for government policy.

* * *

It was Mr. Turner more than anyone else who bore the cabinet responsibility in Quebec for the Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act which was used to fight the Front de Liberation du Quebec. Turner's law, Quebeckers called it.

Having this kind of responsibility in a ministry not responsible for the police is just as important as separating the ministries responsible for the police and the courts. It gives citizens the assurance that they will be protected from an over-zealous police enforcer.

Mr. Goyer is out to change all that and the zeal with which he is pursuing his objective is enough to make even the toughest of hard-liners worried.

If he succeeds, if he turns the solicitor-general's department into a security throne room, Mr. Turner will be left with no alternative. He will have to resign as minister of justice and also as attorney-general.

Selling Off Nature

By NORMAN HARTLEY

California land speculators have come up with what must surely be the ultimate ripoff, an absolute gold-plated, be-ribboned winner: the concept of wilderness environment or back-to-nature-for-a-large-down-payment.

The idea might just spread, so perhaps we should all understand how it works.

First, you let the city develop to the point where it is overcrowded, noisy, smelly, polluted and sick — full of tense people jammed into high-rise or suburban boxes. Then you say to the people: "Oh, we are sorry. What a mess. Your dreams are shattered. You didn't come to California to live like this.

"But don't worry. We will save you. We just happen to have bought up the last 30 zillion acres of clean land in California and if you buy a plot we guarantee that we won't get up to any of our usual tricks. In a word, we guarantee we WON'T DO ANYTHING to develop it for you."

Land prices will be extremely high, but you are not just buying a cottage lot, you are buying your escape from us: the land speculators, the developers.

If you buy in here, they say, we guarantee we won't overcrowd you, disturb you or pollute you. Your children will be able to climb trees and smell the flowers.

The small print makes it clear there won't be any question of creating pollution-free industries or any expensive nonsense like that. You will still have to work in Torrance or Long Beach or the San Fernando Valley, but when you do that every day, your desert wilderness will really seem worth the outrageous price you paid for it.

It is, in short, the neatest protection racket thought up in many a year. You are paying the developers to leave you alone.

Sound far-fetched? Take a quick look at the latest trends in California real estate and land advertising. Still, even though it has already started happening, perhaps we don't have to worry — U.S. trends never affect Canada, do they?

Free Trade Rejected

FREDERICTION (CP). — Free-trade arrangements with the United Stte s might give Canada great economic benefits but would entail sacrificing Canadian sovereignty, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said Tuesday night.

Rejecting such a move, the minister said in a speech to the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council:

"We in Canada, want to retain our identity. We think of ourselves in Canada as 'different' and we intend to remain so. We have a healthy respect for diversity."

A free-trade arrangment with the U.S., with Canadian access to markets there secured by treaty, has been suggested as a possible solution to current trade problems.

Test Tube Baby Work May Lead to Horror

CAMBRIDGE, England (Reuter) — A British scientist has warned that experiments to create test tube babies could have horrifying results similar to the tragedy that followed the use of the thalidomide drug.

Dr. Max Perutz of Cambridge University, who won a Nobel Prize for chemistry in 1962, said Tuesday night he agrees with American scientists who urged a halt to certain experiments in this field because of the possibility of an abnormal baby being born.

The experiments are being carried out in Britain by Dr. Robert Edwards, a Cambridge physiologist, and Patrick Steptoe, an obstetrician and gynecologist.

Dr. Perutz, head of the Medical Research Council's molecular biology department at Cambridge, said one aspect of Dr. Edwards' work—to understand the early development of a human embryo—was ethically and scientifically justified.

But he added: "His second aim was to fertilize ova in the test tube and to reimplant these ova into infertile women, and this involved too great a risk."

Dr. Perutz said that even if only a single abnormal baby was born and had to be kept alive for the rest of its life as an invalid, Dr. Edwards would have a terrible guilt.

"The idea that this might happen on a larger scale—a new thalidomide catastrophe—is horrifying."

Deformed babies were born to women who had taken the drug thalidomide, which was manufactured as a tranquillizer.

Agency Planned

MINNEDOSA, Man. (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer said Tuesday the Manitoba government will set up a feed grains marketing agency, at keeping feed grain prices in tune with the prices set by the Canadian Wheat Board.

Speaking to a news conference after an NDP nominating convention, Schreyer said the planned agency would be to handle feed grain sales within the province that would be primarily to feed mills and large-scale feed lot operators.

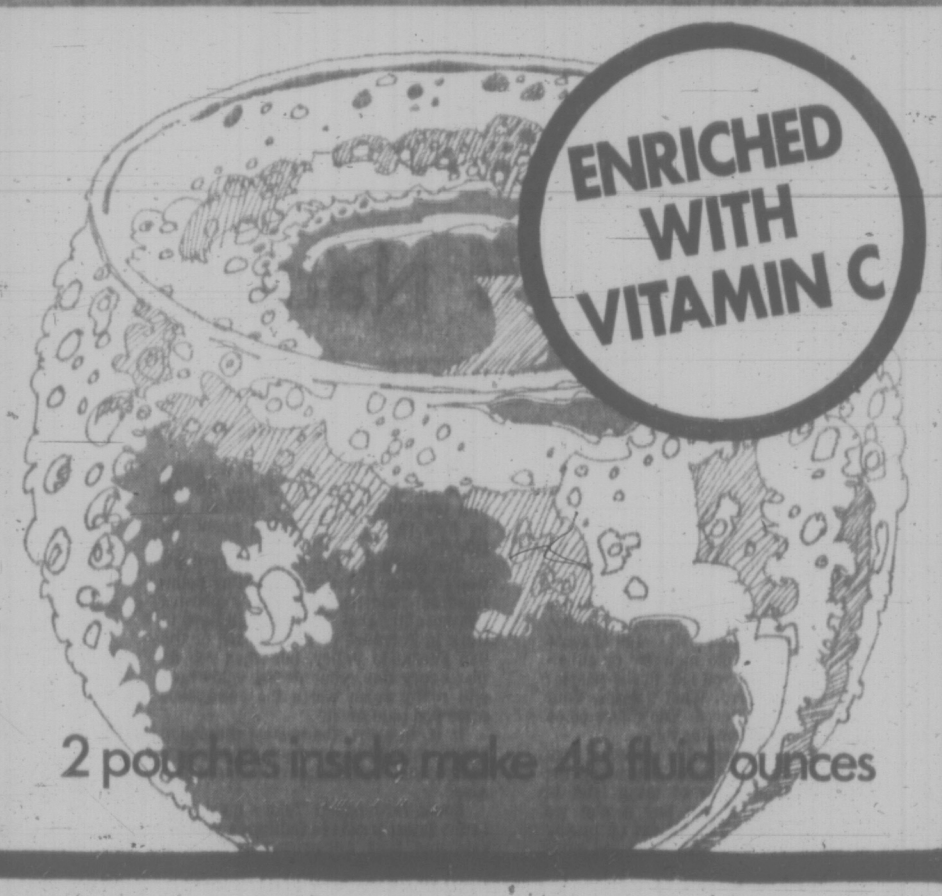
MORE LIKE FRESH ORANGE JUICE THAN EVER!

NEW!

NABOB sungold orange flavour crystals



NABOB'S MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

1 Every family breakfast will be sunnier when you pour new Nabob Sungold — tiny, orange flavour crystals that burst into zesty, "wake-em-up" flavour that's more like fresh orange juice than ever.

2 You really pour the sunshine in because new Nabob Sungold is enriched with Vitamin C. In fact, there's as much Vitamin C in Sungold as in fresh oranges, so you do right by your family's nutrition.

3 So convenient because Nabob Sungold comes in a fresh, bright carton with 2 pouch packages, one to make up for the "fridge", one to keep handy when everyone shouts "more".

4 Serve Nabob Sungold ice cold and serve it often. It's the perfect breakfast drink, but it's great for after school and after play refreshment.

Once Envied, Now Turmoil

MONTEVIDEO (Reuter) — On a wall by the road leading to the airport here, someone has scrawled: "Last one to leave, turn out the lights."

Whether the lights stay on in guerrilla-troubled Uruguay could well depend on what happens next month, when the country has its general elections.

Once envied in Latin America for its prosperity and political stability, Uruguay now has to live with the notoriety of the Tupamaros guerrillas, left-wing activists who have set a pattern for the hemisphere with kidnappings and political embarrassment.

When British Ambassador Geoffrey Jackson left here for home Sept. 10 after being held eight months and a day by the Tupamaros, he said he still loved Uruguay and would return.

In the last five years, an estimated 200,000 have emigrated to Argentina, Brazil, or, if they had the right qualifications, to Canada, the United States and Australia.

SAYS SYSTEM'S FRAUD

On Nov. 28, general election day, those left behind will have a chance to indicate how they feel about a situation which has allowed the Tupamaros to emerge in this once-prosperous little country which is a buffer state on the Rio de la Plata estuary between Argentina and Brazil.

The guerrillas' campaign against President Jorge Pacheco Areco has been aimed at discrediting both him personally and the country's long-established democratic system, which the Tupamaros argue has become a fraud.

There has been no evidence that guerrilla leaders seek political power for themselves at present. They have not announced any alternative government.

They have apparently set out to destroy the system, to create a climate in which politics become polarized and the masses militant.

They have certainly been able to embarrass the establishment, and the police in particular. The escape of 106 Tupamaros from Punta Carretas jail here early in September, followed immediately by the guerrillas' release of Ambassador Jackson, who has been undetected in a city swarming with police and troops, seemed like the last straw.

President Pacheco, however, did not fall into the obvious trap of calling off the elections, a move sure to antagonize the jealously democratic middle class.

He appeared to win sympathy by insisting the elections would take place and that extremists would not prevent the people from having their say.

TEAR GAS, MACE BREAK UP RIOT

JOLIET, Ill. (Reuter) — Guards, using tear gas and mace and crouching behind wooden shields, forced 24 rebellious prisoners from their maximum-security cells at Joliet prison Tuesday after weekend disturbances followed the death of a black prisoner in nearby Statevilie penitentiary last week.

The prisoners had armed themselves with metal bars torn from their beds and defied guards when Herva Stephens, 24, a leader of Chicago's Black P-Stone Nation street gang, attempted to attack guards with a metal pipe as he was being moved to another cell Saturday, prison officials reported.

The other 23 prisoners who occupied the same tier as Stephens, a convicted murderer, armed themselves with metal bars and broken light bulbs. Stephens was eventually disarmed.

Watched by the prison doctor, chaplain and superintendent, the guards moved the prisoners to other maximum security cells without injury.

Job Crisis Hitting Pakistan

KARACHI (AP) — The Pakistani army has clamped a lid on a boiling unemployment problem in West Pakistan that threatens to explode and affect its fight to keep a grip on rebellious East Pakistan.

Because guerrilla war in the East has strangled the economy there, trade unions in the West say 75 government and private enterprises here and in Hyderabad, 90 miles northeast, have fired or laid off nearly 10,000 workers, mostly since August.

Labor leaders say unemployment in Karachi, Pakistan's largest industrial concentration, has reached 140,000 of a labor force of about 400,000. Unemployment throughout the country was estimated at 20 per cent, including 33 per cent in the more populous East before March.

An influential officer of the textile mill owners' association said: "If the situation continues like this for six months, there will be an explosion."

Similar views are expressed by Zulfiqar Ali Bhutto, chairman of the Pakistan People's party, which attracted most of West Pakistani labor votes in the December, 1970, general election, and such labor leaders as Habi Ahmed, general secretary of the West Pakistan Workers Federation.

"Trouble will start in Karachi and Hyderbad in industries depending on imported raw materials, and then spread," said Bhutto.

ARMY TIGHTENS UP

The toughened army stand after it arrested Sheik Mujibur Rahman and outlawed his East Pakistani-based Awami League in March has checked labor unrest.

The army has not ruled out the right to strike, but it has banned meetings and processions.

"If I do not have permission to hold meetings," said Ahmed, "If I cannot assemble at the factory gate, how can I strike?" Hardest hit in Karachi is the silk and cotton textile industry, the single largest employer. Economists here estimate the textile industry has managed to regain the equivalent of $12 million of a $60-million annual market in the East by stepping up exports to Persian Gulf and Middle East countries. But because the government subsidizes exports with bonuses to encourage trade which earns hard currencies, the government bears some of the cost of a comeback.

Actor Recovers

LONDON (AP) — Mel Ferrer, 54, left a London clinic Tuesday "completely recovered" after collapsing from exhaustion last week. A spokesman for the movie producer said. Ferrer, former husband of actress Audrey Hepburn, will resume work on his new film, Embassy.

Judge Rules Books Are Pornographic

EDMONTON (CP) — Judge S. V. Legg rejected three public opinion surveys conducted by the University of Alberta and ruled Monday that 2,850 books and magazines seized from a local store are "hardcore pornography."

He ordered the publication forfeited by the store, Pipeline News Ltd.

In a 28-page judgment, Legg wrote that the paperbacked books and the magazines "in this case are nothing more than hardcore pornography and far exceed the Canadian community tolerance level."

STUDIES REJECTED

The publications, seized from the store on Aug. 14, 1970, were ordered forfeited under Section 150 of the Criminal Code. Under this section, no one is prosecuted but the material in question is forfeited if the crown satisfies the court that the material is obscene.

Legg said he rejected the evidence given in May about three surveys conducted by Dirk Schaeffer and B. W. Thorngate, both assistant professors at the University of Alberta.

They both testified for the defence that the surveys showed Edmontonians are willing to allow adults to obtain material with a sexual content regardless of whether they judged the material to be obscene.

The judge wrote that he was more impressed with the evidence of sociologist Earle Snider of the University of Alberta, a crown witness who criticized the surveys as useless because of sampling errors.

The surveys conducted by Professors Thorngate and Shaeffer started with 46 photographs of men and women in various stages of undress and in a variety of interaction with other people. These Legg said that after rejecting the surveys he had to decide in the light of his own experience whether the publications unduly exploited sex in terms of contemporary standards of the Canadian community.

Let's work together to create jobs for British Columbians on social assistance

November 1 to April 30, the Government of British Columbia will pay 50% of the wages or salary you pay to anyone you employ who is registered in the new Job Opportunties Program and who carries a "Certificate of Opportunity"

People who are able to work don't want social assistance. They want jobs. They want the security of a regular pay-cheque . . . a renewal of confidence in their abilities and talents . . . a feeling that they are playing a part in the dynamic growth of this great Province.

They can't create jobs for themselves. Only you can do that. And to help you the Government of British Columbia will make it worth your while by paying 50% of the wages or salary for each new job you create for a person who has been a resident of British Columbia for 12 months prior to November 1, 1971, and who has been on British Columbia social assistance for the past three months or more.

HOW THE PLAN WORKS

1. Each social assistance recipient who registers in this program will be issued a "Certificate of Opportunity."
2. This Certificate qualifies the holder for employment under the terms of the program.
3. If you employ a person having a Certificate, you will pay that person's full wages or salary and the Government of British Columbia guarantees to reimburse you half. This also applies to fringe benefits if they are part of the normal terms of employment.
4. There is no limit to the number of people you may employ under the terms of this program.
5. The job opportunities you provide must be newly created and not jobs already available, and they must involve a minimum of eight (8) continuous weeks of full-time employment.
6. The salaries or wages you pay must be what you normally pay your employees in each job category.
7. Claims for reimbursement of wages or salary will be paid by the Government on a monthly basis.
8. Anyone with a Certificate of Opportunity may be employed by you under the Job Opportunities Program at any time between November 1, 1971 and April 30, 1972.

COMPANIES, ALL PUBLIC BODIES, ORGANIZATIONS AND INDIVIDUALS WHO WOULD LIKE TO CO-OPERATE IN THIS NEW PLAN SHOULD MAIL THE FOLLOWING FORM IMMEDIATELY:

BRITISH COLUMBIA GOVERNMENT JOB OPPORTUNITIES COMMITTEE
Honourable Dan Campbell, Chairman

Hon. Dan Campbell, Chairman
British Columbia Government Job Opportunities Committee,
Parliament Buildings,
Victoria, B.C.

We (I) would like to co-operate with the Government of British Columbia in creating jobs for those on Social Assistance who qualify for the 50% British Columbia Job Opportunities Program for the period of November 1, 1971 to April 30, 1972.

VSE Wants to Improve Its Image—Stevenson

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Vancouver Stock Exchange chairman and acting president Gerry H. Stevenson is concerned about the organization's reputation.

He said following a meeting of the VSE board of governors here Tuesday that the next president will have the task of ensuring the respect of the financial community and maintaining public confidence.

To find a man with such high qualifications may take considerable time, Stevenson said.

Governors are in no hurry to replace VSE top management after the dual resignations of president John A. Van Luven and general manager Stewart Thompson, made public Oct. 4.

About a dozen individuals have been suggested privately for the position vacated by Van Luven, ostensibly for reasons of health.

Van Luven, who is credited with development of the exchange into one of the major markets of North America, bore some of the criticism directed at VSE after some trading or financial problems were encountered by member firms or listed issues.

One matter now before the courts is the handling of Ardo Mines Ltd. B warrants, in which trading was stopped in September.

Stevenson refused comment on that.

But he conceded there is room for improvement in the way Vancouver Stock Exchange is regarded by the public generally and by the financial community which relies on an orderly market place to raise equity capital.

The chairman, who has relinquished his personal responsibility to G. H. Stevenson and Co. Ltd. temporarily, is devoting full time to the senior post at the stock exchange.

He said the governors so far have not tried to select a new president, but that numerous suggestions had been offered from outsiders recommending whom they feel are worthy candidates.

Stevenson refused to acknowledge that one of these may be B.C. securities commissioner William Irwin, as rumored in Vancouver. Irwin himself denied that he had been approached with an offer.

The exchange does not intend to fill the general manager's post until a new president is chosen, partly because the president will likely have a say in the appointment.

Governors met in Victoria as a gesture to the centenary of B.C. Confederation and to meet members of the local financial community. Premier Bennett was a guest at lunch in the Empress Hotel, and later the board was host at a reception in the Union Club.

BUSINESS AND FINANCE

Gold River

Its property in Princeton area has yielded a second zone of what appears to be high grade copper, reports Gold River Mines Ltd., of Vancouver.

The latest find is about 800 yards northeast of the original find of copper mineralization and 1½ miles northeast of a zone indicating high grade copper.

The site is on workings that date back about 50 years.

Polaroid

Polaroid Corp. reports lower sales and earnings for the third quarter.

The company said it has net income of $13.49 million (41 cents a share) for three months ended Sept. 30, compared with a net of $17.54 million (54 cents) in the period last year.

Sales for the third quarter were $131.3 million compared with $132.17 million in the quarter of 1970.

Evans

Third quarter net earnings of Evans Products Co. show a 75 per cent improvement at $6.39 million compared with $3.65 million a year earlier.

Revenues at $203 million are 26 per cent higher than $161 million a year ago. Share earnings were given as 86 cents compared with 5 9cents.

Nine-month performance shows $534 million revenue, 22 per cent better than $439 million in the period last year, and net earnings were 58 per cent higher at $14.4 million from $9 million, or $2.02 vs. $1.44 a share.

Canarctic

Canarctic Resources Ltd., of Calgary has reached an agreement to purchase all the outstanding shares of Coast Steel Fabricators, Ltd. of Vancouver.

Terms were not disclosed and Canarctic president Larry Darling said the arrangement could be closed when formal regulatory approval is received.

Coast Steel was founded in 1920 as an art metal business but has been in heavy steel fabrication since 1947.

Green Eagle

A road to the 2,700-foot level is under construction at the former Yreka property on northern Vancouver Island as part of a development program by Green Eagle Mines Ltd.

The company has staked a number of claims around the firmer high grade copper producer and an option has been taken by Iso Explorations Ltd., a firm directed by Teck Corp. Drill targets are being selected.

Mineral showings have been found at 2,400 feet, 500 feet higher than any previous work, and at 2,750 feet, and a heliport has been built at 2,700 feet.

CSBs

General sales of Canada Savings Bonds to date in the 1971 campaign total $10.03 million through banks and investment houses.

Payroll deductions in the two weeks are valued at $3.33 million from 6,061 applicants.

Regional director George Sherwood said the average applicant has signed for $500 worth of bonds and that this year's start is ahead of midOctober a year ago.

Kaiser

Kaiser Steel Corp. reports third quarter net income of $457,000, equal to two cents a share, on sales of $114.86 million.

For the quarter last year, earnings were $2.34 million (29 cents) with sales of $108.44 million.

Domestic operations showed a loss of $2.2 million but the company was edged into the profit column by $2.5 million in earnings from Hamersley Holdings Ltd., its Australian iron ore affiliate, and by $160,000 from Kaiser Resources Ltd., B.C. coal mining subsidiary.

Pay Hikes Retroactive To 1970

OTTAWA (CP) — A contract agreement affecting 11,471 government program administrators was reached Tuesday by negotiators for the Public Service Alliance of Canada and the treasury board.

The agreement, which proposes an 18-per cent salary increase over a three-year period, must be ratified by the membership, who are in the administrative and foreign service category of the public service.

Employees at the two most junior levels are to receive a 6.5-per cent raise retroactive to Oct. 1, 1970, a further six-per cent increase retroactive to Sept. 27, 1971, and a five-per cent increase effective Sept. 25, 1972.

All other program administrators are to get a six-per cent increase retroactive to Oct. 1, 1970, and a 5.5-per cent raise retroactive to Sept. 27, 1971 followed by a further five per cent Sept. 25, 1972.

Rail Firm Fined $100

PORT COQUITLAM (CP) — Canadian Pacific Ltd. was fined $100 Tuesday on a conviction of violating the city of Port Coquitlam's pollution of water bylaw.

In passing sentence provincial court Judge J. C. Giles said he did not feel he should impose the maximum penalty of $200 just because a large corporation was involved.

He said he believed the incident was accidental and the company did its utmost to repair the damage as quickly as possible.

Charges were laid Aug. 2 after discovery of crude oil in a drainage ditch in the CPR yard. The ditch drained into another ditch drained into Lougheed Highway and eventually into the Pitt River.

Abandon Prime Rate —Banker

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Bank of America president A. W. Clausen said the so-called "prime rate" should be abandoned, and all interest rates pegged to a standard determined by supply and demand.

Clausen said the prime rate — the interest charged a bank's best customers — has received too much attention when it actually applies to relatively few loans.

Bankers are currently in a dilemma about the prime rate. They are under pressure to reduce it but fear that because of new economic controls "that may be a one-way street" according to Clausen.

In the past, interest rates on all types of loans have been set in relation to the so-called "prime" rate, which in turn was established by banks themselves, with the largest one usually leading the way.

Instead of this, Clausen proposes a "composite rate of some sort" based on the actual market for loans. It would "float" constantly with the changes in supply and demand but could easily be calculated by bank computers.

With all interest rates pegged to the market place for loans—"something over which banks have no control" — bankers would not be in the position of arbitrarily lowering or raising them, Clausen said.

'Exporters Need New Directives'

MONTEBELLO, Que. (CP) — The Canadian Export Association looked into the future Tuesday and found it filled with uncertainties.

Economists, industrialists and government officials participating in a panel discussion at the association's annual conference agreed that rough times are ahead.

Speakers said problems run the gamut from the long-lasting repercussions of recent United States economic moves to the need for international monetary reform and a new policy directive for industry.

Dr. John Deutsch, president of Queen's University, Kingston, warned of the extreme dangers of a move toward trade protectionism in the world.

J. F. Grandy, deputy minister of trade and industry, said that the flow of exports by early 1972 will be "severely curtailed" if U.S. economic restraints are still in effect. The combined result of the U.S. measures would be a "serious disruption of international trade."

Carl Beigie, an economist and executive director of the Private Planning Association — a private business research organization — said exports should increase after 1972. But he said Canada needs a new set of economic policies.

He said he had great concern for the future because events in the world — such as the U.S. economic moves and the trend toward formation of huge trading blocs — was boxing Canada in and leaving few alternatives.

Despite the uncertainties, there were some rays of hope.

Several panelists said that the U.S. measures would lead to a stronger U.S. domestic market and, as Beigie put it, "what is good for the U.S. economy is good for Canada."

While there was general agreement that Canada's trading future lies with the U.S., there was also a feeling that Canada should try to cultivate new markets abroad.

E. C. Hill, general manager of Dominion Road Machinery Co. Ltd., reported on his trip to China in mid-year as part of the Canadian economic mission.

"I think that Canadians, particularly Canadian-owned companies, have a big advantage presently in doing business with China.

"We appear to enjoy a considerable amount of prestige presently and this could well translate itself into increased commercial activity."

It Doesn't Pay Anymore to Be a Big Banana

By BRUCE LEVETT

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (CP) — The tiny country of Ecuador, hung on the western slope of the Andes and split by the Equator, is a country with essentially a one-product economy and that economy could be in trouble.

A group of Canadians, financed by low-interest Canadian government loans, is working with Ecuadorian experts to change all that while there is time.

Guayasconsult is a consortium of two Canadian companies Gepac of Vancouver and Spartan Air of Ottawa and three Ecuadorian firms. They are doing preliminary work on a project which could bring flood control, irrigation, crop diversification and electrification to wide areas at an eventual cost of approximately $200 million.

The main product of Ecuador is bananas and, in the past, this has meant specifically the large banana called the Gros Martin. The main market for this crop has been the United States.

But marketing practices are changing in the U.S. The housewife who once was content with three or four large bananas when she picked up a pound of the fruit at the supermarket, is demanding more bananas—even if somewhat smaller—to the pound.

BIG EXPORTER

For a tiny, largely undeveloped country which is the world's largest exporter of banans, this could mean disaster.

The largest single importer in the U.S. has been buying increasingly in Central America where the smaller Cavendish bananas are available.

"The only thing holding the economy together in Ecuador has been labor trouble, hurricanes and crop disease in Central America," one observer said.

In the meantime, banana producers in Ecuador are switching to the Cavendish variety as swiftly as possible—but they may have no answer to the question of lower shipping rates from Central America.

That's where the Guayasconsult comes in.

The consortium is planning ways to diversify the economy, possibly to bring in rice and oil palms.

"Experimental work is going on to see just what can be produced and marketed," says Robin Round, project engineer from Vancouver.

The project, strung along the basin of the Guayas River, "will eventually radically improve the lives of almost a third of Ecuador's population," one Canadian government publication states.

NEEDS PARTNERS

Foreign Trade, published by the department of industry, trade and commerce, says:

"Forestry, fisheries and mining projects . . . present attractive prospects. The government (of Ecuador) is actively looking for foreign partners in these fields. New forestry concessions are being offered, and several interesting mineral deposits have been discovered. . . .

"Ecuador needs foreign investment . . . and welcomes foreign private investors more than do most other countries in the area.

"Canadian firms should be able to supply more of the necessary capital goods and services for these projects. Although it is chronically short of hard currencies, Ecuador has historically been a good credit risk and the prospect of large oil revenues in the near future should remove any remaining doubts about its credit-worthiness."

Last year, Canada exported only $3,515,000 worth of goods to Ecuador and purchased $10.5 million worth.

Of that $10.5 million, $7.7 million was spent on bananas. Canadians, working with Ecuadorians on the Guayasconsult and with the backing of both governments, may change that.

Converting Sinking Fund

VANCOUVER (CP) — The City of Vancouver is converting $2.5 million of sinking fund investments into Canada Savings bonds, Ald. Earle Adams, finance committee chairman, told council Tuesday. He said the move will yield slightly more than $120,000 profit to the city between now and 1974.

Ald. Adams said Dominion of Canada Bonds scheduled to mature in 1973 and 1974 will be converted to Canada Savings bonds, a better investment in today's market.

An Expression of Faith In the Man on the Ground

YELLOWKNIFE (CP) — In these days of booming technology and university graduates everywhere in the North, there are people who say the day of the grizzled prospector is fading fast.

The role of the solitary man, searching on foot for the mineral treasures of the vast pre-Cambrian wilderness, is being replaced by exotic techniques and applied science, they say.

They use exotic words like electro-magnetic survey, geochemistry, aerial photography, resistivity, conductivity and geomagnetism.

But talk to Bev Thompson for a few minutes and you'll soon take all of that with a grain of sodium chloride.

As mining recorder for the Mackenzie mining district of the Northwest Territories, he is one of the key men in a federal government program that can be summed up as an expression of faith in the man on the ground. He also is chairman of the prospectors' assistance board which makes grants for grubstakes and transportation for prospectors conducting mineral exploration on the ground. Thompson said scientific methods of hunting mineral deposits are most valuable when coupled with the methods of the traditional prospector taking samples in the field and staking claims.

REFERS TO FINDS

He cites examples of lone prospectors stumbling across rich ore bodies in the granite vastness of the Canadian shield and the Yukon mountain ranges.

The prospectors' assistance board of the Mackenzie district has a budget of $30,500 for grants to men going into the bush.

This year 33 prospectors have taken advantage of the assistance, which can run up to $900 a man. Two-thirds of the grant is provided before the prospector leaves on an expedition and the remainder is available when he returns after not less than 60 days in the field.

A prospector also is permitted up to 15 assays of his ore samples without charge at the assay office in the Northwest or Yukon territories.

Many of the men who take advantage of the grants are old-timers who can live off the land, if they have to.

"You should see some of these old fellows when they buy their grub," Thompson says. They buy only a few staples and "a fishing line and a couple of hooks will keep them going."

STORMS LASH U.K.

LONDON (CP) — Britain is being lashed by the dirtiest October storms in years, which have sunk ships, driven cars off the road and even drowned sheep beside the normally placid River Dee.

Gales have been gusting up to 60 miles an hour accompanied by heavy rains ranging up to 3½ inches in some areas. Power lines have been blown down and telephone and railway services disrupted here and there.

The gales, lasting for several days, have delayed the rescue of the distressed Norwegian freighter Anatina, last reported as making four knots under tow off the Scilly Isles.

The Anatina, out of Sorel, Que., with a cargo of pig iron, caught fire Saturday and two crew members were killed. The Cunard liner Franconia and British naval helicopters took off some of her personnel, leaving a skeleton crew aboard.

At Sandgate, Kent, waves crashed 30 feet over the rooftops of some seaside cottages.

Manchester reported 2½ inches of rain in 24 hours, the highest in October since records began in this traditionally wettest of British cities in 1877.

Beside the River Dee in Merionith County, Wales, roads were under four feet of water. Dozens of sheep were drowned there as the Dee overflowed and flooded farmland.

'Principles Of Justice Trampled'

NEW YORK (CP) — Senator Edward Kennedy says the Nixon administration is attempting to destroy the U.S. constitution by restraining the press, abusing its wiretapping power and putting forward "mediocre" candidates for the U.S. Supreme Court.

In a sweeping statement the Massachusetts Democrat told a $150-a-plate B'Nai B'rith Anti-Defamation League dinner Tuesday night:

"The men at the executive levels of justice have trampled on traditions and ideals and principles of justice. They see the constitution as a burden, an obstruction to be overcome, as a technical barrier to be avoided when inconvenient, evaded where possible and ignored if necessary."

"... Our Supreme Court is threatened with destruction."

The senator further charged the administration with doing "three or nine times as many days of tapping and bugging without court orders as they do with judicial permission."

Fred Astaire and Dr. Hess suggest Dancing!

Why don't you try the same?

STEPS FOR HEALTH — 88-YEAR-OLD RETIRED DENTIST DR. JEROME G. HESS gave up his dentistry practice after 42 years because of his declining health in 1952.

Nine years later he started taking dancing lessons to get some regular exercise and ward off the aging process. It evidently worked. Last year Hess won a national foxtrot and tango title in Miami, Fla., and now—at the age of 88—is training hard to defend his title in April. "I'll be ready," promised the retired dentist, who has been going to Fred Astaire Studios twice a week for lessons since 1965.

60 Striking Firemen Again Answer Alarm

And late Tuesday, hopes were raised for a break in the strike after Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer relayed proposals between city hall and the firemen.

About 60 striking firefighters responded to the alarm in a west-end lumber yard about 1 a.m. The fire, which at one point threatened to demolish 1½ blocks of lumber and buildings, was brought under control within two hours.

Jacques Morin, president of the 2,400-member Montreal Firefighters' Association, said Tuesday he would ask his men to return to work as long as the city promises to begin serious negotiations and does not prosecute any of the striking firemen.

Previously, the firemen had been holding out for pay parity with Toronto before returning to work.

Seven firemen were to appear before Judge Leon Lalande today on charges of violating a court injunction obtained by the city last Thursday, ordering the men back to work. If convicted, the men face a maximum penalty of a $50,000 fine and one year in jail.

CITY DEMANDS RETURN

Gerald Niding, city executive committee chairman, said Tuesday the city will not reopen contract negotiations until the men return to work.

Labor Minister Cournoyer met Tuesday with Mr. Morin and later with Mayor Jean Drapeau and Mr. Niding.

The city has offered the firemen a 7.1-per-cent increase, brining the salary of a first-class fireman to $10,050, some 600 short of wage parity with Toronto.

Earlier this month, Montreal police were granted wage parity with Toronto after Mr. Cournoyer stepped in.

The first major blaze since the strike began struck a three-storey building in west-end Montreal late Monday night, and 60 striking firemen left a union study session to answer the alarm, in response to a request from Rene Plaisance, newly-appointed fire chief.

The fire, which left 15 families homeless, was subdued in two hours by the men, who promptly returned to he ranks of their striking colleagues.

"We always intended to fight the major blazes," said one union official. "All the director has to do is ask and we'll be there."

A Montreal Urban Community bylaw passed during a special council session Monday empowered Mr. Plaisance to call in any of 700 suburban firemen to help battle fires in the city, but in the case of Monday's blaze he considered the move unnecessary.

The plain facts about Allstate Fibre Glass belted tires:

1. They give you better traction: wide, low profile, deep tread design lasts long and gives excellent road-hold.
2. Fibre Glass belts prevent tire "squirm," thus tire will last up to twice as long as ordinary unbelted tires.
3. Easier handling with the wider tread and low profile.

ANTI-YANKEEISM 'WELLING'

WASHINGTON (CP) — Senator Frank Church (Dem—Idaho) said Tuesday a "tide of anti-Yankeeism" is welling in Canada and it "is possible that President Nixon has been badly informed" about circumstances there.

Church, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on Western Hemisphere affairs, said in a Senate speech that during the last 10 years "Canadians have been moving toward the conclusion that they are, in effect, subservient to the United States."

He expressed "concern about the increasing anti-U.S. sentiment in Canada," and said Canadians are searching for peaceful ways to assert their national independence.

"Where this search will lead them is still uncertain, but the growth of Canadian nationalism is a reality which we, in the United States, must reckon with and acknowledge."

Referring to the U.S. 10-percent supplementary import duty announced by Nixon Aug. 15, Church said "if there is any one country that deserves an exemption, Canada is that country."

All signs indicate that the next Canadian election "will be fought on fiercely nationalistic lines."

He added: "I only hope, in order to stem the rising tide of anti-Yankeeism now welling in that country, that future U.S. foreign policy decisions show more deference to Canadian sensitivities."

Church outlined the degree of U.S. ownership in Canada and noted that Canada has "veered sharply away" from U.S. foreign policy in many areas.

"This impulse of Canada to find a more independent course in foreign affairs has its roots in the events of the 1960s. The shocked reaction in Canada to racial conflict, riots and political assassination in the United States, along with Canadian distaste for the Vietnam war, fostered a wave of anti-Yankeeism which swept through Canada's intellectual and artistic community".

These "ill-feelings" not only continue to persist but the surtax "has exacerbated them still further."

It was possible Nixon was "insensitive" to Canadian circumstances because he was badly informed.

"Even through Canada refrained from retaliating in kind to our surtax, the Nixon package may produce other harmful effects. This is the third time in a decade that Canada has unsuccessfully appealled to Washington for an exemption from a balance-of-payments measure. Also, Canada's unemployment rate now has reached 7.1 per cent, considerably higher than our own."

"Nevertheless, events and public opinion are forcing him to make policy decisions which reassert or even extend the area of Canadian national control."

GALLUP POLL

Dramatic Gains by Conservatives Put Grits Back to Low of 1969

By THE CANADIAN INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION
(World Copyright Reserved)

Dramatic gains in voting strength of the national Progressive Conservative Party, and losses for the Liberals are reflected in the most recent coast-to-coast opinion study conducted by the Gallup Poll. As a result, the Liberals are back to where they were in the summer of 1969, and a big 21 percentage points down from the peak reached last November.

Peaks and valleys of political fortunes since 1968 are shown in the following table:

	Libs.	P.C.	NDP	Soc. Cred. and Others
ELECTION, June 25, 1968	46%	32%	16%	6%
June, 1968 (PC's previous high)	41	31	22	6
Aug., 1969 (Libs. previous low)	39	29	24	8
Nov., 1970 (Liberal high; P.C. and NDP low)	59	22	13	6
Aug., 1971 (NDP's high)	42	23	24	11
TODAY	38	32	23	7

The above figures add across to 100 per cent of those who had a definite opinion when asked:

"If a federal election were held today, which partys candidate do you think you would favor?"

Voters who had no opinion (ranging from 24 to 39 per cent of those eligible t vote) have been, as usual, eliminated from the calculations of party strength.

The November, 1970, poll in which the Liberal party showed its greatest strength, was taken just after the War Measures Act had been invoked.

In the light of the sharp Liberal drop-off shown in today's results, it is interesting to recall that last August, newspapers who are members of the Institute published a report which showed the largest single group of voters felt that if the Liberal party DID win the next federal election, it would not obtain an over-all majority of seats. The question put to a cross-section of voters at that time was: "Many Canadians expect the Liberal government to win the next federal election. If the Liberals do win the election, do you think it will be with a majority of seats or a minority?"

The results as published were:

Majority	Minority	Win	Undecided
29%	41%	12%	18%

Because for many years the Institute has reported significant differences between the way people vote in federal elections compared with provincial, the above federal figures have little or no significance in assessing the outcome of the Ontario provincial election Thursday.

Corruption Level Bared

NEW YORK (UPI) — A veteran police officer testified Tuesday that rookie cops in New York City are "isolated" by other policemen until they are sized up as corruptible and worthy of being called "a good guy."

Testifying before the Knapp commission, which is investigating graft and other corrupt practices in the largest American police department, Ptl. William Phillips said 14 years' service convinced him that every plainclothesman in the department participates in graft.

"There is a pad (a contract with vice and gambling operators for regular payments for police protection) in every plainclothes division in this city," Phillips said. "I had two cabarets on my first beat."

Pad payments involve officers at the precinct, division and borough command levels, said the witness, who has worked as an undercover agent for the commission. He said honest cops "were kept off to the sides by themselves" or transferred "as unfit for the job."

"The type of work he is to engage in is taking money," said Phillips, who admitted starting with $40 a week in collections and working up to $250 a week from policy operators, while collecting department commendations along the way.

In addition, he said, there were plenty of free meals, and money and liquor at Christmas.

"The risk of being caught was very, very limited" he testified. "If you reported a policy operation to the division, nothing was done. There was no pressure for arrests."

'Newspapers Now Have More Impact'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — North American newspapers have more impact now than ever before because "they are sensitive to what people are talking and thinking about," the president of The Associated Press Managing Editors Association said Tuesday.

"I think we are editing closer to their lives than we ever have and that our newspapers are more vital and vigorous because of it," Don Carter of the Macon, Ga., Telegraph and News told the opening of the APME's 38th annual meeting.

He said the editor of the 1970s is "stimulated and challenged by his readers" to produce "superior newspapers to match our changing society."

Did Love Turn Sour For the Honeymooner?

By DONNA CLEMENTS
Times Staff

HONEYMOON BAY — The Dear John letter may have gone astray. It could be the early settler changed his mind when he saw his English bride-to-be.

Whatever the reason, the honeymoon for which this Cowichan Valley community was named never happened — at least here.

It was the wife of Henry March, who once owned 600 acres in the area, who gave the bay its name in the late 1890s.

Their son, Charlie, who inherited the land when his father died in 1949 explained how it happened:

★ ★ ★

"The name came after my mother was teasing this homesteader, who was returning to England to marry, about bringing his new bride to spend their honeymoon in the bay," said March. "This was around 1895. Although the homesteader never returned, the name Honeymoon stuck."

When Edith March named it Honeymoon Bay it boasted about 15 homesteaders living in the vicinity who had come here from England, Scotland and Ireland.

The March family's roots first began to grow in Honeymoon Bay when March, who hailed from Rochdale in Lancashire, Eng., took up a homestead in 1887. The Marchs had two sons Charlie and John. John was killed in a logging accident in 1924.

MARCH
. . . the name stuck

Since he inherited the property, Charlie March, now 72 and a lifelong resident of the bay, has sold 360 acres to Western Forest Industries and 150 acres to three local businessmen to construct a golf course, now the March Meadows Golf and Country Club.

He plans to keep the remaining land which borders the lake.

As a youth March can recall the population of the bay being between three to four hundred. The current population is about 400.

"When I was young the population was mainly made up of loggers living in camps," recalled March. "Now the community is made up mainly of families whose men are employed in WFI's mill and logging operations here."

March said when his father first started farming he had to clear his land. Although it was a combined farming operation, the family concentrated mainly on the dairy side until 22 years ago when Charlie March switched to beef cattle.

★ ★ ★

March retired from farming two years ago and, although he is busier than ever caring for the 11 cottages he rents out and his public utility called the Honeymoon Bay Water Works, which supplies water to over 30 homes, he said he finds he is bored for the first time in his life. His wife died just over a year ago.

What March misses most from the "good old days" is the excellent fishing and hunting he enjoyed in the bay.

March noted that although the Cowichan Lake area is well known for these sports that there is no comparison to what he used to enjoy.

"Now if you go out hunting you nearly always bump into someone around every tree. Before I could go out for a week and never never see anyone."

Plebiscite on Malaspina Said Justified, Overdue

DUNCAN — Cowichan School Board chairman Dave Haywood said today the proposed plebiscite asking residents if they wish to continue to participate in the Malaspina Regional College is "an excellent opportunity for the people to express an opinion that is long overdue."

He does not agree with statements made Tuesday by college chairman Dr. Roy MacMillan charging that the board's decision to hold a plebiscite is a "calculated stab in the back."

Cowichan trustees agreed Monday to hold the plebiscite with the December elections because they feel concerned "with the steadily increasing burden the property owner is being asked to carry."

Trustees explained that the initial three-year operation of the college in temporary facilities will expire in 1972 and taxpayers will then be faced with a capital construction referendum.

They want to know how Cowichan school district taxpayers feel about participating in the college before they make a decision on whether to support the holding of a referendum.

MacMillan termed Cowichan's move as a deliberate attempt to sabotage the college, as well as to deprive Duncan ratepayers of the benefits of remaining in the College region.

"It would be only a costly straw vote, a public opinion poll, which could serve no purpose in that a binding contract already exists," he noted. "The Duncan Board cannot opt out of a legal contract."

MacMillan also called the timing of the Duncan announcement "vindictive" because he feels it can't help but effect the current attempt by a group of Port Alberni citizens to bring that district into full participation with Malaspina college.

Haywood contended this morning that "the plebiscite will probably only benefit the college."

He said that ever since a plebiscite was held in 1967 asking school districts if they agreed with a college concept there has been confusion.

"Many people expected a second vote to be held right after requesting the expenditure of funds," Haywood said.

"Once and for all we will be able to establish Cowichan's position in the college and we can get off the fence," he said.

SPLIT PROTEST

Cowichan pulled out of the project in May, 1970, because they do not agree with the cost-sharing agreement. Six months later they returned after the participating boards agreed to re-negotiate. Cowichan feels the meetings have been "unsuccessful."

Haywood said that Cowichan's share — raised by local dollars alone — in Malaspina's 1971 operating budget is $165,000. With 86 full-time students from Cowichan attending, this makes the cost contributed by local taxpayers $1,920 per student.

Cowichan school district's operating costs for 1971 are $2,990,205. With 6,200 students attending the schools this makes the cost $482 per student.

"These amounts are all monies paid by the local taxpayers, they do not include monies paid by the government," Haywood pointed out. "I feel we are contributing far too much to Malaspina college."

Haywood said he disagrees with MacMillan's charge that the plebiscite will be costly to taxpayers because it is being held along with the civic elections. "The only cost will be the making up of the ballots and that will be minimal."

"At no time did we say that the proposed plebiscite would have any legal status," Haywood stressed. "We are only asking for an expression of opinion from the people to guide the board in future relationships with the college."

Curtis Deplores Apathy On Gorge Development

Public apathy towards development of the Gorge waterway was deplored Tuesday night by Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis.

Addressing about 40 members of the Portage Inlet and Gorge Waterway Society at the annual meeting, Curtis said the small attendance was "symptomatic of the problem facing your society and all other organizations trying to improve the area — we simply can't get people interested."

He said he had taken many aldermen, civic leaders, real estate board members and other officials up the waterway to try to show what had been accomplished and what was planned for the area.

"They went away terribly enthusiastic and stayed away," he added.

Curtis suggested the society should try to boost its membership not only from the Gorge area but from all over Greater Victoria.

Saanich design engineer Frank Neate told members the biggest cause of pollution in the gorge is raw sewage discharged by Victoria. But he said once the city and the B.C. government agree on methods of sewage treatment the area could be cleaned up within five years to the point where people could safely swim there.

Neate is the author of the Gorge Waterway report which outlines recommendations for improvement and restoration of the waterway.

In the elections which followed the round table discussion there was some difficulty in finding members to stand as directors. Only seven were elected, all by acclamation, compared with 13 last year.

Log Salvage Closure

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Forest Service Tuesday announced a 10-day log salvage closure in all waters adjacent to Qualicum Beach, Parksville, Northwest Bay and Ballenas Channel.

The closure is to allow owners to recover logs scattered by rough weather.

$7 Million Centre Provides Home for Handicapped Children

Premier Bennett officially opened Glendale Hospital in Saanich this afternoon, a $7 million centre for the long-term care of severly handicapped children and adults.

There are 93 patients in residence at the moment, ranging in age from 10 to 60. Ultimately there will be 300.

All of the patients are retarded, many of them profoundly so. Some are also severely physically handicapped as well.

The hospital lies at the west end of Markham Street north of Royal Oak. A central building houses the administration, a 20-bed infirmary, laboratory, pharmacy, assessment, treatment and training services, supply and maintenance facilities.

The north and south wings have accommodation for 150 each in units of 25. In the north wing are patients who are physically handicapped, in the south wing thos who are retarded but mobile.

Many of the physically handicapped young people have a degree of mobility, some of them moving on their backs using their elbows. They play on the floor or on mattresses. Furniture such as chairs would just lead to falls and injuries, Jim McMahon, director of nursing, explained Tuesday.

The philosophy of care at Glendale is to have each person develop to the absolute limit of his capacity, to keep active and keep trying.

Because progress may be slight by the usual standards, he conceeds the hospital's staff needs patience well beyond the average.

70 ON STAFF

There are both men and women among the registered nurses, practical nurses and child care aides who play with, assist and encourage patients. The staff, which numbers 70 now and will eventually reach about 175, does not wear uniforms.

"Glendale is really a home for these people (patients) and we do everything we can to give it a homelike atmosphere," said McMahon. "At home you wouldn't wear a uniform."

Although most of the patients will likely remain in hospital a lifetime, Glendale's program is still geared to bring them if possible to the point where they can move back to their parents' homes or into boarding homes.

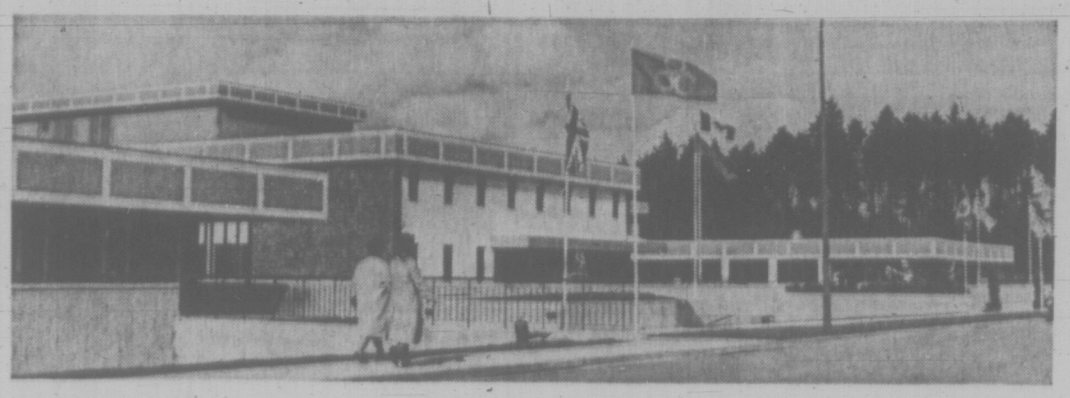
McMahon said the hospital will be getting buses soon and this means the youngsters will be able to get a look at the community.

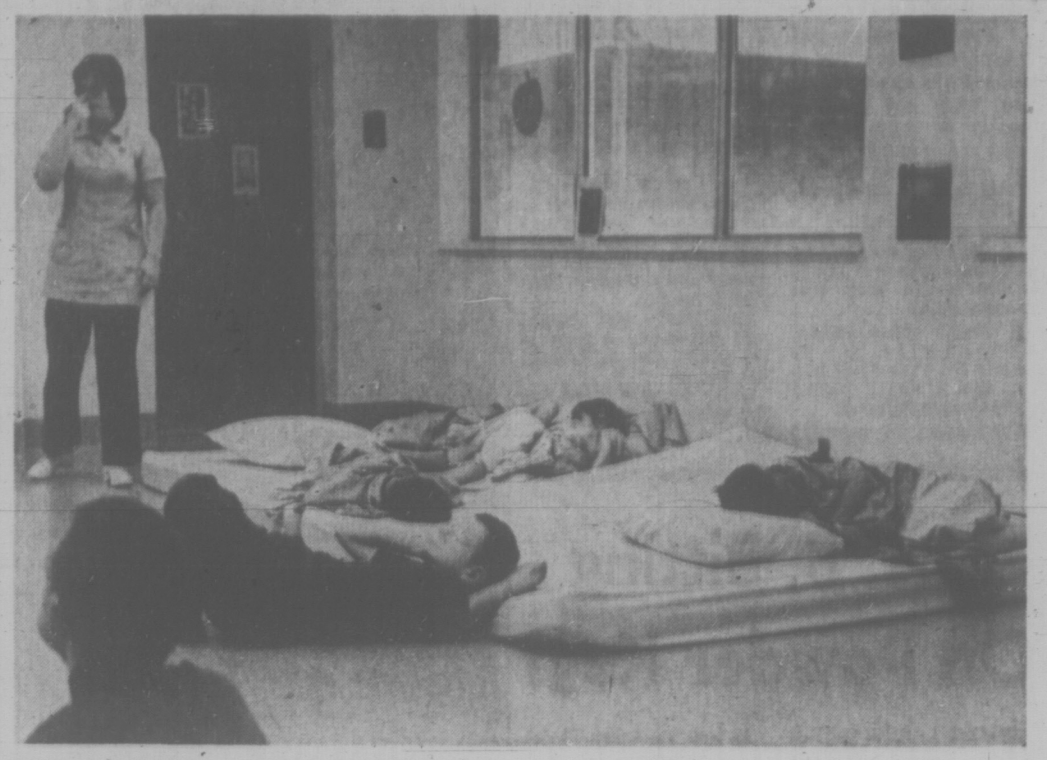
"We want to get them out to see the things and enjoy the things other kids enjoy."

That will mean such things as picnics and beach visits, perhaps movies and tours of attractions like the Undersea Gardens.

Do these youngsters have the capacity to gain from such experiences?

McMahon said there is no way to precisely measure the gains but even the smallest are worthwhile.





TWIN HANDICAPS of mental retardation and physical disabilities don't stop young patients at Glendale Hospital from being active to the limit of their capacity during the day. They play on the floor to avoid injuries falling from furniture. Hospital staff spent hours of their own time decorating rooms with Halloween cut-outs to welcome recent arrivals. Construction of Glendale began five years ago and Tuesday workmen were planting shrubbery in flower beds before main entrance (left) in preparations for official opening by Premier Bennett this afternoon. Before the Judge

A 19-year-old man who tried to get a refund on a pair of slacks at The Bay under another name, was sentenced Tuesday by Judge William Ostler to four months definite and eight months indeterminate in prison for attempted fraud.

Douglas Nelson, 1837 Haultain, court was told, said he found the slacks in a bag in Bastion Square. They were valued at $29.95.

A security officer testified that Nelson tried to get a refund at the store about 2:15 p.m. Oct. 5. Nelson pleaded guilty to attempted fraud.

Charles T. Staples, 68, of 835 Villance, was fined $100 when he pleaded guilty to committing an indecent act.

Mrs. B. Sitting On Powder Keg?

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP) — The problems that bred insurrection last April still pose a serious threat to the Socialist government of Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike.

"Nothing has changed since the insurrection and there is nothing to indicate the situation will improve," one Western diplomat observes.

Another, with terminology often used here, says: "At present, Mrs. B. is sitting on a powder keg with 15,000 detainees sitting in rehabilitation camps, the treasury broke and foreign debts mounting. Ceylon doesn't want the world to know this. She wants the continued picture of a tranquil island without problems."

Mrs. Bandaranaike begins a three-day visit to Canada Thursday.

Ceylon is a resplendent isle, with thousands of miles of white sandy beaches and jungles that form a magnificent backdrop against the man-made symmetry of tea, rubber and coconut estates.

But in the villages and cities, high unemployment and under-employment of the educated, rising living costs and young people's disenchantment with the government continue to keep discontent alive.

The people speak discreetly of "the trouble last April." In the early hours of April 5, insurrectionists launched a concerted attack against 74 police stations. They held control of several rural village areas before being put down about 20 days later by the armed services and police.

The government says 1,200 insurgents were killed; many people consider this estimate conservative. In addition, 15,000 insurgents were arrested or surrendered and were placed in rehabilitation camps where they remain.

REFORMS FEW

Most Ceylonese agree that the prime minister was surprised and shocked by the insurrection and the scope of its brutality. Perhaps more startling is that few positive reform programs have followed.

A leading Ceylonese educationist, who agreed to be interviewed but not identified, said: "The most unfortunate aspect of the post-insurrection period is that the government has become defensive, withdrawn and more unresponsive to the people."

In fact, successive Ceylonese governments have failed to make many hard decisions. When given independence by Britain 24 years ago the island had a large sterling reserve, a high level of literacy and an experienced political base.

"It all fell apart through government mismanagement and a huge drain on resources in supplying social services, some of the most ambitious in the world," says a Westerner who has lived in Ceylon for years.

In 1950, says the Central Bank of Ceylon, the foreign debt was 125 million rupees, or $26 million at the pre-devaluation exchange rate. In 1970, it was $263 million. This does not include $73 million owed the International Monetary Fund, $6 million to the International Bank for Reconstruction and almost $4 million to other development agencies.

Ulcer Aid 'Useless'

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Three Texas physicians reported Tuesday that common antacids available at drug store counters nearly doubled stomach acids in persons with duodenal ulcers.

The doctors, in a study presented to the clinical congress of the American College of Surgeons, also reported that common antacids may increase stomach acids in persons without duodenal ulcers, which rank among the top 10 killer diseases.

In treating duodenal ulcers, every effort is made to remove stomach acid since increased acids could irritate ulcers, the physicians noted.

Dr. David D. Reeder, assistant professor of surgery at the University of Texas medical school at Galveston, said the study showed calcium carbonate antacid given orally nearly doubled normal acid secretions in 12 patients with duodenal ulcers.

TRUCE CALL

So Let's Hear It For Our Girls

At first glance — namely in Wendy Dey's entertaining review of it—I was prepared to welcome Germaine Greer's new treatise, "The Female Eunuch," as a respite in The Battle of the Sexes. But then I began dipping into the book, itself, and it seems to me just another invitation to one more back-biting, meaningless skirmish in that old, cold war.

I don't happen to believe in the popular generalization, the war cry of the women liberationists, that the trouble with women is men. But I won't believe, either, as Miss Greer would have it, that the trouble with women is women. To carry it a step further, I believe that we're all our own worst enemies, male or female, as individuals, and it's time we declared a sexual truce.

This, it seems to me, would be the best time ever to re-issue a little-known book by the late Betty MacDonald whose best seller was "The Egg and I."

Her more obscure, more important work was titled, "Anybody Can Do Anything." If I were a young man or woman I'd seek my inspiration in that positive philosophy and start thinking of males and females as allies rather than combatants.

Miss Greer's book, like so many of those others that have emerged on this subject, dating clear back to the days of Emmeline Pankhurst, deals with stereotypes, not people. She props up cardboard cut-outs, labelled "Man" or "Woman" and invites the reader to identify with one and knock down the other. Thus the whole book is yet another rationalization calculated to widen, rather than narrow, the schism. It's a new viewpoint, especially coming from within their ranks, that women must accept the blame for any real or imagined inequality in today's society, but it is still a kind of academic, prejudicial jousting and I say the hell with it.

This stereotyping is no more evident than it is in Miss Greer's bitchy assessment of the roles of mother and wife and as the son of one and the husband of another I find it moderately infuriating. To define marriage, for instance, as an employer-employee relationship in which women are exploitable, is simply a dodge to sell books and by no means a truism of matrimony.

Miss Greer writes of women to whom the producing and raising of children becomes an "obsessive interest" and decides that child-bearing was never intended by biology as a time-consuming, self-conscious compensation for neglecting all other forms of fulfilment and achievement. She writes of the housewife whose mind is blunted and circumscribed and comes to "the dawning realization that a housewife's work has no results; it simply has to be done again."

★ ★ ★

As an illustration of how hateful women can be to other women this is a classic. Sure, there are slob women, just as there are slob men, but looking about at the wives and mothers I know I can't think of a single one so "obsessed" with bringing up children that it excludes all other interests. I can't think of a single one whose mind is "blunted and circumscribed" by the demands of housework. It can be demanding and tiresome, I know, but when Miss Greer says it has no results, that it simply has to be done again, she might be speaking of almost any kind of work, man's or women's. What else is a newspaperman's work, for example, but doing again what he did yesterday?

It all makes me wonder if I shouldn't be hard at work myself—and it would have to be man's work—on a book in praise of women's role and in praise of the way nine out of ten of them handle it.

When you come right down to it the job of "homemaker," either as wife or mother or both, must surely be the most challenging, the most demanding, the most rewarding, the most meaningful of all life's pursuits. That it is the least appreciated, as well, just makes it that more ennobling.

To Germaine Greer and to our Wendy Dey housework is "just a drag." For myself, having watched two women managing it proudly and serenely all the years of my life, I am convinced it is an art and a science. The making of a home "a drag"? The shaping and forming of children's characters and values "a drag"? The complementing of a partner's contribution "a drag"? Why, it is the one continuing function that all of society is built upon.

I think of the years when I was a correspondent in Latin America and in Europe, constantly on the move with a wife and three daughters, and the uncanny ability of that woman to create the environment of a home, the continuity of family life, against incredible odds. Yet these were just the extension of skills and management that are less dramatically demonstrated every day of the year in millions of suburban homes.

That it does occasionally prove so time-consuming and burdensome to women that their interests may be narrowed is inevitable, but it is my observation that just as many men whose jobs are demanding and fatiguing have exactly the same problem. The remarkable thing, really, is that women are increasingly able to widen their horizons culturally and intellectually, yet still find satisfaction and accomplishment in the home-maker role.

Certainly the stereotyping becomes ludicrious when Miss Greer elects to define marriage as an "employer-employee" relationship. When I think of the men I know who are guided by the instinct, wisdom, and imagination of the women they married, who'd have been lost without it, it seems to me that it is the truest of all partnerships, the perfect contract of give and take.

Women, as Miss Greer would have it, "owe their current sorry lot to the fact that that's what they are — a sorry lot." Sorry lot, indeed! They're magnificent.

A COUNTER-ATTACK has been launched at Work Point Barracks by the 700-strong 3rd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. Beginning last Thursday, each officer and man of the battalion will undergo a course in preventive dentistry, first learning how to properly use a tooth brush and working up, in order, to the dentist's chair position. Today's assault force was understandably reluctant to show off their "pearlies" on parade as they began operations, led by Lt.-Col. D. H. Protherde and Master WO S. E. Robertson of the base dental office.

POLLEN LIKELY IN MAYOR'S RACE

Ald. Peter Pollen's candidacy for mayor appears certain following a statement today that he will announce his intentions next week.

Pollen refused to commit himself at this stage but said he is "seriously considering" running.

Mayor Courtney Haddock is seeking a second two-year term. Saanich Ald. Foster Isherwood has also declared his candidacy, as has "lighthouse philosopher" Bill Scott.

Pollen had earlier denied an intention to run, and even gone as far as to publicly urge Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis and school board chairman Allan McKinnon to seek the position.

He said today, however, there has been considerable pressure on him to run for mayor.

'Sit and Listen' Forest Men Told

Executives of the Canadian forest industry were told today they should "sit still and listen" to environmental groups who criticize some industry practices.

W. D. Moore, managing director of the W. D. Moore Logging Co., Winter Harbor, B.C., was speaking to the annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Forestry in Victoria.

Moore said he believes that many of the so-called environment preservation programs advertised widely by forest product companies "are not simply environmental but are programs that bring about a more economical product."

SEEN THEM ALL

"The forest industry has played host not only to the solid business firm but has seen the gamblers, the quick-buck artists and the swindlers," Moore added.

He said there has been "too much short-signted economics and not enough long-term forestry" in the industry.

Moore accused both management and unions of the industry of letting old prejudices get in the way of real bargaining and discussions to prevent accidents and wasting money.

"The defensive attitudes of those in power — be it government or management — with the new voices of the environmental culture is not conducive to the proper atmosphere of really solving problems."

Moore told the meeting that "no one is infallible" so "why can't some of the policies of some forestry firms or forestry agencies or government be wrong once in a while . . . may I suggest the growth of thicker skins for leaders — and the regrowth of the old fashioned ability to sit still and listen."

Moore said there must be a SPEC, there must be a Sierra Club — and there must be an opposition. And that opposition must be respected and be listened to."

"The sad story is that so many firms are so defensive about pollution control they will not even listen to their own people . . ."

8.91% Pay Raise Devastating: Trustee

A decision to increase Vancouver teachers' pay by 8.91 per cent will have a devastating effect throughout the province, a Victoria trustee predicted today.

Greater Victoria trustee Peter Bunn said the decision of Vancouver school board Tuesday, coupled with the recently announced two per cent reduction in expenditures of large school districts, will be "very serious indeed" for the local educational scene.

He was referring to a statement earlier this month by Education Minister Donald Brothers that in 1972 school districts with budgets in excess of $3 million will be allowed to spend 108 per cent of the "basic education program" determined for those districts, instead of the 110 per cent coverage allowed in the past.

Bunn noted that if the Greater Victoria school board is faced with the same salary increase commitment as Vancouver the budget increase will not even cover the higher salary figure.

"In any case," he said, "I take it this 8.91 per cent is just a raw, basic increase. One would have to take into account also any fringe benefits that might accrue in the final agreement, and this could easily push the actual increase to 11 per cent on the payroll."

He charged that the trustees of the province are to blame for the present situation because of their failure to agree to a provincial scale for teachers' salaries.

OVERSHADOWS ALL

"If they had we would not be putting up with this nonsense. But so many of the boards revere this thing called autonomy. Unfortunately there is always one board that gives way and the rest follow suit."

Greater Victoria school board chairman Allan McKinnon said the seriousness of the situation can hardly be over-emphasized.

"It is of such concern to us that it overshadows everything else we have to think about over the next few months," he said.

McKinnon said on the basis of the revised finance formula the board's operating expenses come to $1.1 million, but if the pattern of the Vancouver wage settlement is followed the board will have to find $1.5 million.

"That leaves us with $400,000 to find from somewhere and no possibility of doing so on the budget we are allowed by the provincial government.

"Among the things that would have to go are the teachers themselves — there is just no other way," McKinnon added.

Sooke school trustee R. J. Anderson, who is in charge of salary negotiations for the board, declined comment on the Vancouver school board decision until after a meeting with teachers scheduled for next week.

He did say, however, that if Vancouver is committed to an increase "of that magnitude" this would have no automatic binding effect on local negotiations.

BASED ON AVERAGE

Vancouver school board chairman Fritz Bowers said the wage increase formula is based mainly on the average increase won by Vancouver workers this year. This is nine per cent, a much larger jump than was anticipated last year when the formula agreement was made.

The average teacher's salary in Vancouver is now $11,000. The increase would add about $3 million to the city's current $39 million teacher salary costs.

Highrises Mean High Tax, Expert Says

Traffic, Other Problems Would Result

Highrise construction on Victoria's waterfront means the public will be forced to pay higher costs for relieving resultant traffic congestion and related problems, an urban planning expert said today.

Prof. Leonard K. Eaton, of the University of Michigan's department of architecture, was here to open a showing of the architecture of Samuel Maclure at the Greater Victoria Art Gallery.

It's not going to do you any good to have highrises along the waterfront," Eaton said. "You will have to spend money to relieve downtown traffic congestion arising from the high density projects, plus construct additional parking facilities."

Eaton said taxpayers invariably have to pay the costs to solve these problems.

Eaton, who has wide experience in urben development and planning, praised the design of Centennial Square.

"I was so impressed that I wrote an article on it for the Journal of American Institute of Architecture," he said.

But, he expressed the hope that something would be done to preserve a "string of Chinese buildings" in downtown Victoria.

"They are excellent," he said, "But I realize their preservation poses a problem as most Chinese Canadians today live outside Chinatown."

Eaton also suggested the preservation of some of Victoria's residential districts, such as the St. Charles and Rockland areas. Many of Maclure's homes are in this district.

He said some U.S. cities, such as Charleston, South Carolina, had done this by zoning certain areas as historic districts.

The architect is also appalled at the damage superhighways are doing to urban and rural districts.

"I was glad they stopped the Spadina express highway in Toronto," he said.

"It's about time the engineer is checked," he said. "In the past he has had all the say."

Eaton says Victoria is still a pleasant place in which to live, but he warns this may not always be so if nothing is done to protect and preserve its amenities.

"It may have more open spaces than other cities," he said. But this does not mean that it has enough and should not have more."

THE FREEDOM FIGHTER engaged in guerrilla struggle on his invaded native soil commands my admiration. But the dissident national who leaves his birthland to find political asylum in Canada is not in the same position. As an immigrant, we can reasonably expect that he won't embarrass his adopted country by roughing up her guests. When he does so, as a young Hungarian did in Ottawa on Monday, he becomes a damned nuisance.

I don't think we can afford to have Canada used as a staging-ground for the hates of Europe. We have enough domestic discords of our own to settle, and a way to make for ourselves in a world that obviously does not intend to pamper us.

If you find this view pragmatic and even harsh, I'm sorry. But it becomes dismayingly plain that the golden future, so glibly prophesied by politicians of a more innocent era isn't going to fall into our hands like a ripe plum from a tree.

We need friends. It isn't necessary that we approve their ideologies, or subscribe to their operating methods. But we must establish good business relationships where we can, because without them we could be deep in trouble.

The United States, hitherto our best customer, hasn't seen fit to exempt Canada from its 10 per cent surcharge on imports. That dropping of preferential treatment by our neighbor is going to hurt.

The sight of Britian teetering on the edge of the European Common Market isn't conducive to easy optimism about our future trading prospects, either.

We may, in fact, be required to stand on our own national feet much more solidly than we have ever been forced to do before.

With these thoughts in mind, I find it hard to dispense sunshine, and harder still to maintain patience with self-appointed spokesmen for this or that race or religion who seem bent on turning the Kosygin tour of Canada into a saturnalia of loudmouthed protest.

Premier Kosygin came among us as the representative of a world power with which Canada has initiated industrial exchanges. Part of his errand is to talk about trade — a subject of extreme importance to Canadians.

That fact apart, Canada and Russia are on diplomatic terms. Each can be counted upon for hard bargaining, but to the best of my knowledge, there is no present quarrel between that country and ours.

This being so, I wish most heartily that we could be spared the troublemaking of those whose Canadianism runs much thinner than their desire to grind some other nation's axe.

No use to blame our immigration policies, either. With the possible exception of the Canadian Indian — and even he may be only the first-comer — we are all of immigrant stock. That's good. It makes for national vigor.

Nor is there any harm in honest pride in racial extraction, as long as it isn't permitted to stand in the way of a more vital consideration.

This is that we be Canadians, and that nothing in the way of racial baggage brought with us in the crossing takes precedence over being or becoming Canadian.

We haven't got as far as we should have with that endeavor. We'll be getting somewhere with it when we quit talking about "founding races" and "ethnic rights," and concentrate upon matters more vital to our progress.

In this I disagree most vehemently with Ottawa's recently-announced intention to make grants to ethnic groups for the preservation of their race cultures.

What's worth keeping will be preserved without any such self-conscious nonsense, as it has been from one generation to the next. It will help flavor the rich and wonderful Canadian melting-pot which has scarce begun to simmer as yet.

What we can't tolerate in our progress toward adult nationhood is to be lumbered up with imported hatreds of the sort visited on a guest of Canada this week. We have no place for them, and we should have none for any newcomer who persistently deals in them.

Ship's Engineer Fined $1,000 For Fouling Harbor With Oil

The second engineer of a Liberian cruise ship was fined $1,000 in Victoria provincial court today for pumping an oily mixture into the Inner Harbor where his ship was bertied Oct. 6.

Neil D. Clarke of the ship West Star pleaded guilty to contravening the federal oil pollution prevention regulations. Maximum fine is $5,000.

Robert Baird, Department of Transport steamship inspector, testified that he received a complaint Oct. 7 from the Undersea Gardens.

Baird said he traced the slick to the West Star and spoke to Clarke, the senior engineer on board at the time.

The accused admitted pumping the bilges into the harbor from 8:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. the night before.

The inspector said he suggested the ship take such mixtures away in a tanker truck and this was done later.

The ship's company also hired a firm to clean up the oil in the harbor.

He estimated the slick to be 800 feet by 70 feet.

Baird said there was a strong smell of diesel oil from the slick and divers from Undersea Gardens had to swim around it.

Judge William Ostler said the offence was one of "utmost gravity" as the Inner Harbor was "an area well known to persons aboard" the West Star.

All Hail the Defence! Cougars Trip Cents

BILL WALKER

General manager Eric Bishop of the Cougars suggested at the start of the current season that the operation of this year's hockey club would be an open book. The Cougars would give all they had, and hopefully, there would be much to marvel at.

This was only the beginning, it was stressed. And no, it wasn't really expected that the Cougars would be a power in the Western Canada League; but yes, every effort would indeed be made to achieve such a goal within a few years.

"Lord, we're trying," was the keynote address.

That was before the season began a few short days ago, and it was more or less expected that the Cougars would get burned the first time out, and perhaps the next three or four as well. There were few dissenters.

But lo, and behold, they quickly won a pair, then lost a game in overtime to the Calgary Centennials, a game they should have won, or as coach Fred Hucul said: "We can't afford too many of those."

Then came a road trip. It wasn't exactly a disaster, although they lost three games. But they did come up a little short.

"We still are a little weak up front," said Hucul. "Our defence was not too bad; and I'm happy with the goalkeeping."

"The forwards aren't coming back to help out the defenceman," he said in a capsule analysis of the team's main shortcoming.

Meanwhile, any significant changes would come only at the discretion of other team managers. Players aren't that easy to come by. But the Cougar management was still looking.

"Scotty (Munro) has helped," Bishop said again Tuesday before the Cougars game with Munro's Calgary Centennials at Memorial Arena. "The others haven't." Bishop had travelled west with Munro from a league meeting in Regina.

"But let's face it, we still have to get a couple of hockey players."

Then last night there was a return test against Calgary. And if the Cougars had been listening in to the management plans, it couldn't have worked out any better.

In the vernacular of the times, they came up big. Very big.

There was no real concept evident of not being supposed to beat those ranked above them. If this was tougher than before, because they had lost an earlier game to the Centennials, it was also a gutsy performance in the end.

For these are uninhibited youngsters with a will to do better. Full of youth, and in front of their home-town friends, it did them goo to win.

They sat a little straighter in the dressing room after the 3-1 triumph over Calgary. A good showing was being appreciated by the coach.

"How many goals is that for Strach (Tim)?" asked a Calgary reporter. "Six," answered a happy coach. And for Len Chalmers, who had come to the Cougars from Calgary? "Four," said Hucul proudly.

●

Then he added significantly:

"You know, this was a great team effort tonight—and that's what we have to have every game. These kids are young—oh, so young, some of them, and green, and sure, it got a little shaky out there at times, but they came through."

Meanwhile, the blithe spirits were whooping it up in the other room. The players had more than a little to talk about. It was good to be admired again, and they were taking full advantage of it.

By mentioning youth, Hucul was looking ahead to the future, next season. Rick Kennedy had scored his first goal. "He's from Anchorage," said Hucul," hasn't had the experience of some of the others,but is going to get better."

"Boy, did that kid put on a checking demonstration especially near the end," he said. "He's been unfortunate not to score, but the goals will come. He had a fine game."

There were other comments, such as; " he's only 17 . . . we've got him for three years . . . yes, he's 16" . . . but one victory a season doesn't make.

For all this is headier stuff than most of the Cougars have been engaged in before. And if, for some, it is a career in the making, there will be many disappointments along the trail ahead.

And it's true, too, that the club may lose more than it will win this year. If that's a sobering fact, last night's win still stands as a proud one for the record of achievement.

For with about six minutes to go it was the Cougars ahead by two, which is as it was when Calgary last played here — and won. And there wasn't a fan in the house who wasn't recalling that game, and wondering if it might happen again.

It didn't, or as Hucul again said:

"We came up big — as a team."

Which after all, is all a coach can ask for, isn't it?

Fine Skating Display Ends Calgary Win Streak

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Calgary Centennials' coach Scotty Munro felt his charges required breathing room but Victoria Cougars refused to allow any, and the Western Canada Hockey League is without an unbeaten team after 16 days of operation.

Cougars' 3-1 Tuesday night victory over Calgary before 1,909 fans at Memorial Arena, officially sealed an hour after Saskatoon Blades tagged New Westminster with the Bruins' first setback, 7-4, removed the last from the undefeated bracket.

Such distinction won't pay the rent or buy bread, but it pleasures the Cougars because it atoned for Victoria's 5-4 overtime loss to Calgary last week.

It also snapped a four-game losing streak, showed a Victoria rebounding quality, and carried Cougars into third place, two points behind the Western Division co-leading Calgary and Edmonton Oil Kings.

Tim Struch, Len Chalmers and Rick Kennedy supplied the Victoria goals, but it was an alert defence that laid the foundation for Cougars' third triumph of the season.

The defence and perhaps the lack of breathing room.

"Our guys are falling all over the place," he noted during the game, "but the Cougars aren't . . . so it can't be the ice.

"Must be the atmosphere," he reasoned. "We're rested, but the Cougars have come off a tough road trip, and still are skating circles around my guys."

After the game, Munro reported that several of his players did, indeed, have trouble breathing.

Fedorak Made Only One Mistake

The poorest chance of all allowed rookie Derek Black to score Calgary's only goal from an almost-impossible angle. It stemmed from two successive defensive miscues by Victoria.

First, a weak checking attempt allowed Bob Nystrom to carry the puck into Victoria's zone. Second, Nystrom's passing shot shouldn't have been allowed to pass across the Victoria goalcrease.

Cougar goalie Darryl Fedorak failed to deflect the puck, was slow in recovering, and Black punched the puck home from an extremely sharp angle.

But Fedorak made amends with a steady performance that grew strongest in the second half of the game.

He made a sensational save early in the third period, and while Cougars were protecting a 2-1 lead. While it may have been missed by many fans, Fedoruk got a piece of the puck when fired by Mike Rogers during a wild melee in front of Cougars' goal.

"That was the turning point of the game," said Victoria coach Fred Hucul. "I just couldn't believe that Fedorak was able to get to the puck in time."

When Kennedy counted his first foal of the season about 10 minutes later, that was all the breathing room Cougars needed.

Forechecking Tactics Pay Off

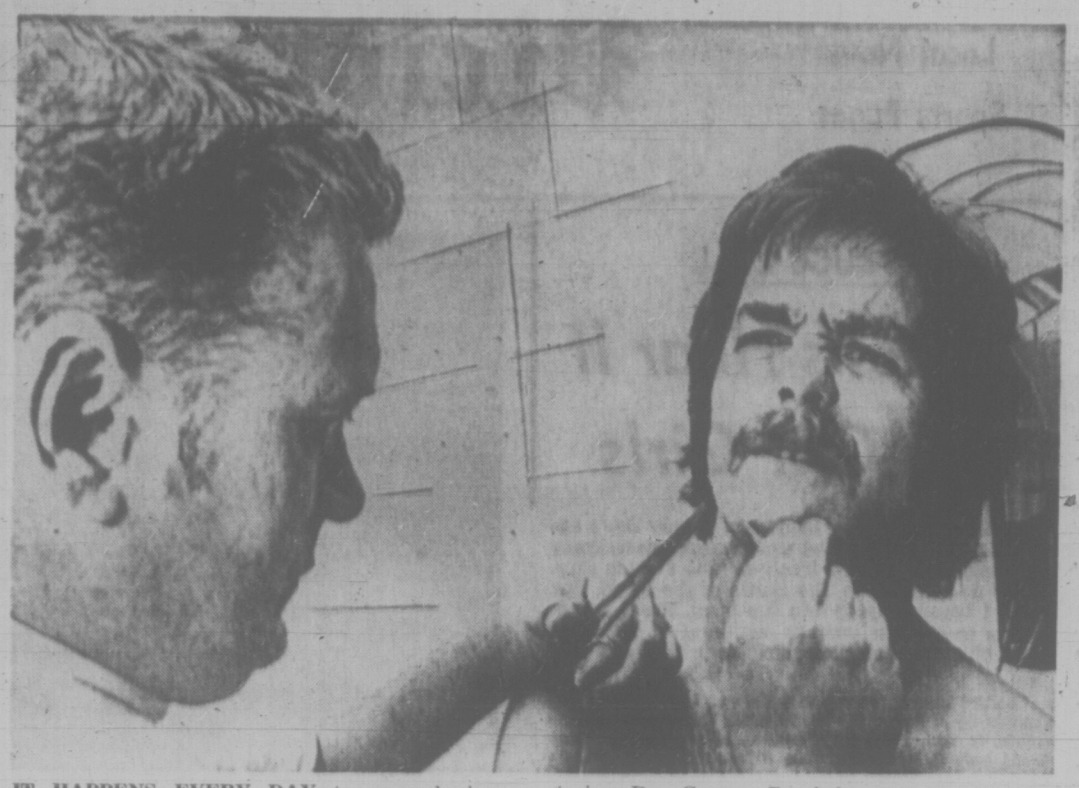
While the Centennials did have skating problems, some of the blame might be attached to Cougars fore-checking efforts. The Cougars, whose scoring chances also were kept to a minimum, looked best when they pestered the Centennials in the Calgary zone.

Cougars' standouts were defencemen Jim Atamanenko, Murray Kennett and Jack McIlhargry. Atamanenko and Kennett, in particular, came up strong with some alert clearing and their ability to move the puck out of Victoria's zone.

The Cougars, who shared evenly the game's 14 minor penalties with Calgary, also showed effectiveness in the penalty-killing department.

The Cougars played without winger Gary Howatt, a standout in Victoria's first three homes games. Howatt suffered a knee injury at the weekend but is expected to resume skating today and will probably play Saturday night when Cougars face Medicine Hat Tigers at the Arena.

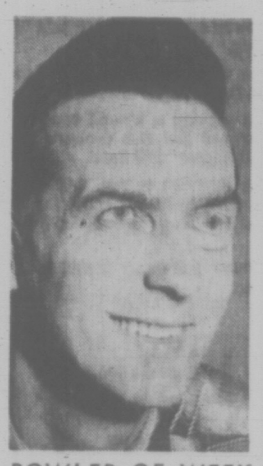
Calgary, served best by wingers Doug Horbul, Ron Homenuke and Nystrom, suffered a setback when centre Brian Walker picked up a charley-horse in the opening period. Although he remained in the game, Calgary's best centre was obviously hampered by the injury.



IT HAPPENS EVERY DAY to some hockey player, but it always hurts. Derek Sanderson's face mirrors discomfort as penalty-killing ace of Boston Bruins has stitches taken from cut on chin by trainer Dan Canney. Derek hopes to escape additional needlework at Boston Gardens tonight when Bruins meet Detroit Red Wings in National Hockey League game. Bruins are in third place.

FIFTH TIME FOR MAPLE LEAF VETERAN

Armstrong Retires . . . Again



TORONTO (CP) — George Armstrong, a veteran of 19 years in the National Hockey League, retired—again—today as a player with Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Chief, as he was affectionately called around the league, was placed on the Leafs reserve list but he was given front-office duties that will include assisting coach John McLellan and preparing scouting reports.

It marked the fifth time Armstrong has retired in the last five years, but this retirement took on an air of permancy with the added duties of assisting Leafs' executive personnel.

His 296 career goals ties him with former Leaf Frank Mahovlich as the highest scorer ever to wear a Toronto uniform. His lifetime totals during regular season play also includes 417 assists and 713 points.

The 41-year-old right winger, born at Bowlands, Ont., turned pro with the old Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League during the 1950-51 season and moved up to the parent Leafs for 20 games the next season.

CAPTAIN 11 SEASONS

He'd been a permanent fixture here since. He served 11 seasons, from 1958 to 1969, as the club's captain. He surrendered that job to Dave Keon in 1970.

"This is the first time I've had any help," he told a news conference today when asked if this retirement was permanent. "The other times was my idea."

His four earlier retirements were announced in the month of September, but each time Leaf management prevailed upon him to return to the active roster because of his settling influence on the younger players.

General manager Jim Gregory said Armstrong would remain on the reserve list, meaning he could be activated as a player again if Leafs run into injury problems.

"He's not going to play as of right now," said Gregory, leaving little doubt that Leafs would use the right winger again if the need arises.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Twice winner of Bowler-of-the-Year title, Stan Jones has assured himself of another shot at rolloff crown by capturing men's fivepin honors in second week of ninth annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest. Stan earned weekly award and qualified for rolloffs by topping division with slick 224-346-366—936 series at Gibson's Bowladrome.

Canucks Stop Singing Those St. Louis Blues

ST. LOUIS — Vancouver Canucks are already rewriting their personal record book. The Canucks Tuesday night won their first game ever here with a 3-1 victory over the Blues.

Last year, the best the Canucks could do was one tie.

Mike Corrigan sparked the win as the Canucks moved into second place in the National Hockey League East, one point behind the New York Rangers.

He scored two goals. Wayne Maki got the other.

Gene Carr, the No. 1 draft choice for the Blues, broke Dune Wilson's bid for a shutout midway through the final period. Wilson blocked 36 shots. Rookie goalkeeper Peter McDuffe stopped 31 for St. Louis. Canucks led 3-0 at the end of the second period.

It was Vancouver's second win on the road this year, and tonight the Canucks hope to make it three against the Minnesota North Stars. They return home for a game against Montreal Canadiens on Friday.

In other games tonight, Detroit goes to Boston, California Golden Seals are at home to Montreal, Buffalo Sabres meet the Maple Leafs in Toronto, and Pittsburg Penguins are host to Los Angeles Kings.

Meanwhile, Detroit General Manager Ned Harkness in reflecting on the retirement this season of all-star right winger Gordie Howe, said in Boston:

"Howe was Howe. You don't replace such stars very easily."

Howe retired before training camp opened this fall after establishing NHL records of 786 goals and 1,023 assists in his 25-year span with Detroit.

"But the time comes when everybody must end a career and the team has to carry on without him," Harkness said.

Bruins Suffer First Defeat

New Westminster Bruins had their claws clipped Tuesday night, dropping their first game in three Western Canada Hockey League starts this season.

Bruins fell victim to Saskatoon Blades, who blasted in four goals during the third period en route to a 7-4 home-ice victory.

In the other game Tuesday, Swift Current Broncos topped visiting Regina Pats 6-5 in overtime to climb into a second place Eastern Division tie with Saskatoon and Brandon Wheat Kings.

Doug Manchak led the Saskatoon triumph with two goals while singles came from Pat Price, Ralph Klassen, Russ Walker, Fred Williams and Tom Pinder.

Rookie Kelly Pratt scored one minute and 32 seconds into the first overtime period to give Swift Current the victory.

Ed Lang scored for Broncos with three minutes left in regulation time to force the extra session after Dennis Sobchuk had scored his third goal of the game earlier in the third period to give Pats a temporary lead.

BLESSING FROM NHL PRESIDENT . . . IF THEY CAN BE SUCCESSFUL

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Tuesday he will "treat the World Hockey Association as legitimate operators coming into the hockey field."

"And I say God bless them if they can be successful," Campbell said.

"We will take a normal competitive position with respect to the acquisition of talent, and we will not take an obstructive position in any way."

He said there would be no NHL moves to block WHA radio or television coverage and he thought the WHA would be able to play on NHL rinks.

"If they want to play on our rinks and we have the dates open, I am quite sure that they will be welcome," he said.

Three owners of franchises in the Western Canada Hockey League — Bill Hunter of Edmonton Oil Kings, Scotty Munro of Calgary Centennials and Benny Hatskin of Winnipeg Jets — have a good chance of being awarded WHA franchises.

The league organizers plan to award franchises at a meeting in New York in November.

Currently the NHL gives about $10,000 annually to teams in the WCHL and there has been some speculation that the NHL would be indirectly subsidizing the WHA if the three WCHL owners get franchises."

"The NHL makes its half-yearly payments to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association Dec. 1 and the situation should be clarified by then.

"It may be that as professional franchise holders, these clubs will not be allowed to operate junior teams but that's a matter to be settled in due course.

"But if these three teams become franchise holders in the other league (WHA) then we will be under no compulsion to subsidize them," he said.

Zuger Busy Kicker

Quarterback Joe Zuger has had problems moving the Hamilton Tiger-Cat offence against rival Canadian Football League clubs this season — and it's reflected in his punting statistics.

Zuger kicked the ball away 130 times in 12 games, a punting total second only to Billy Van Burkleo of Calgary Stampeders, who has punted 133 times in 13 games.

Meanwhile, Don Jonas of Winnipeg Blue Bombers appears to have sewn up both the Western Conference and league scoring championship with a 32-point lead over Saskatchewan Roughriders' Jack Abendschan.

Jets Smaller, But They Have Big Ideas

(Tenth of a Series)

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Unbalanced Schedule Winnipeg Peril

Winnipeg Jets are not packing as much weight as did last year's squad, but they hope to stand taller when the Western Canada Hockey League's final 1971-72 standings are declared.

Third-place finishers in the Eastern Division, the Jets brought their fans rushing when they upset first-place Estevan Bruins in the semi-final round last spring. Flin Flon Bombers broke the bubble in the divisional final.

With the loss of 50-goal scorer Wayne Chernecki, defenceman Neil Komadoski, and other players, the Jets didn't figure to be as big, physically, as they were last season.

Also lost through graduation were 30-goal scorer Ross Butler, goalies Mike Schneider and Al Simmons and defenceman Mike Legge.

"A strong defence and better scoring balance" may pick up some of the slack for coach Nick Mickoski.

Frank Turnbull, who shared most of the netminding chores with Schneider last season, has been sharp. The backup role remains a tossup, but 18-year-old Clay Hebenton may be moving on the inside track.

The Hebenton name is known. Clay's father, Andy, came out of Winnipeg junior ranks to establish himself as professional hockey's all-time "iron-man."

At centre, Reg Malinoski will try to make the fans forget Chernecki, who racked up 123 points to rank as the league's fifth highest scorer.

"Gatewise," says owner Benny Hatskin, "we could be heading for our greatest season."

On paper, the Jets look solid. On ice, they play their greatest number of games against Brandon Wheat Kings and Flin Flon. The unbalanced schedule could work against Winnipeg. Perhaps a slip to fourth, but definitely in the playoffs.

NEXT: Saskatoon Blades.

OUTDOORS with Stewart Lang

While there is obviously no simple cure-all for the problem of water degradation by logging and its detrimental affects on both salmon and trout; much can be done within our present technology toward relieving the situation.

And the ultimate cost of "relief" for our stocks of resident and anadromous salmonoid fish will likely be exacted from the consumer, not the producer, of wood products. Unfortunate as this may be, it is a price which must be paid if we wish to retain an adequate fisheries resource.

But specific action can only stem from the timber industry, either voluntarily or under the threat of prosecution.

In fact, as we stated in a column earlier this month, the latter motivation may actually become the most common as fish and wildlife branch personnel become fed up with "jawboning" and educational talks with the forest industry that has produced little co-operation in some areas.

This does not mean that all logging companies operate entirely in a mercenary vein. One case of voluntary action (or is it non-action?) which springs to mind involves Pacific Logging Company land southeast of Shawnigan Lake — where a green strip of trees was left around the small jewel of Jarvis Lake.

The plan should include proper layout, construction and maintenance of logging roads, cutting and handling of trees to provide minimum disturbance, provision for a filter strip of vegetation beside streams and lakes, and measures to stabilize an area after logging is completed.

Logging roads should be located so as to produce a minimum of damage to both soil and water by avoiding unstable soil areas; routes through the bottom of canyons or steep, naturally dissected terrain; marshes, ponds and natural drainage channels; or closely following rivers or streams.

Where there is no alternative, corrective stabilization measures should be incorporated into the road design.

But we have found these measures, which must be known to the forestry engineers who design the roads, largely ignored in a number of Island locations.

In addition to the increased sediment load in streams caused by erosion of soil from the surface of logging areas and roads, water degradation may stem from organic leaching products and increased temperatures.

Organic leaching products are caused by water percolating through slash, which is a rather loose term to describe the foliage, branches, bark, rotten material, roots and wood — either too small or of too low a quality for present-day use.

As the organic material decomposes, there is a measurable increase in the amount of dissolved chemicals and plant nutrients in nearby forest streams. Growth of bacterial slimes and algae indicates a lower quality of water and a decrease in the dissolved oxygen content from saturation levels of 12 milligrams per litre down to the lethal level for for fish to two mg per litre may also be present.

Happily, on the Island most slash is disposed of by burning. But is ash in streams a preferable alternative?

Another consideration is the increase in water temperature (from 14 to 16 degrees Fahrenheit) that is caused by logging right to the edge of streams. This temperature increase as well as other pollution may be felt in larger streams and rivers far from the actual logging site.

★ ★ ★

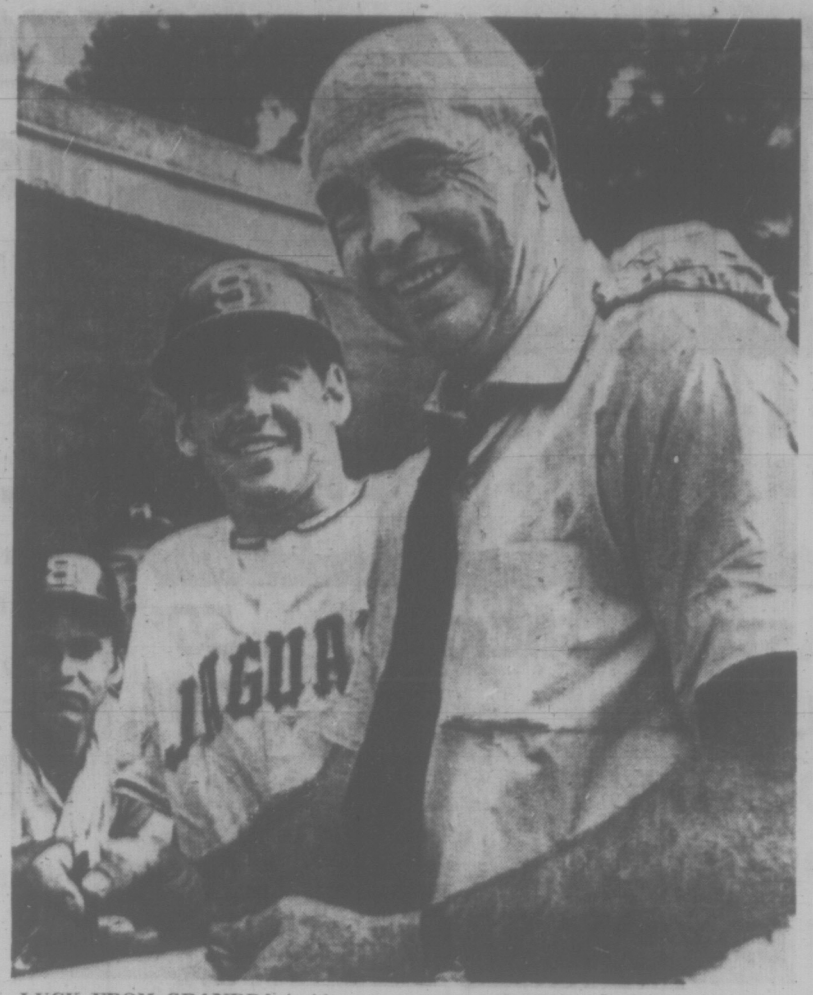
The solution to many of these pollution problems is to leave a buffer of filter strip of trees along the stream edge.

This green strip can filter out much of the sediment and waste material while preventing an increase in water temperature and preserving the natural beauty of the stream.

One other measure to preserve water quality which is not carried out to any extent on the Island is a restoration program after the logging is finished. This consists mainly of removing any stream barriers and stabilizing roads, skid trails, landings and firelines by revegitation. Planting herbaceous vegetation such as grasses on the severly disturbed areas would help prevent soil erosion.

And so, although a closer liaison now exists between organizations — both governmental and private — concerned with fish, wildlife and forestry, we can see much remains to be done.

All that is needed is the desire to do it.



LUCK FROM GRANDPA is idea as Los Angeles manager Walter Alston autographs bat of grandson, Robert Ogle, prior to junior college baseball game Tuesday at Miami. Ogle said he expected some "special luck" after learning that Alston had topped Associated Press poll as major league manager of year for fifth time.

Alston Gets Award; Lauds Pirate Pilot

NEW YORK (AP) — Venerable Walt Alston of Los Angeles Dodgers, who says "I can't think of anything I'd rather do than manage," was named today as the Associated Press' manager of the year in the National League for the fifth time.

The 59-year-old Alston, in his 18th season as manager of the Dodgers, piloted Los Angeles to a second-place finish in the NL's West Division. Los Angeles wound up one game behind San Francisco after trailing the Giants by eight games going into the final month of the season.

Alston, whose 18 consecutive seasons with the same club is tops among active major league managers, received 72 votes from a country-wide group of sports writers and radio-television commentators.

Charlie Fox, in his first full season as San Francisco manager, was a close second with 65 votes. Danny Murtaugh, the 1970 manager of the year who led Pittsburgh Pirates to this year's World Series championship, wound up third in balloting with 57 votes. The voting was based only on regular season performances.

The affable Alston, however, paid tribute to Murtaugh's effort. "That guy in Pittsburgh did quite a job," said Alston.

Alston was named NL manager of the year in 1955, 1959, 1965 and 1966, all seasons in which he guided the Dodgers to the league championship. He also took them to the NL title in 1956 and 1963.

Dick Williams of Oakland Athletics was named earlier in the week as American League manager of the year.

HONORS IN EASTERN CONFERENCE VOTED TO MEL PROFIT, JIM FOLEY

The six-foot-five, 230-pounder from New York City succeeds teammate Bill Symons as winner of the award which goes to the Eastern Football Conference player exhibiting highest qualities of courage, fair play and sportsmanship.

Running-back Jim Foley, an Ottawa native who climaxed a brilliant career at the University of Prince Edward Island by being named Canada's top college player two years ago, was named the EFC's outstanding rookie of the 1971 season.

Nominees for the two honors were selected by players of their respective teams and voted on by the EFC's officiating staff.

Profit, 30, is second in pass receptions in the league with 36 catches for 682 yards and five touchdowns.

Foley, 23, who is used principally as a slotback, has caught 19 passes. He ranks fourth in punt returns and third in kickoff returns.

Free-Spender Gets 'Curse of Coaches'

EDMONTON (CP) — Leo Cahill, controversial coach of the free-spending Toronto Argonauts, was named Canadian Football League coach-of-the-year Tuesday night.

Cahill, 43, who inherited the team when Bob Shaw defected to New Orleans Saints of the National Football League in 1967, is the first Argonaut coach to receive the award since its inception in 1961.

With the honor Cahill takes what has become known as the curse of the coaches. Frank Clair of Ottawa Rough Riders is the only coach to receive the award and guide his team to a Grey Cup victory.

Clair was coach-of-the-year in 1969 when the Riders downed Saskatchewan Roughriders 29-11 for the cup. He also won the honor in 1966, the year Saskatchewan clobbered his club 29-14 in the final.

CAN'T GET THE CUP

Cahill, one of the less popular coaches in the league, has guided the Argos to 46 wins and 30 losses in five seasons, but his hopes for a Grey Cup game always have been thwarted.

Rough Riders have ousted Toronto from the Eastern Football Conference finals twice in the last three seasons. Montreal Alouettes knocked them out of the semi-final in 1970.

Argos now lead the EFC with 10 wins and three losses, four games ahead of second-place Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

LEO CAHILL
. . . pilot of year

Cahill's success this year has been attributed to vast sums of money which the club poured out to attract good players from the United States, among them quarterbacks Joe Theismann and Greg Barton and lineman Jim Stillwagon.

Cahill considers himself emotional, sly, dedicated, a nice guy and a good football coach. He can't understand why most people, many of whom don't even know him, have such a negative opinion of him.

"My personality has been portrayed here (CFL) in a false light," he once said.

STARTED AT ILLINOIS

Cahill, a former coach of Toronto Rifles of the Continental League, played centre at University of Illinois and was the only freshman on the team that romped to a 45-14 win over UCLA in the 1946 Rose Bowl.

Cahill was lured to the Alouettes in 1960 by former Illinois team-mate Perry Moss. He worked there under Jim Trimble in 1963 and for five games in 1964 and then quit to enter public relations work.

STARTED AIRLIFT

In April 1965 he was tipped to the head coaching job with the Rifles, applied and was accepted.

When he took over the Argos, he instituted the famous "Argo airlift" in which many Toronto rejects ultimately developed into stars with the other eight CFL clubs.

In 1969, he signed a four-year contract worth an estimated $100,000.

Mets Trade Shamsky

NEW YORK (AP) — Veteran outfielder Art Shamsky and three minor league pitchers have been traded by New York Mets to St. Louis Cardinals for reliever Chuck Taylor and three other players.

Shamsky, 29, a left-handed hitter, played three years for Cincinnati Reds before being traded to the Mets for infielder-Bob Johnson after the 1967 season.

Bothered by a back injury suffered in July, Shamsky hit only .185 with five home runs and 18 runs batted in last season.

Taylor posted a 3-1 record with three saves and a 3.55 earned-run average in his third year with the Cardinals last season. He made one start.

The Mets also sent right-hander Jim Bibby, 15-6 with Tidewater, left-hander Rich Folkers, 7-11 at Tidewater, and left-handed Charlie Hudson, 1-2 at Memphis as a reliever, to St. Louis.

The Cardinals also sent first baseman-outfielder Jim Beauchamp, 32, who hit .235 mostly as a pinch hitter with St. Louis last season, to the Mets and assigned right-handed pitcher Harry Parker and infielder Tom Coulter to Tidewater. Parker was 11-12 for the Cardinals' Tulsa club last season, and Coulter hit .238 for Tulsa.

Claremont, Mt. Doug Lead in First Races

Mount Douglas and Claremont emerged as winners Monday as the first races of the Victoria and District Senior High Schools Cross-Country League got underway.

Kathy Sapsford of Mt. Doug finished first in the girls' two-mile run, covering the distance in 12 minutes, 37 seconds. Victoria High's Bev Cox was second and Debby Reid of Mt. Douglas placed third.

On the reverse-order scoring system, Mt. Doug leads the girls' division with 18 points. Vic High has 36, Claremont, 39, and Oak Bay, 45.

KIRKHAM WINS

Richard Kirkham of Oak Bay ran 4.2 miles in 21 minutes, 28 seconds, to take that event. Jim Thorne of Mt. Doug was second and Al Weicker of Oak Bay, third.

Claremont leads the boys' division with 43 points, followed by Oak Bay with 47, Vic High, 58, and Mt. Doug, 78.

League winners will be determined on the lowest aggregate scores over a period of Monday races for the next seven weeks.

Eight-Ender

Jim McGregor's foursome of Fred and Marg Provencial and Alan McGregor scored an eight-ender Tuesday night while defeating tht K. R. McCulloch rink 21-1 in a league curling encounter at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Kathy Keeps Money Title

ATLANTA (AP) — The final official earnings figures for 1971 show Kathy Whitworth the leading money winner of the Ladies Professional Golf Association for the second straight year with $41,182.

The Dallas golfer increased her earnings by nearly $11,000 over her 1970 total of $30,235.

The biggest advance was by Jane Blalock of Portsmouth, N.H., who last year finished 13th with earnings of just over $12,000 and this year finished third with $32,492.

GEORGE ATHANS PACES TITLE TRIUMPH

Western Skiers Win Cup

PAPEETE, Tahiti (CP) — Led by world-champion George Athans of Kelowna, B.C., a team of eight Western Hemisphere water skiers won the World Cup, beating Europe and the South Pacific in the championships that ended Sunday.

Athans, who won the world title in Spain last month, also added a silver in the jumping event and a bronze in the slalom to his team gold medal.

The Western Hemisphere team won the cup with a total of 8,508.234 points for the slalom and jumping events. Europe was second with 9,441.713 and the South Pacific, represented by New Zealand and Australia, was third with 8,236.389.

In the individual competition, Bruce Cockburn of Australia took the over-all gold medal. Mike Suyderhout of the United States won the slalom with a mark of 28 buoys and 1,000 points and took the jumping title with a distance of 41.15 metres good for 1,000 points.

Athans got second in the jumping with a distance of 41.85 metres for 981.310 points and placed third in the slalom with 28.

The Western Hemisphere team also included Pierre Pocuffe of Sherbrookt, Que., four Americans, an Argentine and a Colombian.

Lakers Sparkle With Sharman at Helm

By The Associated Press

Los Angeles Lakers have not won a National Basketball Association championship since moving to the West Coast from Minneapolis in 1961, although they have three of the league's all-time superstars in Elgin Baylor, Wilt Chamberlain and Jerry West.

Now they have added a fourth star, who may make the Lakers shine more than ever: Coach Bill Sharman, who guided Utah Stars to last season's American Basketball Association championship.

Sharman, a former star player with Boston Celtics, has seen the Lakers produce three glittering performances in their first three games. The latest was a 123-106 romp over Buffalo Braves Tuesday night.

HYDE LEADS CLUB RIDERS

Terry Hyde was named Tuesday as the top Victoria Motorcycle Club rider of 1971 following compilation of points won throughout the season.

Hyde, who finished in a tie for first place with Martin Spriggs at the final cross-country meet of the season Sunday, won the two previous races. Spriggs placed second overall while Wayne Grimm was third.

Soggy Golf Start

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (Reuter) — Heavy rain halted the opening foursomes matches today only two hours after the start of the Commonwealth amateur golf tournament on the Middlemore course here.

With at least two greens waterlogged, it was not immediately known when play would resume in the foursomes. Tournament officials decided to reschedule today's singles for Friday.

When rain drove the players off the course, Britian and Canada were each ahead in one match and level in the third. New Zealand was leading in all three foursomes against Australia.

If an Athlete Can Ski, Who Cares If He's Advertising?

TONY SAILER SAYS OLYMPICS SHOULD BE OPEN

ALTA LAKE, B.C. (CP) — The usually-placid voice with the German accent filled a small room in the Chikemus Inn, a ski lodge near the base of Whistler Mountain.

"Amateur. Professional. What is the difference?"

Toni Sailer was convinced of the answer years ago when he was threatened with expulsion from amateur skiing.

"There is no difference," he said as he remembered the day he pleaded his case before the International Ski Federation in Switzerland.

"Money doesn't help to win, you know. Nobody is interested finally if an athlete makes money or not. Let's say he's ski racing. As long as he can ski, nobody really cares if he's advertising."

In 1956 at the age of 21, Sailer stunned the ski world by scoring the Olympic grand slam at Cortina d'Ampezzo, taking first-place gold medals in downhill, slalom and giant slalom. It had never happened before.

Two years later, the native of Kitzbuechel, Austria, went to Berchtesgaden for the world championships and won the downhill, giant slalom and combined titles. In the slalom he came second.

It was as world champion that Sailer ruffled the feathers of the International Ski Federation by appearing in a German movie.

"I did a movie that didn't have anything to do with skiing," he recalled during a recent sojourn at Whistler Mountain, where he and Nancy Greene Raine were among instructors at a ski school.

"I was working for 2½ months, or three months, and they told me it wasn't allowed. I was an amateur skier and couldn't make a movie. I said: 'Why can't I make a movie?' Then they asked me to change my name, and things like this.

"It was disgusting that they would say that. In the end, they didn't disqualify me. They said I could race, but I started to make movies then and didn't go to the Olympics at Squaw Valley."

Toni Sailer has been making movies ever since. Now 35, he has not lost the looks which helped him land the romantic male lead in at least 14 films.

When he's not on the set, he's skiing or managing Haus Toni Sailer, his 30-bed hotel in Kitzbushel, a ski and golf resort.

Sailer has been in Canada every lyear for the last 10, first lured to the Montreal area by a ski equipment company he owned until it was sold last year, later by the summer ski school in this community in Garibaldi Provincial Park, 75 miles north of Vancouver.

"Whistler should have got the Olympics," says Sailer. "They could have had any kind of Olympic run they wanted by cutting down a few trees. But often it's the politics which decide these things."

Vancouver — and Whistler Mountain — lost a bid for the 1976 Winter Olympics.

Sailer believes the Olympics should be open to any athlete with ability, regardless of any commercial ties he may have.

Twelve years after Sailer swept three gold medals at the Olympics, France's Jean-Claude Killy equalled the feat at Grenoble, France, following three frustrating years.

"Jean Claude, in his last year racing, was in perfect position all the time, with no more difficulties. In the first few years — like 1967, '66, '65 — his skies had been running away from him all the time.

"They thought his skis were too fast, but he was making a mistake. He was leaning too far backward, you know, and his skis would take off. I had a long discussion with him about racing before he went to the Olympics. He asked me what he was doing wrong. He said he didn't feel right and was having a lot of bad luck.

"But it was more mental than his skiing. I told him he should forget about winning or losing and just think about skiing and he would win again."

Sailer says skiing has not changed much during the years in style, but buckle boots and glass-fibre skis have made an improvement.

"The postion on the skis has chanted because the boots are higher and more sturdy. They are also more comfortable than the old lace boots which were extremely soft. And we had no safety bindings — you just learned how to fall so you wouldn't get hurt."

It wasn't Sailer's run-in with the international Sky Federation that prompted him to drop out of competitive skiing. His victories at Cortina D'Ampezzo and Berchtesgaden created other problems.

Suddenly, he was being hounded by movie producers and fans alike.

"I had so many problems training after that because too many people on the slopes in Europe were, you know, just running for autographs. I spent more time fighting with them to get to the lifts than in practice."

Last 'Walkabout' Then Surrender To Civilization

CANBERRA (CP) — Out in the desolate Gibson desert of Western Australia two aborigines are slowly walking towards a new life. Experts say they, are the last of Australia's nomadic aboriginals, people who have lived on this continent for an estimated 30,000 years.

They are members of a family of five who had been "lost" to civilization and the rest of the world until found by an outback expedition last May.

They all agreed to give up their ancient ways to learn the life of white people. Three of them accepted a lift on the back of a truck 250 miles to a church mission station.

But the remaining two, a man called Tjipiri and his wife, known as Deleba, said they wanted to go on one last "walkabout" before surrendering to civilization. They would make their way on foot, they said, to the mission station.

Already at the mission, run by Seventh Day Adventists at Wiluna, on the desert fringe 600 miles northeast of Perth, are the family patriarch, Tjina, aged about 70, and his grandsons Yewa and Teberu.

FOUND IN DESERT

All five were found by the expedition in parched desert country where no white man could survive. The expedition leader, Dutch anthropologist Mark de Graaf, asked the family through an interpreter to return with him to the mission station.

Patriarch Tjina, a bearded craggy man, said he would consider the offer and give his answer three full moons from that date. De Graaf returned to the site at the arranged time and Tjina with grandsons Yewa and Teberu agreed to get a lift on the back of de Graaf's truck.

The three who drove into the station were given clothes and shoes but Yewa has so far been unable to get used to them and threw them away. Mission superintendent Linton Reynolds said: "He now walks around as bare as the day he was born."

The three have found the food in the station different from the grubs, desert lizards and snakes that they fed on out in the wilderness. Reynolds said: "They are mad about the jam they get. They have never tasted anything so sweet before."

CITES DINGOES

For Tjipiri and Deleba, a major problem will be getting them to part with their dingoes, which are a declared pest in Australia because of their "killer" instincts with cattle. Any Australian farmer will shoot a dingo on sight.

Part of the arrangement with the family is that the dingoes be left well out in the desert. But they are part of the family, obedient and affectionate, trapping food for the family and providing living blankets for them when the desert nights get cold.

Anthropologist de Graaf reported that when last seen Deleba was breast-feeding some dingo pups about three weeks old.

There are 200 full-blood aboriginals at the mission station who have given up their lonely life in the desert. Jobs on outback farms are being found for them, but those without work are paid the white man's social service unemployment benefits.

Mission workers feel they have made a sort of coup with the winning over of the "lost" family of five.

Of Tjipiri and his wife, superintendent Reynolds said: "I am confident we shall see them. They must know they cannot continue their line of descent. But when they will arrive, who knows? They will make their own pace. Time means nothing to them."

NDP May Cut Costs Of Drugs by 1973

MONTREAL (CP) — Manitoba's New Democratic Party government "should have a clear and definite program of lower drug costs by 1973 at the latest," a special assistant to Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer said Tuesday.

Rene Chartier told members of the Canadian Pharmaceutical Advertising Club that no special programs have yet been devised to bring about the reduction and "Mr. Schreyer's government has no intention of taking over the drug industry."

But the government might "present airtight legislation permitting generic substitution for brand-name prescriptions." He also hinted at the possibility of establishing a central purchasing and distributing centre which could cut the price of drugs by as much as 50 per cent.

"Any program implemented," Mr. Chartier emphasized, "would be done in a fashion that is acceptable to all - manufacturers, pharmacists and the public."

He warned that "unless pharmacists stop hiding behind the skirts of manufacturers" the Manitoba government may have to intervene to set prices in accord with the province's working population.

"The pharmacists in Manitoba have no one to blame for their plight but themselves."

Until now, he said, pharmacists in his province have been "more preoccupied with the commercial side of the profession . . . than with assuming their responsibilities as partners in a health care delivery system to the population."

Would mother approve?

Introducing New Five Roses Sauce & Gravy Mixes.
Yes mother, they are mixes. But . . . we didn't do everything. Instead, we've allowed for you to add a fresh ingredient: butter, meat drippings or milk. The finishing touch. (For cook-outs though, you'll appreciate our Bar-B-Q Sauce. It's complete in the package.)

This means you make them richer, smoother, tastier. And have more interesting and unusual ways to use them. And, lots more mix for the money.

Yesterday you had to start from scratch. Today, there's a whole new way.

Treasury Experts Meeting

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial treasury experts will meet federal finance officials in Montreal today and Thursday to discuss tax law changes and Finance Minister Benson's mini-budget.

High on the agenda are discussions about federal-provincial tax collecting arrangements which will need to be amended if Ontario is to be able to make a three-per-cent reduction in personal income tax this year.

The meeting is being held in Montreal because of a crowded hotel and conference accommodation situation in Ottawa, brought on by the state visit of Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin.

A meeting of finance ministers and provincial treasurers is likely to be held early next month. Today's meeting is in preparation for it. It is closed and no announcements are expected before the finance ministers meet.

Benson cut basic personal income taxes at the federal level by three per cent in his mini-budget Oct. 14. This is being done by adjusting the 1971 income ta returns, to be filed by next April 30.

People who have paid taxes by payroll deduction or instalments during the year at the old rate will be entitled to a refund when they file returns next spring.

AMEND AGREEMENT

Premier William Davis, campaigning for re-election in Thursday's Ontario election, has said he will cut Ontario's provincial tax by three per cent if arrangements can be made under the tax collection agreement with Ottawa. Officials here said this probably can be worked out, though it will require an amendment to the agreement.

Ottawa now levies income taxes for the whole country, but abates 28 per cent of them to make room for provincial taxes. Ontario has been levying a provincial tax at the 28-per-cent rate, which in effect has meant there has simply been a division of income tax revenues from Ontario taxpayers with little complication.

Nova Scotia and British Columbia also levy a 28-per-cent provincial tax. All the other provinces, however, have higher rates of provincial tax, running as high as 39 per cent in Manitoba. In those provinces, taxpayers get a 28-per-cent abatement from Ottawa but pay more to the province in which they earn their income.

Quebec is a special case. That province has its own income tax system and collecting machinery.

The meeting today will probably consider progress in getting the federal government's new tax legislation through Parliament. The federal government still hopes to have it passed by Jan. 1 but parliamentary work is running behind schedule.

$400 a Week Pay Pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The highest negotiated top minumum weekly salary for commercial and editorial employees — $400 — has been accepted by guild workers at The Washington Post.

A spokesman for the Washington-Baltimore Newspaper Guild said under terms of the 30-month contract, some deskmen will receive as much as $500 a week.

The top minimum is for reporters, photographers and ad salesmen with four years experience after the contract has been in effect for 22 months.

Proposed Danish Import Surcharge Draws Heavy Fire

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Most of the Danish press reacted critically today to the government's plan to impose a 10-per-cent import surcharge to protect the country's staggering economy and right its balance-of-payments deficit.

Only Aktuelt, the sole newspaper loyal to the minority Social Democratic government of Premier Jens Otto Krag, seemed to expect positive results.

The government proposed the surcharge Tuesday in parliament, but opposition parties joined forces and put off two other required readings until today to give the Danish people time to be informed of the measure.

The surcharge would affect all goods except raw materials needed by Danish industry and minor food imports. It is to remain in effect until April 1973, gradually being reduced to four per cent as the terminal date approaches.

The conservative Berlingske Tidende conceded the surcharge will help reduce the balance-of-payments deficit, but warned the measure might weaken Danish industry by handicapping competing foreign companies.

Politiken said it was "a bad idea to try to save the Danish economy by protecting our industries against foreign competition."

Like other papers, Politiken warned the surcharge would lead to higher costs of living and stimulate inflation.

The independent Information emphasized the impact the surcharge would have on the Swedish economy:

"Swedish imports to Denmark amount to 10 per cent of total Swedish exports, and of these 85 per cent will be hit by the import surcharge. This means further difficulties for the country, right now working on emergency laws because of the serious unemployment."

Victoria Daily Times
VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1971 —PAGE 29

Stalled Tax Reform Bill May See Deadline Set

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs continued to bombard the government Tuesday with appeals to revise its tax legislation while backstage dickering continued for a time limit on debate to ensure passage of the bill by Christmas.

A time limit decision could come today—the 16th day the massive bill revising income-tax regulations has been on the Commons debating agenda. The government wants the bill in force for the tax year starting next Jan. 1.

Allan MacEachen, government House leader, has been conducting the behind - the - scenes negotiations with other party representatives, hoping to find a mutually-satisfactory way to control debate on the 707-page bill, augmented now by 95 government-proposed amendments.

Conservative House Leader Gerald W. Baldwin said Tuesday his party is considering Mr. MacEachen's proposal to divide the bill into sections, handling them in sequence with a time limit on each that was expected to be placed before his party's caucus meeting today.

But Mr. Baldwin said in an interview the bill didn't lend itself to study by numbered sections. Dotted through it were items that would have an effect on various fields — small business, mineral exploitation or the individual taxpayer.

WANT EXPLANATIONS

Mr. Baldwin said his party would like the government to make explanations of all clauses affecting each of such fields. Then they could be discussed.

New Democratic Party and Social Credit representatives have also said they are ready to discuss a debating timetable for the bill.

Complicating the picture is the fact that only about 40 sitting days remain before the usual Christmas recess. The government in the same period needs parliamentary approval of other proposals, including tax measures outlined June 18 and last Thursday.

A main provision of the tax bill is to raise the basic personal income-tax exemption — to $1,500 from $1,000 for a single person and to $2,850 from $2,000 for a married couple. This means some 750,000 Canadians who pay taxes now would not pay them next year.

No opposition party wants to be blamed for delaying the bill.

Prime Minister Trudeau has indicated that an early election call is not contemplated by the government, but opposition MPs think a stall on the tax bill might change the picture and give the government an issue.

In the Commons Tuesday, the bill remained stalled at its first clause containing 257 parts—on the third day of clause-by-clause study.

SAY FLOOR TOO LOW

And some broadsides were levelled at those basic personal exemptions which the government has stressed ever since it unveiled the bill last June.

Adrien Lambert (SC—Bellechasse) said the exemptions should be $3,000 for a single person and $5,000 for a married couple. The Consumer prices had risen by about 75 per cent since 1949 when the exemptions were last changed. The new exemptions didn't go nearly far enough to reflect that jump.

Melvin McQuaid (PC—Cardigan) cited the Economic Council of Canada saying that any married couple with less than $3,000 annual income is living in poverty.

Lorne Nystrom (NDP—Yorkton-Melville) complained the bill would continue the tax holiday treatment of extraction industries which piled up profits on the country's non-renewable resources and provided few jobs in return.

RECORD SLATE FACES NEWFOUNDLAND VOTERS

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Many of Newfoundland's 265,690 registered voters will have a wider choice of candidates for the Oct. 28 provincial election than in any election since Confederation with Canada in 1949.

A record 108 contestants were officially nominated Monday, including full slates of Liberals and Progressive Conservatives in each of the 40 single-member districts and in Harbour Main, which has two seats in the legislature.

The Conservatives under their new leader, Frank Moores, fielded a full complement of candidates for the first time as they aimed to unseat Premier Joseph Smallwood's Liberal government, in power for 22 years.

The New Democratic Party, which has never elected a member in Newfoundland, has 17 candidates and the New Labrador party, created by former Liberal Tom Burgess, has candidates in the three districts that cover the province's 110,000-square-mile mainland territory.

There are three independent Liberals and one Independent.

ALL CONTESTED

There were no acclamations, unusual for this province, and three districts—Labrador West, St. John's Centre and White Bay South—have four candidates each.

Although the Liberals took 39 of the 42 seats five years ago, defections, a byelection, retirement and death had cut government strength to 25 at dissolution Oct. 6.

There were seven Conservatives, two Independent Liberals, one Independent and seven vacancies when the house was dissolved.

Premier Smallwood, who at 70 says this will be his last election, is running in Placentia East against Conservative William G. Patterson.

Mr. Moores is in Humber West. The district, which includes part of Corner Brook, was won by Mr. Smallwood last time.

MAYOR RUNS

Mayor Noel Murphy of Corner Brook is standing in Humber West for the Liberals. A former Conservative leader, Dr. Murphy lost Humber East to a Liberal in 1966. He returned to politics earlier this year on the Liberal side and was appointed a minister without portfolio.

John C. Crosbie, one of the premier's sternest critics since he joined the Conservatives this summer, is facing Liberal Alma Badcock in his former district of St. John's West.

Mr. Crosbie resigned as Liberal health minister in 1968 in disagreement with government aid to industry and crossed the floor after losing a leadership race to Mr. Smallwood in 1969.

H. W. Kitchen, who lost the Conservative leadership race to Mr. Moores in 1970, is running for the Liberals in Harbour Grace. He was expelled by the PCs after a meeting he allegedly had with Mr. Smallwood, who later appointed him education minister.

Knifing Lands Man In Hospital

A serviceman is in Naden hospital with a stomach wound and a second man was charged with assault causing bodily harm following a knifing incident in the 500-block Johnson Monday night.

An armed forces spokesman said John MacManus is in good condition in hospital. The man is with the base supply branch of CFB Esquimalt.

Edward G. Simeon, 28, of 225 Quebec, pleaded not guilty to the assault offence and was remanded by Judge William Ostler to Nov. 22 for trial. He was released on bail on his own recognizance.

City police said they were called about 9:30 p.m. to the 500-block Johnson after complaints about three men fighting.

RCs Get Anti-U.S. Report

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A Vatican commission attacked the U.S. government today for its recent unilateral changes in the monetary system and voiced support for those who refuse to fight for the United States in Vietnam.

The Pontifical Commission on Justice and Peace, in a document submitted to the World Synod of Roman Catholic Bishops, urged the synod to deplore recent "monetary decisions taken by some rich countries which involve the well-being and the development of two billion persons" in poor countries.

The 64-point message also called on the synod to support those who "refuse to participate in certain wars or certain acts of war, such as the bombardment of civil populations." It called for "understanding of those who, in the name of their faith or their conscience, refuse to bear arms."

Although neither clause mentioned the United States by name, its intent was clear.

The message also condemned colonialism and neo-colonialism, racial discrimination, particularly in South Africa, and increasing armaments and nationalism.

The outline of recommended policy positions was submitted to the assembly of 209 bishops as they took up the second major topic in their month-long meeting, social justice.

During the first two weeks of the synod the bishops discussed problems of the priesthood, recording massive opposition to the ordination of married men but strong support for acceptance of priests who marry as "laymen in good standing."

Want to See Europe? Try the Gypsy Way

By HELEN MELNYK
Times Staff

An increasing number of North American tourists are knocking about the continent in vans and camper trucks.

It's the best way to see the world, according to Ken and Margo Bonner, a young couple who have recently returned to Victoria after leading the nomadic life for a year in their camper bus.

After completing university and working as social workers for more than two years, the couple decided they wanted to see how the other side lives.

"At first we thought we were doing something original," said Mrs. Bonner. But they soon discovered European campsites were crowded with wheel-bound compatriots.

She said that most of the tourists travelling in vans and campers were young college graduates and retired couples, taking a year or two-year holiday.

There were also professional people who had 'dropped out' for a while with their families, she said.

There's a campsite near all major cities in Europe, Bonner said. Campground fees are low, ranging from 60 cents to $1.50 per night. Facilities may be anything from a "parking lot" to a complex that includes a supermarket, discotheque and bar.

The Bonners said they chose to travel and live in a camper because they wanted to see the people and lifestyles of the different countries. Staying at hotels and eating in restaurants means rubbing elbows with other tourists.

"While camping, we were always interacting with the people in regular life situations," Bonner said. They avoided tourist traps by shopping in out-of-the-way stores and marketplaces and using public transportation systems.

"We never ate alone" Mrs. Bonner said. There were always curious onlookers peering into their camper — mostly children and elderly people.

"The feeling amongst a community of campers is very warm and friendly," Mrs. Bonner said. "A few minutes after driving in for the night, everybody would be in each other's van."

Mrs. Bonner listed some other advantages of travelling in a camper.

"The camper was our home on wheels. We had all our own dishes and things with us. We cooked our own food and never had to worry about hotel accommodation, especially in the height of the tourist season. There was no luggage to be packed and unpacked and lugged about."

Financial savings were considerable, she added. A one-night-stay in a hotel averages $6. A cheap second-hand van can be picked up in Europe from $200 up.

And the demand for vans and campers is such that it's easy to resell them, Mrs. Bonner said.

"We're planning to settle down, now, but then we might take off again some day," Mrs. Bonner said. "After you've wrenched yourself out of a job and home once, you realize that you don't have to be tied down."

'O' Makes Difference

A little more than a month ago, I wrote a piece about the Victoria (Rotary) Boys' Choir and in it I mentioned the Arion Club, oldest male voice choir in Canada. In doing so, I used an "o" in spelling Arion, instead of an "a."

Not long afterward I received a letter from George T. Storrie, secretary of the Arion Male Voice Choir, pointing out gently, but firmly, the mistake I had made. He went on to show me what a difference in meaning the substitution of a letter can make.

Storrie wrote: "Orion, of which you speak, was a mythical Greek, who was a mighty hunter of great beauty and gigantic strength. After his death, he was changed into the constellation called by his name and which, incidentally, is one of the most conspicuous constellations in the heavens."

Name Adopted

Not so Arion, whose name this fine male voice choir adopted.

According to Storrie: "Arion a semi-legendary poet and musician, flourished about 625 B.C. He is said to have invented the dithyramb (a wild passionate choric hymn) i.e. he gave it literary form, but no genuine work of his survives.

"It is said that on a sea trip, the sailors decided to put him to death in order to steal his treasures. Arion begged permission to sing one final song and the sailors desirous of hearing such a famous musician consented. When Arion concluded his dirge, he threw himself overboard and was miraculously borne up in safety by a dolphin, supposedly charmed by the music.

"He arrived home ahead of the sailors, who were punished and Arion's lyre and dolphin translated to the stars."

These are mythcal legends I should have known. My apologies to the Arion Club, to Arion and his dolphin and also to Orion.

Origin of Victoria's Arion Male Voice Choir goes back nearly 80 years.

In 1892, four young men, William Greig, George Jay, E. Howard Russell and Herbert Kent, were singing once a week around a piano in each other's homes. And it was through this foursome that a male voice glee club (with 18 members) was formed in February the next year.

First rehearsals were held in a room over the music store of M. W. Waitt and the first concert, three months later, in the Institute Hall on View Street with William Greig the conductor.

At the first annual meeting held at the end of May that year, the semi-legendary figure of Arion was adopted for the club's name and a motto was decided "Ec-ce quam bo-num, Quam-que jo-cun-dum, Ha-bi-ta-re fra-tres In u . . . num."

Freely translated it is Psalm 133: Verse 1. "Behold how good and pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

Incidently this song has preceeded every rehearsal and every concert by Arion over the last 79 seasons.

In olden days a favorite spot for concerts was at the Gorge. The choir sang from a large launch, gaily festooned with lanterns. Hundreds of people used to gather on shore and in rowboats to hear them.

Choir Formed

When an early member, Keith Middleton, moved to Tacoma he formed a brother choir there and joint concerts became highly successful events, the first being held in 1907. Over the years the choir has also given concerts with the Eugeen Gleemen of Oregon, the Victoria (Rotary) Boys' Choir and has assisted at hundreds of benefits.

Present conductor is Bert Storrer. This year the choir won honors in the Victoria Music Festival, collected a Lower Vancouver Island regional championship trophy, competed in the B.C. Finals in Vancouver, and with other choirs, sang for Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip, during the royal visit. It also was host to the Oregon Gleemen and the Vancouver Metropolitan Chamber Orchestra in a concert here, sponsored by the B.C. '71 centennial committee.

Lead Poison Danger Studied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lead poisoning which can kill or cause severe brain damage, may be twice as prevalent among children in the District of Columbia's poor neighborhoods as previously thought.

Moreover, an estimated 115,000 housing units — or 40 per cent of the district's total — present a lead-poisoning hazard, although fewer than that are occupied by young children. The cost of "deleading" all these dwellings "deters such action."

The problem can best be dealt with through a greater awareness of lead poisoning dangers on the part of physicians and the public, early detection of the disease, and developing ways of keeping children away from lead-bearing materials.

These are among the major findings and recommendations of a study carried out for the D.C. government by Dr. Selma J. Mushkin and Dr. Ralph Freidin oft he public services laboratory of Georgetown University.

Until the present study, Dr. Mushkin said this week, it had been assumed that from 10 to 25 per cent of children age 6 and under living in inner city areas had "undue body burdens" of lead.

Now, she said in her report, 50 per cent. That is, 30 to 50 per cent of babies born in the District of Columbia, who live under lead-hazard conditions, may be expected to have undue body burden of lead sometime before reaching school age, with whatever damaging effects result from such lead burdens."

These damaging effects can range from mild nervous disorders to mental retardation so severe that the victim must be institutionalized.

Lead poisoning generally occurs among young children who eat flakes of lead-based paint.

One of the difficulties in fighting the illness is that of diagnosing it. This is because the symptoms, which include loss of appetite, constipation, stomach cramps, and other pains, are much like those of other illnesses.

Business Booming at Meat Co-Op

PORTLAND, Me. (AP) — A meat-buying co-operative organized six months ago to serve Portland's poor is just about the hottest growth industry in town.

The number of participants in the "non-profit, group-purchasing project has jumped from 50 at the outset to around 400 and the weekly receipts run to $2,500.

And the Portland Buying Association is thinking about expansion — to provide other goods and services and eventually open a community store.

Robert Rush of the West Side Neighborhood Centre, one of the founders of the association, says he has yet to hear any complaints from retail merchants, whose businesses — particularly in the Model Cities neighborhood — may have suffered as a result of the venture.

"Sure, we're hurting the retailer," says Rush. "I've noticed that they've dropped their top sale items to a penny or so below what we offer" in an attempt to remain competitive, he said.

"But it's pretty hard for any store to under-sell us without losing money."

The co-op offers about 50 varieties of beef, pork and poultry, selected each week from a "menu" supplied in consultation with a meat wholesaler and distributed at neighborhood centres and through community action groups.

Three Gerbils Replace Lazy Mice

STOKE-ON-TRENT, England (UPI) — Two mice have been fired by the Stoke-On-Trent Museum because they only worked the night shift.

The animals were employed to show visitors how a model treadmill generated electricity — but slept during the day.

"They were putting in a great night shift on the apparatus but would not demonstrate in front of a crowd during the day. So I am afraid we had to give them the sack," said natural history assistant Geoffrey Halfpenny.

The job is now held by three gerbils.

District Conference For Secretaries

The Victoria Chapter will host the 1971 Northwest District Conference of the National Secretaries Association (International).

About 120 delegates are expected to attend the conference, Oct. 22-24. Opening ceremonies will be held in the Crystal ballroom, at 9 a.m., Saturday, Oct. 23.

Guest speaker at the British Columbia Centennial luncheon Saturday will be Isabel P. Dawson, minister without portfolio. They keynote address will be given by Canon Grahame B. Baker, of St. John's Anglican Church.

Civil Liberties In 'Grave Danger'

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto lawyer Aubrey Golden said Tuesday night that the future of civil liberties in Canada is in "grave danger."

He told the Holy Blossom Temple Men's Brotherhood that during last year's crisis in Quebec the government played on the insecurity of citizens.

"Our insecurity allowed the government to pass strong laws and then allowed the police to abuse even those strong powers.

"Fear of government is not a healthy political emotion but leads to irrational behavior, suspicion and ultimately to a breakdown in communication."

"This is just what we don't need in Canada," said Mr. Golden.

Most Uvic Parents Can't Use New Campus Day Care Centre

By ANN DUNSMUIR
Times Staff

Two-year-olds are the displaced people in the day-care world.

The only community resource available for this age group is family day-care homes (where children are looked after by other mothers in homes approved by Family and Children's Services) or a private babysitter.

The University of Victoria Day Care Centre, which opened Sept. 13 planned to enrol children 2 to 5 years of age.

But difficulties in meeting the regulations governing centres for two-year-olds forced the Uvic day care committee to change its plans and accept only children 3 years and over.

Out in Cold

The decision left 21 two-year-olds out in the cold and placed the centre in financial difficulties, said Mrs. Barbara Williams, the centre's supervisor.

Right now five full-time preschoolers are rattling around in facilities geared to 20 children. Some days, they are joined by five part-time children.

Meanwhile, many of the unlucky two-year-olds are bundled about from sitter to sitter. In one instance, a mother had to give up all hope of returning to university and stay home. She babysits another student's two-year-old.

Mrs. Susan Linton, 23, a biology student, has to take her two-year-old daughter to three different sitters in the period of a week.

Mrs. Linton is a part-time student as a result of this babysitting problem. If she had been able to place her daughter in the Uvic centre (she says she couldn't find a family day-care home) she could have finished her course in a shorter period of time.

"Most students have children 2 years old or younger," Mrs. Linton said. "By the time children are 3 or 5 years old, their parents have graduated."

A survey taken a year ago September at Uvic bears out her statement. The survey showed that 40 children under 5 could be expected to use campus day care facilities if they were available. Of these 40, two thirds were in the two-year-old category.

Low enrolment has meant financial difficulties for the centre. A full enrolment of 20 children is needed to meet the centre's expenses.

The Uvic Alma Mater Society has already put about $5,000 into the centre.

Main Snag

The main stumbling block in the way of two-year-old enrolment, according to Mrs. Williams, is a regulation calling for a Mothercraft Nurse to supervise this age group.

Mrs. M. R. Dahl, of the provincial community care facilities board, was puzzled by Miss Williams' belief that regulations required a Mothercraft diploma. She pointed out in a telephone interview that there are no provisions for group day care for children under the Community Care Facilities Licencing Act.

"The regulations state in section 1002 of the act that children admitted to a play school, kindergarten or similar institution must be between 3 years of age and school age," she said.

"There is no set of standards which allow for group day care for children under 3 years of age in a setting like the Uvic centre," Mrs. Dahl said.

"We would like to see the Uvic group prepare a brief that could be used elsewhere to help set standards if their application is approved," Mrs. Dahl said.

She thinks the board could only approve the Uvic submission as a pilot project.

Mrs. Williams hopes to persuade the licencing board to accept her qualifications as equivalent to a Mothercraft Diploma. She has her degree in education and took mothercraft training in Kenya.

Representatives of the Uvic centre will submit a brief to the board Nov. 5, asking approval of Mrs. Williams' qualifications.

Mrs. Williams thinks one reason why so few children 3 years and over have registered at the centre is that parents in the area believe only children of Uvic students are eligible.

"We have an order of priority," she said. "The children of university students are taken first but any child can come if there is room."

Mrs. Dylis Poole and Mrs. Barbara Williams work in Uvic Day Care Centre

'Established' Women Effective as Feminists

Women's lib groups may be activist and vocal, but they don't accomplish more than "established" women's groups, says Mrs. John Hnatyshyn, president of the National Council of Women.

Women can improve their role in society by examining the problems facing them and approaching the government with facts and figures, she said in an interview.

Mrs. Jnatyshyn was in Victoria Tuesday afternoon to address the local chapter of the Council of Women, after attending the international executive conference in Amsterdam.

She said the purpose of her organization is to unite women's organizations, such as church auxiliary groups and hospital volunteer groups, to "speak as one voice on the problems concerning women."

"We are interested in changes, but we don't believe in protesting and demonstrating," Mrs. Hnatyshyn said. "Our group has gradually built up a good standing with the government. When we approach them with our requests, they hear us out."

The implementation of the recommendations of the Royal Commission on the Status of Women report is the means of bettering the position of women in Canadian society, she said.

The National Council of Women is currently making an in-depth study of the report, with a special emphasis on the section on women and the family, she said. The group will urge the government to act upon specific areas of immediate concern to women.

She does not think too much study has already been done on the status of Canadian women.

"It doesn't hurt to remind the government," Mrs. Hnatyshyn added.

She would like to see more women involved in politics and predicts this for the future.

"Last February, when eight representatives of our group met with the prime minister, he promised to see about getting more women in executive positions in the government," she said.

Harbor Light Celebrates 15 Years

Two men, estranged from their families for years because of alcoholism, returned home this month, their habit kicked and a new life ahead.

The latest graduates from the Salvation Army's Harbor Light Centre, at 516 Yates, to them, even the everyday things of life appear to be miracles.

There isn't a happy ending for everyone who goes to the centre for help.

The centre's commanding officer, Capt. Bruce Hardcourt, faces the situation head on.

"Some we win, some we lose. It's a running battle all the time. There are some who'll never go back because they're unable to face losing the security they have at the centre."

It has been 15 years since Victoria's Harbor Light first opened its doors.

Its beginning was modest — space for seven beds on the main floor of the old St. Francis Hotel, on Yates. Yet, by the end of the first month, 714 meals had been served and 183 beds provided.

The present centre was opened May 15, 1963, and provides facilities for 31 men and one-month rehabilitation courses that can be extended, depending on the need of each individual. There is a large recreational hall and a comfortable television room.

The statistics, too, have grown. Last December, for example, 787 beds were provided and a total of 3,168 meals served.

This weekend marks the 15th anniversary for Harbor Light in Victoria, the third to be opened in Canada.

Here from Toronto to help celebrate the occasion will be Col. John Nelson, the Army's relations secretary and national campaign director.

He will be the guest of honor Friday when a celebration banquet is held at the centre.

Nelson will also conduct the 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. services at the centre Sunday.

On Saturday the centre will be open to the public from 2 to 4 p.m.

This will be a happy weekend for those men the Salvation Army has been able to help.

How about the others?

Hardcourt says there are 3,000 known alcoholics in the Greater Victoria area. And there are countless others.

He's hoping that this week's spotlight on the centre may lead others to take the first step toward a happy ending.

Arteries Grown By Patients

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A surgeon says he has developed a procedure by which diseased arteries can be replaced with new arteries grown by the patients.

Dr. Charles H. Sparks of Portland reported at a medical conference that since February, 11 patients have grown new arteries in from five to eight weeks. Before that, seven patients grew new arteries with a more cumbersome procedure.

Most Parents Happy Students on Welfare

TORONTO (CP) — Five hundred Metropolitan Toronto high school students are living away from home on welfare and most of their parents are happy about it, a welfare official says.

"We thought we'd have many parents down our neck, saying we're disrupting a happy home by giving the students welfare but this has not happened," said Tom Cull, an official of the Metro social and family services department.

He was describing Metro's policy on student welfare to a group of guidance counsellors, social workers and psychologists attending the annual meeting of the International Association of Pupil Personnel Workers.

Parents have no legal obligations to support their children after the age of 16. Last month the Metro department decided to review student welfare after an "alarming" jump from 100 to 500 in two years.

Parents were asked whether they would accept their children back home. A flat "No" meant the youngster stayed on welfare, providing he was attending and benefitting from school.

If the parents said "Yes," the department would review the home situation. Mr. Cully said investigators found that most parents are happy to have their youngsters go on welfare and stay right out of it.

Fewer Applicants

KITCHENER, ONT. (CP) — City welfare officials feel their recent policy of refusing payments to applicants who won't improve their appearance when applying for jobs may account for a drop in the number of single applicants for September.

John Birnstihl, welfare administrator, told the welfare committee this week applications by single persons decreased to 751 from 847 in August and that the decrease is continuing in October.

DEAR ABBY

Don't Make An Issue

DEAR ABBY: How can you tell if a man is a homosexual? My husband's partner (they are CPA's) hired a male secretary. What kind of man would hire a male secretary? And what kind of man would BE a secretary?

My husband's partner is a married man and he doesn't seem "faggy," but I've heard that sometimes this doesn't mean anything.

Should I make an issue of this?

I'd like an answer, but please don't use my name. — Anonymous

DEAR ANONYMOUS: You can't tell if a man is a homosexual from his appearance, but if you really think it's your business, why don't you ask him? Homosexuals as a group are honest.

All kinds of men hire male secretaries. And no special kind of man pursues secretarial work any more than any special kind of woman does.

And don't make an issue of it. A man who is bright enough to be a CPA can take care of himself.

DEAR ABBY: I was invited to attend the wedding of a girl who works where I started working about a month ago. (I'll call her Rosie.) I accepted. Another co-worker who was also invited asked if we could buy Rosie a wedding present together. I said okay. We bought the gift and had it delivered to Rosie's home.

Both the co-worker and I got a "thank you" note for the "shower gift". We weren't invited to any shower, and the card we enclosed with our present plainly said, "FOR YOUR WEDDING." Well, anybody can make a mistake, so I didn't care about that, but listen to this:

The day before the wedding, Rosie calls me up and asks me NOT to come to her wedding because she "over-invited" and there wasn't enough room. She called the other co-worker and told her the same thing.

Do you think Rosie should have offered to return our gift? Or at least try to patch things up by offering to bring us a piece of wedding cake? Thank you. — "Lost Out" In N.J.

DEAR "LOST": Either your friend Rosie has corn flakes where her brains belong, or she became addled by her forthcoming nuptials. Forget it.

DEAR ABBY: My mom likes to have company, and when she knows someone is coming over, she spends the day fixing refreshments.

The problem is that some people do things like the following: Mom had her club over last Thursday, and she made some real fancy sandwiches, chocolate-covered brownies and all kinds of cookies. Well, I wish you could have seen those ladies!

One said, "I can't eat very much because I'm on a diet, but I'd sure like to carry something home to my Herman." (Then she wraps up a whole lunch in a paper napkin.)

Then someone else says, "My Milton loves sweets. Mind if I take him a few?"

My mom is too nice to say anything. So the company carries out all the treats. What is your opinion of this? — Bugged.

DEAR BUGGED: If it doesn't bug your momma, it shouldn't bug you.

'Be Prepared To Be Killed' Women Told

MONTREAL (CP) — Germaine Greer, outspoken female liberationist and author of the Female Eunuch said this week that women "might have to put their bodies on the line" in their fight for freedom from male domination.

"Women have to be prepared to go into the streets and be killed. It can amount to a betrayal of your own country," she told a conference on women sponsored by the McGill Alumni Association.

When asked if she herself would be prepared to use guns in the fight, she made fun of the question and passed on to the next.

The 32-year-old English literature lecturer at Warwick University in England told her audience that oppression of women was directly linked to the economic system.

If women stopped being the largest single group of consumers, the economic system would come to a standstill, she said.

"Don't think I'm not aware of these contradictions. I recognize the irony of talking about women's liberation between commercials for vaginal deodorants."

She urged her audience of university students and graduates to further the cuase by concentrating on aspects of their careers that specifically applied to women.

She called on female lawyers to pressure for change in abortion and property laws. If the Roman Catholic Church was taxed on its real estate, the government would have enough money to set up day-care centres.

Women doctors must take control of gyecology and research into contraceptive methods. Male doctors and researchers have seen how "the pill" has liberated women, and to have refused to disclose further discoveries of better contraceptives which have less danger of side effects, she said.

"We won't get new methods of birth control unless we badger and this is where women doctors have a real contribution to make."

No adequate psychology of women has been developed and woman is still explained in terms of a castrated male. Historians have yet to trace the history of men's methods of "taming their women" and literature has failed to explore the concept of a woman's culture, Miss Greer said.

She said women must realize they share a common bond the world over. Miss Greer is going on a tour of Pakistan and Vietnam to find out how American women can help women there.

Anniversary Marked

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Phillips, 2572 Selwyn Road, celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary recently at a family dinner.

The couple were married at Pine Creek (now Waskatenau), Alberta, in 1911.

Anniversary Celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Beaumont, of 7129 East Saanich Rd., celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently at a reception held at Shady Creek United Church.

The couple were married in Sixth Street United Church, North Vancouver. They moved to Victoria 16 years ago.

Mrs. Beaumont, the former Elizabeth Thompson, is an elder of the Shady Creek Church and recording secretary of the UCW. Beaumont is a member of the board of stewards and the Central Saanich Volunteer Fire Department.

They have a daughter, Miss Betty Beaumont, of Ioco, and a son, Vernon, of North Vancouver.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Thursday, Oct. 21, 1971

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Open lines of communication with mate, business partner. Money is involved. Friend may want to move too fast. Key is to be analytical. No one will give you something for nothing. Be realistic.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Gain co-operation of family member. Seek harmony especially in domestic area. Another Taurean and a Libran play prominent roles. Purchase gift for special anniversary. Stick to Golden Rule.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): What appears on surface may be opposite from reality. Before signing or accepting, demand additional information. Whole picture has yet to be revealed. Know this and respond accordingly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Nothing now occurs halfway; it is all or nothing. Accent is on romance, security, understanding with opposite sex. Capricorn person plays prominent role. Use past experience. Be definite.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You get action in area previously closed, blocked. Outline goal. Know where you want to go — and why. Best to finish rather than to initiate projects. Aries person can play important role.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be independent, but avoid any display of arrogance. Welcome contacts, challenges. Accent is on short journey, dealings with neighbors and relatives. You will be repaid for a special service.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): One whose money is not involved is free and easy with your assets. Pull in reins. Get explanation for contemplated actions. Insist on better mode of communication. You have right to an accounting.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Some who are lacking in faith may try to block your progress. Key is to be confident, forward looking. Adhere to your own style. Your way now is best — know this and act like it. Move ahead.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Stress caution in traffic. Avoid tendency to rush needlessly. Don't write letters in anger. Weigh actions, words. Some events occur behind scenes. Wait for factual information. Discard rumors.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be ready for change, travel, a variety of experiences. Gemini and Virgo persons play important roles. Be flexible. Fine to be determined, but avoid obstinacy. Friend does want to aid.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Co-operate with family member; promote domestic harmony. Sense of humor is essential. One close to you is argumentative. Be a good listener. Realize those who insist are not sure. Stress maturity.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Hidden assets could come to light. Pleasant surprise is on agenda. Keep communication lines open. Respond to messages, long-distance calls. Have facts at hand. You add to knowledge, Stress progress.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are artistic, attractive to opposite sex and have tendency to try doing too much at once. When you learn to finish what you start, you can be a world-beater. Recent change is for your own good. If single, marriage is on horizon.

Foreign Car Price Edge Fading as Money Adjusts

Some of the price advantage of foreign-made cars to Canadian buyers is fading as more currencies adjust to the U.S. dollar, Victoria Kiwanis Club was told Tuesday.

William S. Pickett, president of American Motors (Canada) Ltd., said comparable AMC and imported products are about $150 apart and "even this small difference should disappear this year because of the floating yen and mark.

"Already, it has been announced that Japanese imports have gone up in price by $100 to 250 because the yen has gone up 5 per cent," he said.

FAVORABLE

He said the auto industry does not want to destroy the Japan-Canada market because Canada is in a favorable position, but inequities should be removed as long as Canada is a car-manufacturing nation.

Earlier, Pickett said competing with foreign makers whose countries have not adjusted their currencies is "like a poker game when they know what cards you hold but you don't know their's."

"I'm a free trade man," he said," but not when advantages are one-sided."

Pickett defended the Canadian car manufacturing stance compared with foreign makers on grounds of quality, safety, economy of operation and servicing, price, durability, manufacturing concepts and used car value.

POOR JOB

But Canadians have done a poor job of marketing, he said.

"We must stop selling muscle, we must stop selling brute power and razz-matazz. We must stop selling large car concepts. What we must emphasize is total quality — and back it up with good service," the speaker said.

There is no question about a Canadian's ability to buy a new car, Pickett said: "The banks are chock full of money. Savings accounts went up 7.9 per cent in the first six months of this year."

SALES TAX

Many would rush out and buy if the federal government cancelled its 12 per cent sales tax, he said.

He gave the latest figures for new car sales in Victoria to illustrate the inroads of foreign competition.

Last month 70 per cent of the 508 new car registrations here were foreign, and in the nine months to Sept. 30, 60.3 per cent were imports. This compares with 50.4 per cent imports in August for all of B.C. and 37 per cent for Canada.

Looking to the future of auto design, Pickett predicted that for at least 10 years the piston-driven gasoline engine would continue to be the motive power, but the electric and steam turbine cars are being "looked at."

Mass transit, meanwhile, will undergo much development in the 1970s, he said.

MENUHIN TO PLAY HERE

Legendary among contemporary violinists, Yehudi Menuhin will come to this city next season to appear as soloist with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

Contract negotiations have been concluded and he is scheduled to perform in the regular series, opening the second half of the 1972-73 season with the January pair of concerts at the Royal Theatre.

Menuhin lives in England now, where he conducts an orchestra and has founded an important festival, in addition to giving concerts and appearing with symphony orchestras all over the world.

Decision Today On Mill

NORTH COWICHAN Council will decide today whether to rezone the G. S. Doman Ltd. lumber yard at Chemainus from light industry to commercial.

Residents have protested what they consider excessive noise from trucks and the planer mill, particularly throughout the night.

Doman's have taken steps to reduce the noise but they have yet to be instituted.

Romeo Chick sumitted the request to council to have the property on the corner of Henry Road and the Trans-Canada Highway rezoned.

World Facing Recession

NEW YORK (AP) — A world-wide recession, spreading and getting worse, is strengthening the United States' bargaining position on foreign trade.

From West Germany to Tokyo, jobless rolls are growing, national production is off and stock markets are falling. In underdeveloped countries, raw materials are bringing in less cash.

The recession is felt in the United States, too, but the U.S. puts only about 4 per cent of its national output of goods into foreign trade. West Germany, in comparison, sells about one-third of its production overseas.

That means that West Germany and Japan must export if they are to come out of their recession. The U.S., less dependent on foreign markets and suppliers, can get out of its jam by its own efforts. But the necessity of trading to live puts pressure on the industrial countries — except France — to strike a bargain with the United States to open the U.S. market to easy imports.

"I don't think people realize how bad things are over there," said William Wolman, a vice-president of First National City Bank. "What is going on in the common market, for instance, would be called a recession anywhere else."

Things could get worse unless they are repaired, in the view of E. Douglas Howard, president of the Niagara Share Corp., a $100-million mutual fund.

"Unless some progress is made on the international front in the next couple of months," he said, "the danger of a world depression will arise."

Each individual country realizes how bad things are at home but it has been overlooked that the recession is general.

In Italy, for instance, Finance Minister Luigi Preti said his country's stagnation is the worst in 40 years. In West Germany, says The Financial Times of London, "there is a clear possibility that the downturn in the boom could lead to a recession."

15 Killed in Fire

HONESDALE, Pa. (AP) — Fifteen elderly persons, many of them bedridden, died in a smoky fire that swept through a private nursing home near this tiny northeastern Pennsylvania community.

Most of the victims, trapped in their rooms on either side of a corridor, died Tuesday night of smoke inhalation, Robert Jennings, Wayne County coroner, said. Those closest to the fire's origin appeared to have died of burns, he added.

Only a licensed practical nurse, on duty alone at the time, escaped the blaze as it filled the residential wing of the Geiger Nursing Home with thick smoke.

It was the worst nursing-home fire in North America since 17 persons died at the Foyer Ste. Bernadette home in Pointe-aux-Trembles, Que., Nov. 5, 1970.

Peru Now Trying to Woo Foreign Money

By WILLIAM H. HEATH

LIMA (AP) — The military men who took over Peru's government three years ago, vowing to build a new nation, are ruling in a style that defies traditional labels.

But recent steps indicate that economic problems are requiring the "revolutionary" government to moderate its ways of carrying out programs of sweeping reform. Increased efforts are being made to attract foreign investors, wary of steps designed to end what the military government has described as Peru's traditional dependency on foreign companies.

The military leaders who expropriated U.S.-owned International Petroleum Co. declared recently an "open door" policy for foreign firms wishing to participate in a vast search for oil in the Amazon Basin and offshore areas.

The government has signed exploration-development contracts with three U.S. companies calling for an even split of oil found. Other foreign firms have applied for contracts with similar terms.

Efforts also are being made to interest foreign investors in the mining industry, which provides more than half Peru's annual income. It has been hurt seriously by strikes and falling copper prices on the international market.

CALMS INVESTORS

The government of President Juan Velasco also has shown increasing evidence of desire to come to terms with the country's private investors, frightened by reforms aimed at granting workers part ownership of industry and a voice in management.

The military men on Oct. 3, 1968, sent an armored unit to the gates of the presidential palace, ousted the elected president, Fernando Belaunde, and installed a government of generals and admirals.

Perhaps their sternest action to date came in September in a 14-day strike by 110,000 of the nation's 120,000 teachers.

The teachers had received no pay raises since 1966. They walked out Sept. 1, demanding pay raises estimated to total two billion soles, or $50 million. They rejected two offers, including one totalling 1.2 billion soles.

The government, which has voiced pride in the social peace which has accompanied its rule, acted with speed and military efficiency, using police to break up teachers' meetings and public demonstrations.

The walkout ended following a split in teachers' ranks and the arrest and deportation of the National Teachers Federation president, Pedro Armacanqui, and other leaders.

DEMANDS JUST

Although it recognized the teacher demands as just, the government said to meet them in full would "compromise the stability of the national budget and the solidity of Peruvian currency."

A series of mining industry strikes began late last year, aimde mainly at the country's three largest mining companies, Cerro de Pasco Corp., Southern Peru Copper Corp. and Macona Mrining Co., all U.S.-owned.

President Velasco asked workers to realize that they no longer face "a conservative and anti-popular government." He warned that the government would act energetically if damage to the economy caused by production drops did not stop.

Nine strikes, abnormally low sales of fishmeal, and a drop in metals prices were blamed recently for a 6½-per-cent cut in the government's two-year 1971-72 national budget. Gen. Francisco Morales, economy minister, reported that exports dropped 26 per cent in value over the first half of this year while imports rose by 16 per cent.

Emphasizing that heavy payments are being made on Peru's foreign debt, estimated at $1 billion, Morales placed net foreign exchange reserves at $332 million Aug. 1. Reserves totalled only $60 million when the military took over.

Price problems and the inexperience of a state monopoly formed to market fishmeal, Peru's second most important export behind minerals, resulted in a surplus of almost one million tons early this year.

The government says the remaining 650,000 tons will be sold by next March. Much of the product, used for hog and chicken feed, will go to mainland Communist China and Cuba.

Government steps have brought dramatic changes in some areas, notably in the semi-feudal system of land ownership. Gradually, the latifundios, or large estates, are being expropriated and turned over to landless peasants. The 1969 agrarian reform law is a cornerstone of government policy.

$20,000 In Kickbacks

MONTREAL (CP) — Maurice Bergeron, former mayor of the Montreal suburb of St. Michel, pleaded guilty Tuesday to seven charges alleging municipal corruption.

Bergeron, appearing before Sessions Court Judge Andre Fabien, said he received kickbacks of $20,000 in awarding a contract for the construction of an arena.

The former mayor also admitted receiving remuneration for issuing a social club licence to a veteran's association and accepting $2,000 from the city's police union for a favorable contract.

In pleading guilty, Bergeron said he acquired smaller amounts, such as $300 on three occasions, when he had a rookie policeman reinstated on the force.

The Supreme Court of Canada recently upheld a one-year jail sentence and a $5,000 fine imposed on Bergeron, who was found guilty in February, 1970, of conspiracy to obtain a bribe.

Several members of the now non-existent council are still before the courts on charges of municipal irregularities.

GREEN HONORED

OTTAWA (CP) — About 250 friends of Howard Green paid tribute Tuesday night to the former external affairs minister at a parliamentary dinner.

The tributes came from political allies in the Progressive Conservative party and onetime debating foes in Liberal ranks.

The dinner for Mr. Green, who will be 76 next month, was held in the ornate Confederation Room of Parliament's West Block. He was invited from his home in Vancouver.

External affairs minister from 1959 to 1963, and public works minister before that, Mr. Green was an MP for 28 years, first for Vancouver South and then Vancouver Quadra, until defeated in 1963.

Philip Gives Children One Vote But No 'Goo'

NEW YORK (AP) — Prince Philip believes in raising children by "committee," leaves day-to-day bottom spanking to palace nannies and doesn't "goo" over the children, says the author of his official biography in a special chapter published here this week.

Basil Boothroyd, a former writer for the British humor magazine Punch, said he discussed Prince Philip's child-raising theories last April after he had completed the British version of his best seller, Prince Philip, An Informal Biography.

Boothroyd said Philip is not a sentimentalist but does not live up to his image of stern disciplinarian who lays down the law for the children.

He checked school reports for Prince Charles, now 22, and Princess Anne, 21, and still does for the two younger boys, Andre 11, and Edward, 7, but he doesn't worry unless they hit bottom.

"I say, 'Look, I'm only going to bother if you're permanently on bottom.'" Philip is quoted as saying. "I really couldn't care less where you are. Just stay in the middle, that's all I ask."

Boothroyd said that once the children are old enough to have "sensible" views they are raised on a committee basis, with the children getting a vote.

"It's not good saying do this, do that, don't do that, don't do this," said Philip. "You can warn them about certain things. That's about the most you can do, or you can say: 'This is the situation you're in. These are the choices. On balance it looks as if this is the sensible one. Go away and come back and let me know what you think.'"

The author said punishments were handled in the nursery but that palace employees said the greatest discipline was simple disapproval by Philip, which the author suggested could have an edge "like an ice axe" because the children always wanted to please their parents.

Boothroyd said Philip never appeared sentimental over the children but was proud of them. He had nothing but admiration for the way Charles handled himself at his investiture as Prince of Wales.

THIS ACTOR REALLY BIG TIME

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — He ducks going through doorways. He sleeps in a king-size bed. At 7-feet-2 and 300 pounds, Dick Kiel is beyond doubt Hollywood's biggest actor.

"You can't make the whole world fit you, you have to adjust to the world," says the gentle giant, philosophical about his size.

As for acting:

"My size was a big help getting started. Maybe it's a bit of a hindrance at times, but I like being big."

Then, with a grin crinkling massive features: "Of course, I play a lot of heavies."

His roles have included Russian spies, the bad guy in Westerns, the dumb-bunny type who kills people and doesn't really know what he's doing.

"I used to resent playing demented characters, then began to realize that people enjoy them."

A role as a seaman who tucked two people under his arms and tossed them into a trash bin in TV's late Man from Uncle started him playing, he said, "ordinary heavies." That is, not demented.

"It was my first break in TV."

CANADIAN INJURED IN BUS SMASHUP

PORTLAND (CP) — A Greyhound bus bound for Vancouver from Los Angeles slammed into a truck and trailer rig in southwest Portland Tuesday, injuring 19 persons, including one Canadian.

Richard Evers, 76, of Creston, was held for observation in hospital in Portland. Hospital authorities said there were no serious injuries.

NOW FISCHER CAN COAST

BUENOS AIRES — With two wins in a row Bobby Fischer is within two points of victory in his tussle with Tigran Petrosian for the right to meet world chess champion Boris Spassky next spring. Fischer won his match against Petrosian Tuesday night in convincing style. He can now coast to victory in the tournament by playing for draws in the remaining games to get him the required 6½ points. Fischer now has 4½ points to Petrosian's 2½. A win scores a point, a draw half a piont. Of course there is no indication he will take this safe course.

LONDON — Fate has been hard on John O'Grady this week. First he was fired from his job at a firm of gin makers. He then forgot to contribute his weekly share of less than $1 to a soccer pool syndicate. The syndicate won $240,000. John won't get any of it.

STANFORD, Calif. — Drug researcher Dr. Raphael Mechoulam of Hebrew University in Jerusalem says a marijuana "high" apparently is produced by the body trying to rid itself of the drug. Mechoulam says the body excretes everything it does not want or cannot use.

WASHINGTON — Rufus Youngblood, the Secret Service agent who protected Lyndon Johnson with his body when President Kennedy was shot in 1963, has been hounded out of the service into an early retirement, the Washington Post reports. The paper says Youngblood's heroism marked him as a "Johnson man" and that Nixon administration officials had virtually forced him out of the service.

LOS ANGELES — Actress Kim Novak has accepted a $49,000 settlement in her $1 million suit against a car repair firm. Miss Novak said she suffered cuts, abrasions and concussion in 1966 when her car overturned after a rear wheel came off.

AMHERST, Mass. — When he was a student, writer William Manchester checked out a book from the University of Masachusetts library and forgot to return it. Last week, the author of The Death of the President, returned the book with the fine he figured he owed — $505.69 for being overdue 29 years, five months and 10 days. Manchester, now president of the University Trustees of the Friends of the Library, said he found the book, Six Plays by Clifford Odets, in his files. He said that as a library trustee he ought to set a good example.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — The Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), which in its early history kept Negro slaves segregated in its services, has elected a black man to its highest office. Dr. Walter Bingham was unanimously voted in a moderator. Among the church's members are former U.S. president Lyndon Johnson and California Governor Ronald Reagan.

Houston's White Dawn To Be Shot in Spring

NEW YORK — The Eskimos are coming. Or, rather, the Eskimos are staying put and we are going to them — "we" being the ever-adventurous Martin Ransohoff and a crew of stalwart, long-johned moviemakers.

Producer Ransohoff has purchased rights to "White Dawn," James Houston's recent novel about three whalers who were shipwrecked in 1896 and had to come to terms with the Eskimos, their culture and their climate. The film, to be shot in both English and the Eskimo language, will get under way next spring on ice-cold Baffin Island — 900 miles from the North Pole, where the real-life events that inspired Houston's novel took place.

Houston, a Canadian who served as the first civil administrator of West Baffin Island for 12 years, will also function as technical supervisor on "White Dawn." Except for the three principals — one of whom Ransohoff says will be played by a black actor — all the roles will be acted by Eskimos.

Chester Erskine is having another cinematic fling. Erskine — a veteran writer, producer and director — had a hand in such diverse items over the years as The Sailor Takes a Wife, The Egg and I, All My Sons, Take One False Step, Androcles and the Lion, and Split Second, but his last movie was The Wonderful Country in 1959. Now, all of a sudden he pops up on Fire Island, directing A Change in the Wind, based on his own screenplay.

A change in the Wind takes place during the prohibition era — in fact, on the very day that Lindbergh flew the Atlantic — and it concerns an Irishman who comes to this country but continues to help finance the cause for Irish independence by becoming a rum runner. The cast includes Anne Meara, Stephen Joyce, Bill Devane, Richard Mulligan and John Pleshette.

Wanna get away from it all? Well, so do a lot of other people — even a psychiatrist or two. Such as the protagonist of The Diceman, Luke Rhinehart's novel which has been acquired for filming by Si Litvinoff, producer of Walkabout.

Litvinoff says that The Diceman deals with "a psychiatrist who decides his life by rolls of the dice." And then, as luck would have it, the fickle fellow rolls his way right into raping his best friend's wife, murdering one of his prize patients and other similarly embarrassing activities.

Fewer Convicts

ROME (Reuter) — Italy's jails hold more people awaiting trial than convicted prisoners, the National Institute of Statistics said Tuesday. The convicts number 9,009, of whom 508 are serving life sentences, while those awaiting trial number 12,429.

HOME GARDEN

Spray Types Now Blooming

By HILDA BEASTALL

Chrysanthemums as a garden display may represent to you constant work from spring to fall, with the end suddenly apparent as October closes.

But as with other flowers — it all depends on varieties chosen.

If your wish is to have masses of flower colors by the first of October which will stand up well to frosts, wind and rain and still go into November looking presentable, you can achieve this too.

It is the spray types of chrysanthemums which have these attributes, and the slightly dwarfer cushion types.

Blooming now at three and a half foot height are two sprays which complement each other beautifully, both as garden plants and for cut flowers. Sweet Seventeen is a soft pink and Drifted Snow a particularly clean white.

For first year effect you would need to buy three young rooted cuttings of each variety in spring, planting them in a triangular group as support to each other during the blooming period.

* * *

The following year, your stock is increased by taking as many cuttings in spring as needed, and throwing out the old plants. Or you could take young rooted pieces from the outside edges of the root clumps (stools) in spring, discarding the old woody central portions.

Pinching the single stem growth in early summer causes the chrysanthemum to break into side growths. With sprays and cushions, several growths are allowed, for it is these which produce the solid mass of color.

You may never have seen quite the quantity of bloom as will greet you at the "custhion" end of the display bed.

Knockout is the name of a lovely pink, a well-chosen name indeed. If you prefer bronze tones in your fall garden, choose Pancho, a warm bronze; Brick Red, another bronzy tone; Falcon, a most attractive bronze with anemone centre; and Bronze Queen, with a smaller flower.

These cushions are all around 30 inches high, though in some soils they stop at 24 or so. Color was in the buds by early September and this week the plants appear good for another month.

SOLUTION THURSDAY

Karpin on Bridge

By FRED KARPIN

It might well be that when the reader perceives how our South declarer played his game contract in today's deal, he will conclude that I am pulling his leg. That is, he might find it impossible to believe that anybody could play a hand as poorly as South did. But the fact is that South did play it as presented. And I have a witness who will confirm my story. The witness is South's partner, North.

Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

♣ 10 8 5

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♣	Pass	1♡	2◇
2♡	Pass	4♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ◇.

To tricks one and two, West cashed the king and ace of diamonds. To trick three he promptly led the deuce of clubs. After some thought, declarer put up dummy's ace, spurning the finesse.

The ace, king, and queen of trumps were then cashed, gathering in the outstanding pieces. South then led his queen of spades, and took the finesse when West followed suit with a low spade. East captured this trick with his king, and returned a club. West now took the king of clubs for the setting trick.

It is rather obvious that if South had taken the club finesse at trick three, he would have fulfilled his contract by avoiding the loss of a club trick to West's king. What motivated declarer to decline to take the club finesse?

This is only conjecture on my part, but I would say that declarer had a hunch that West's deuce of clubs was a singleton. And that if the club finesse were taken, East, upon capturing the trick with his king, would return a club for West to ruff. If this happened, declarer would be down before he ever won a trick.

Admittedly, West's deuce of clubs might have been a singleton. But declarer failed to consider one important thing. What choice did West have at trick three, as he looked at the dummy? It was to lead either a spade or a club. And if West happened to possess the club king, he would perceive that His Majesty was hopelessly trapped by dummy's club holding, with no escape.

From West's position, therefore, if he held the club king, a lead of a low club at trick three might "scare" declarer into believing that West's club lead was a singleton lead, and that by making this lead before trumps were drawn, he would talk declarer out of finessing. As has been observed, West succeeded admirably.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

Fred checked the invoice. "Boxes at fifty cents and stands at forty-seven," he said.

"What's funny about that?"

"Look again," John told him.

"The dollars are the number of stands and the cents in the total are the number of boxes."

What was the amount of that invoice?

(Answer tomorrow)

Yesterday's answer: RITA was 1479 (odd).

CAN YOU BEAR SKIING IN BAVARIA?

KEMPTEN, Germany (UPI) — Followers of the nudist cult no longer wait for the summer to strip on the beaches, at least not in Bavaria.

The tourist office of this Bavarian winter sports paradise has said that slalom track has been reserved for skiers wanting to perform their sport in the nude on the 3,600 foot high Buschenberg slope.

HOTEL TRIES WATER BEDS

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Customers at the Sheraton Hotel here will soon have the option of having single, double or water beds in their rooms.

The management said they have bought 1,300 waterbeds for the 930-room hotel to test acceptance of the liquid mattresses by the public.

Mexican Traders Hoping To Sell More to Canada

By KEVIN M. KELLEGHAN

MEXICO CITY (CP) — A Mexican trade mission to Canada this fall will seek—figuratively—to step over the United States and its 10-per-cent surcharge on imports to increase trade with Canada.

Observers say prospects for Canadian sales to Mexico are better than ever and sales continue to rise. Canada also has a favorable balance of trade with Mexico.

Canada has built up a favorable balance of more than $27 million dollars in three main groups of manufactured products.

Paper, cardboard and paper pulp, railroad equipment and asbestos account for 60 per cent of Mexico's total purchases from Canada.

Canada is among Mexico's 10 most important world trading partners. Canada is eighth most important purchaser and stands seventh in importance as supplier of Mexico's import requirements.

In spite of this, Canada's share of Mexico's total foreign trade has accounted for only about two per cent of exports and imports on an average, in recent years.

Direct investment in Mexico by Canadian corporations is low in comparison with Canadian interests in the Caribbean.

Investment is estimated at $40-$45 million and barely rising.

Canadian corporate names in Mexico, many in joint ventures, include Massey Ferguson, Aluminum Co. of Canada, Seagrams Overseas, Canada Wire and Cable Co. and Polymer Corp.

Observers say Canadians can increase sales to Mexico, especially in areas where products have already penetrated the market.

The following is a selection of major Mexican imports from Canada for the first nine months of 1970: white newsprint $3,998,000; asbestos $4,160,000; railroad equipment $2,127,000; paper pulp $1,961,000; cattle $1,274,000; auto parts $1,504,000; construction equipment, machinery $106,000; computers $92,000; medicine $62,000; tractors $86,000.

Other factors seen as making trade with Mexico attractive are the absence of exchange restrictions and the complementary nature of the two economic structures and agricultural production cycles.

Added to this are geographic proximity and the availability of transportation.

Canada gives Mexico most-favored-nation treatment as a result of the Mexican-Canadian trade agreement signed Feb. 8, 1946.

Both governments have shown interest in achieving higher trade levels.

The two countries signed an agreement in May, 1971, to increase air routes for national airlines flying to both countries.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Noel Hutchinson wish to express grateful appreciation to their friends and those of Bessy Hutchinson who have shown their concern and affection by cards, flowers, phone calls, and donations to the Cancer Fund. Also to thank Rev. A. Calder and Sands Mortuary Limited for their kind and considerate attention.

We wish to thank our friends for their kindness during our recent bereavement of Muriel Barker and especially Dr's G. Cox and Dr. Curran and the nursing staff of two Royal and 4th floor, Royal Jubilee Hospital. — Mr. A. J. Barker and family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

PRYCE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, George Ernest Pryce, who passed away October 20, 1970.
There is someone who misses you sadly,
And finds the time long since you went.
There is someone who thinks of you always,
And tries to be brave and content.
Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent the voice we loved to hear;
'Tis sad, but true, we wonder why,
The best are always the first to die.
—Joyce, Marvin, Kenneth and Donald.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

New Drug Effective TB Cure

Back when I was an intern in the huge city and county hospital in San Francisco, in 1905-1907, tuberculosis was a common disease, and was perhaps the main cause of death. In those days I always had several persons in my ward who were in the final stages of tuberculosis. Unfortunately, in those days I could not do anything curative for these patients and practically all of them died after some months.

Tuberculosis has been with us since the dawn of recorded history. Evidence of tuberculosis has been found in Egyptian mummies dating as far back as 1000 B.C. Today we have the capability to wipe tuberculosis off the face of the earth. Recently, a new drug called rifampim or Rimactine, an oral antibiotic, has been found to be very effective in curing tuberculosis, especially when it is combined with another anti-tuberculosis drug. It was tested on 631 patients and was found to be almost free from unpleasant side effects. It allows the patients to be dismissed from the hospital two weeks earlier than when they took only the older drugs. Persons working with tuberculosis patients have not been so enthusiastic about any drug since isoniazid was introduced in the early 1950s.

Although tuberculosis incidence in the United States is declining, and death from the disease has been reduced from 150 per 100,000 to 5 per 100,000 persons, one expert estimates that 37,000 Americans will develop active tuberculosis this year. An average of 25,000 persons are hospitalized every year with newly diagnosed tuberculosis.

The fact that Harlem in New York has a new tuberculosis case rate six times higher than the national rate shows the influence of poverty.

My good friend George Sluka sometimes runs the truck which carries an X-ray unit throughout Chicago, in order to find persons with tuberculosis. He said the highest concentration of tuberculos patients he found were on Skid Row. One of the biggest problems with tuberculosis today is persuading the person to go for treatment. The reason we have not been able to wipe out tuberculosis has been public indifference to the disease. Even after the diagnosis has been made, it is sometimes difficult to get a person to take the curative drug steadily.

I remember, around 1920, when I had a wealthy and well-educated patient with severe tuberculosis who was so determined that no one would every discover what he had that he wouldn't go near a sanatorium. He remained living with his wife and several children got a tuberculosis meningitis and died. Another child got childhern got a tuberculosis meningitis and died. Another child got a tuberculous arthritis. The shocking thing was that this man was willing to cause the death of all of his loved ones if he had to, in order to hide the fact that he had tuberculosis.

Tuberculosis is caused by a germ that can easily be spread from person to person. When the person with active tuberculosis sneezes or coughs, his germs are sprayed into the air around him. Not everyone who comes in contact with tuberculosis germs gets an active case of the disease. If the germs get into his lungs, his body fights back, and if his health is good, and there aren't too many germs, some of these germs will be killed by the man's white blood cells, and others may be walled up in a small mass where they can do no harm. The small mass is called a TUBERCLE. Thus, a person may be exposed to the disease as a child and then perhaps will have few symptoms. The germs became completely encased in the tubercle. But years later, as the person ages and his bodily resistance goes down, or he lives on a poor diet or has another illness, the germs walled up in the tubercles may break out.

21' FIBREFORM. We goofed on this one. So new (40 hours) we thought it was a 1971. It is 1970. Cost new in excess of $12,000. Can anybody refuse it at $9,000? Many extras.

CHARACTER 30' diesel cruiser. Less than 700 hours use. Loaded with top quality extras, 4 berths, dinette, you name it it's aboard. Let's try only $8500.

RAWSON 26. Used only 1 month. Repossessed! New 1971 O-B. Sails anchor, compass, de luxe interior. Replacement in excess of $9400 only $8,000 is a bargain. We might get it for you for less.

SUPER CRAFT 32. Twin diesels, 450 hrs. use, 6 berths, shower, hot water, aft cabin, shower, 2 heads. Immaculate, able superb cabinet work and finish. A buy at $27,000. Let's see if we can get her for you for less.

And many more power and sail big or small.

NOMAD
NOMAD
NOMAD

Many veteran Victoria trailerists are purchasing NOMAD TRAVEL TRAILERS after comparing Nomad with the many fine competitive makes available in Victoria. The reason? Nomad gives them top value for every dollar invested. We invite your comparison. Come in and inspect the many value packed Nomad trailers on display. We know you'll like what you see if you are not averse to buying a quality product and saving money at the same time.

We are pleased to advise that our winter in Arizona promotion has been so successful it will be continued until Oct. 30th. We will pay for all the gas used during your winter trailer vacation with the purchase of any new Nomad Trailer.

TRUE
or FALSE???

TRUE

That's why we can't offer any fancy sales gimmicks to move our merchandise. We do offer, however, high quality trailers, reasonably priced, and every sale is backed up by our expert friendly service.

STILL AVAILABLE

A few fully C.S.A. certified 1971 SCAMPERS and SOUTH PARKS as well as 1972 BOLERS.

Suez Pipeline Is Making Canal Look Like a Permanent Anti-Tank Ditch

The Manchester Guardian

The Suez Canal is dead. Long live the Suez pipeline.

It may be pessimistic to write off the canal as a permanent anti-tank ditch, but as work on the 300-mile Suez-Mediterranean oil pipeline at last gets under way, it looks as though the fabled waterway's importance will never be quite the same again.

Within three years and after the expenditure of some $300 million, it should be possible for 120 million tons a year of Middle East oil to bypass the Cape en route for Europe — assuming the demand is still there.

That will be about 70 per cent of the amount which passed through the Suez canal in 1966, the last full year before the closure, and more than a third of western Europe's present consumption of Middle East crude oil.

The gross revenue to Egypt should be in the region of $180 million a year compared with canal receipts running at about $100 million a year before the 1967 June war.

Compared with high dams and broad canals, pipelines are singularly unromantic. Christen them with such technocratic jargon as Sumed (Suez-Mediterranean) and they become unspeakable.

But, as the figures show, this is a massive project. In terms of investment it is not so very far short of the high dam — it could be as important for Egypt, and far more so for the rest of the world. Its political implications are intriguing.

COMPETITIVE

Although the project is effectively a child of the canal closure, the idea was first put to the Egyptian government before the June war by a British firm of consultants, International Management and Engineering Group.

It estimated that a pipeline from the gulf of Suez to the Mediterranean with terminals taking tankers up to 250,000 tons would be competitive both with the canal itself and with giant tankers going round the Cape, especially for feeding markets in the Mediterranean.

Correct though those figures may have been, it is doubtful whether anything would have resulted if the canal had remained in service. The canal authority naturally disliked the idea which would have jeopardised its grandiose plans for widening and deepening the canal to take tankers up to 250,000 tons.

And as the advantages for Europe would have been small, it is unlikely that European finance would have been available. Even since the canal closure and the steep rise in tanker rates finance has proved Sumed's main problem.

TOOK UP IDEA

After the 1967 war the Egyptians took up the idea quickly. IMEG did detailed design studies, the work was put up to international tender and by July, 1969, a construction agreement had been signed with a consortium led by the French Socea group (Societe Eau et Assainissements) for a 42-inch, 60 million-ton line.

The first stage was scheduled to be in operation by mid-1971, but negotiations with European banks and governments, which were to provide finance and credit backing dragged on and on, partly because they made the supply of finance conditional on Egypt first obtaining some Arab backing.

Though the French promised 25 per cent of the foreign exchange cost (itself four fifths of the total) and the Italians a further large amount, the political uncertainties did not appeal to the oil companies.

It was not until the end of last year that things began to go Egypt's way. The major oil companies, seeing tanker costs rising alarmingly (construction costs as much as charter rates) agreed to buy oil from the pipeline; the continuing ceasefire gave more confidence; political rapprochement with Saudi Arabia brought their financial support.

Then early this year the British government effectively backed British participation to the tune of some $25 million. Though this was not a large sum compared to other western countries, it came at a critical moment and persuaded others to turn tentative offers into firm ones.

POTENTIAL

As the potential of the pipeline became more evident, so the Egyptians realized that they could sell far more oil than one 42-inch line would give. So they asked for either a 48-inch or a second 42-inch line. This meant that a completely new contract had to be reached with the consortium.

On July 31, 1971, the members of the consortium put their names to an agreement with the Egyptian government to build two 42-inch lines at a cost of $280 million.

Oil should be flowing at a rate of 80 million tons a year within 32 months; this will be raised to 120 million tons once a second pump station is in operation.

CLEAR OF CANAL

With operating costs probably not more than $15 million a year it could pay for itself in three years working at full capacity.

The line will keep well clear of the canal. Starting at Ain Sokhna some 400 miles to the south of Suez it will go almost due west and cross the Nile well south of Cairo before turning north to its terminal near Alexandria.

From the point of view of western Europe the pipeline is both opportunity and risk. There is the chance of reducing some of the huge cost of the canal closure. According to recent estimates at current prices Sumed would show a 49 per cent advantage in freight costs for oil delivered in the Mediterranean and 33 per cent for Scandinavia.

With assumed transit charge of $1.40 per ton, tanker rates would have to fall greatly for the Cape route to be cheaper.

But Sumed would also make Europe more dependent on Middle East stability. The Cape route may be long, but at least there are few obstacles. European supplies are now more diversified than in 1956 or '67 but the loss of say 15 per cent of supplies would be an embarrassment.

Freeze Limit Considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is speeding consideration of President Nixon's Phase Two economic measures, but is under pressure to set some limits on future authority to freeze wages and prices.

Nixon sent his proposal to the Capitol Tuesday, including an extension of control powers until April 30, 1973, legislative underpinning for the proposed pay board and price commission, standby authority to control interest and dividends and a temporary special court of appeals.

Chairman Wright Patman said his House of Representatives banking committee will open hearings Thursday and will want to explore carefully some of the proposals. One question, he said, is whether Congress will grant a full year's extension of control powers, or set a time limit that would permit earlier review.

The Senate banking committee set Nov. 1 for the beginning of hearings. Its second-ranking Democratic member, Senator William Proxmire, said it should consider writing into the law a requirement that previously negotiated step increases in wages should go into effect after the current 90-day freeze expires Nov. 13.

Proxmire said he is studying means of exempting workers below the poverty level from any provisions that would prevent their receiving pay increase.

Quiet Strike Closes U.S. Coal Mines

WASHINGTON (WP) — There were no frenzied rallies, no hurried collection of a strike-benefits fund, no mounting of picket lines and no official declarations of a strike.

But on Sept. 30, from New Mexico to Appalachia, unionized coal miners shut off their high-speed machines and quietly left the underground pits and strip mines.

Their three-year contract with the soft-coal industry expired that day. And since then, following an inviolate union tradition of "no contract, no coal," the men of the United Mine Workers of America have remained away from the mines.

As a breed, coal miners are remarkably independent. And as a strike, this walkout has its remarkable aspects, including the fact that the men have stayed off the job a full two weeks without a cent of income — not even strike benefits from their wealthy union.

ANYONE'S GUESS

Precisely when and on whose terms the nearly 100,000 union members will return to work is anyone's guess. "Not a single pound of coal will be mined" without a contract, Union President W. A. (Tony) Boyle said last week as he issued a no-progress report on negotiations.

Later reports from the union and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, the industry's bargaining arm, indicated the contract talks remained on dead centre, with the likelihood of a lengthy stalemate.

Despite a gentle prod last weekend from President Nixon, who said there is "no reason why a settlement should not be reached," management clearly is in no hurry to rush into a new contract. The coal stockpile is nowhere near a danger level, with electric utilities reporting as much as 80 days supply on hand.

'PRETEXT'

Boyle is accusing the coal operators of hiding behind the administration's economic freeze and the uncertainty of Phase II as a pretext for stalling negotiations.

The operators, for their part, aren't talking publicly. Their pre-negotiations stance indicated the union would be in for some hard bargaining. All the emphasis was on fast-rising operating costs and an "alarming" drop in productivity.

Behind the tough line of the operators and the apparently solid union ranks, however, lies another story. The man on the spot is neither the militant coal miner nor the unyielding coal operator. It is the embattled Tony Boyle, whose waning prestige and control in the union are squarely on the line.

TWO SUITS

Contract negotiation is just one of Boyle's immediate problems. His bargaining work has been interrupted by pretrial proceedings in the government's conspiracy — embezzlement case against him. Another federal suit, seeking to nullify Boyle's 1969 re-election on grounds of fraud, is being tried here at the same time.

Even though the miners' union, unlike many unions, has no-rank-and-file ratification of contracts in theory, miners have made it plain that they and not Boyle or his hand-picked wage policy committee — will decide when work resumes.

Boyle, president since 1963 when he got the nod from the late John L. Lewis, has heard these rumblings before. But this time it is different. The dissidents now are organized and the flaws of the past are clearly perceived.

BASIC DEMANDS

While Boyle has met with his policy committee in distant New York, unhappy miners throughout the coal fields have had their own meetings and have come up with basic demands that include:

- A six-hour day;
- A wage increase from the present $37 to $50 a day;
- Guaranteed pensions for retired and disabled miners and widows;
- Paid sick leave;
- Improved grievance procedures;
- Greater authority for union safety committees in the mines;
- A boost in the industry's pension-fund contributions from 40 cents a ton to 1 dollar;
- Contract negotiation on a one or two-year basis rather than three as is now the case;
- Rank-and-file ratification.

Refugee Flow War Catalyst

DACCA, East Pakistan (NYT) — The horror of life in East Pakistan shows every sign of becoming institutionalized and most, if not all, the foreigners who came hoping to help are on the verge of despair.

In particular, the chances of reversing the tide of millions of destitute refugees who have fled to India seem remote, and most governments consider the refugee problem the main catalyst in the atmosphere of war prevailing on the subcontinent.

India charges that military terror in East Pakistan since the central government moved against the Bengali separatists last March 25 has driven nine million refugees across her borders. Those people, the Indians say, are an intolerable drain on already vastly overtaxed economic resources and a force that could result in a political catastrophe or internal warfare. The New Delhi Government has hinted that as a last resort it might try to change the situation in East Pakistan by force to induce the refugees, whom Pakistan numbers at less than a third of the Indian figure, to leave India. Pakistan has hastened her own preparations for war. Major troop movements have been reported here and in India in the last few weeks.

ENTANGLED

The Soviet Union, China and the United States, among other nations, are deeply entangled in the feud. The United Nations and other international organizations have been working with great urgency to alleviate the misery and, especially, to prevent war.

Dozens of Governments have teams of experts, technicians and diplomats working in East Pakistan. The United Nations East Pakistan Relief Operation alone has 75 officials here.

There is some disagreement among the hundreds of foreign officials about the techniques by which the refugees could be repatriated. But there is apparent unanimity on one subject: that East Pakistan should eradicate its reputation as a place of endless horror and suffering.

CHANGES SOUGHT

To that end many governments, including that of the United States, have pressed the Pakistani Government at Islamabad for fundamental changes in East Pakistan, among them these:

- The end of police and military terror directed against thousands of political suspects and millions of non-Moslem members of ethnic and religious minorities.
- A reasonably representative Government in Dacca, capable of restoring the faith of East Pakistan's population in the future of democracy.
- A much more convincing effort by the central government to relieve the physical suffering wrought on East Pakistan's predominantly Bangali population by flood, cyclone, and war in the last year.

NO PROGRESS

The consensus among the foreigners working here is that there has been no real progress in any of those areas. Whispered conversations with Bengalis still have to do largely with alleged atrocities by the occupation army, which is largely made up of West Pakistanis and is hated by most of the population.

Meanwhile, the anguish of war continues in the countryside.

The guerrillas are taking an increasing toll of the occupation army and medical circles report growing numbers of bodies of soldiers. The guerrillas are also said to be assassinating members of the local "peace committees," civilian groups made up mostly of non-Bengalis, and assigned to carry out army administration of occupied areas.

HEAVY LOSS

When troops or peace committees are attacked, the army burns hamlets to the in reprisal, and local reports usually tell of heavy losses of life.

The pessimism among foreign observers is formidable.

"There is really nothing anyone with any amount of money can do for East Pakistan," a relief expert commented. "It seems to be an irredeemable land whose people are doomed from birth, and as the population of subcontinent doubles every generation, it will only get worse."

"My own feeling," he added, "and I know lots of us share it, is that the outside world might just as well pull out now and let things here take their inevitable course."

World Problems Unite Brains

NEW YORK (NYT) — Scientific representatives from eight nations, both east and west, have agreed to set up an internation institute to focus some of the world's best brains on the complex problems arising from modern technology.

The project is the fruit of four years of private Soviet-American negotiations, culminating in the eight-nation conference, held recently in Paris.

The research centre, to be known as the International Institute of Applied Systems Analysis, will initially be directed by an American, with a Soviet deputy director. The two candidate sites are Lamemburg Castle on the outskirts of Vienna or the former headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization near Fountainbleau in France.

PROBLEMS UNITE

A number of scientists consider the project an important development in east-west relations. It is one of several current developments that they believe demonstrate a growning conviction in the Communist and non-Communist worlds that the problems common to all technological societies rival in importance their ideological differences.

A special feature of the projected institute is that an East German will sit on its governing board along with an American. This, according to sources at the National Academy of Sciences, will be the first such contact tetween the two countries and it has reportedly caused some concern at the state department.

However, the representation on the institute board will be by national academies of science, rather than governments. This was also the case of the Paris meeting. The other participants were Britain, France, Italy, Poland and West Germany.

It is hoped that at least two or more of the highly industrialized countries can be added to the roster of founding members.

While East German participation worried American officialdom, the Russians have reportedly been inhibited by fears that their participation would be taken as an acceptance of "convergence." This is the view that modern technology is rendering more and more inconsequential the ideological differences between the Communist and non-Communist systems.

Although expounded by such prominent Soviet scientists as Dr. Andrei D. Sakharov, the physicist, the idea of convergence is heretical to the Soviet hierarchy.

Among other developments in the international use of systems analysis to attack world problems is expansion of the so-called Club of Rome effort. It is to include a decision-making testing laboratory at the Battelle Institute in Geneva, Switzerland.

COMPUTERS USED

Systems analysis is the use of mathematical models and computers to analyze situations too complex for resolution by the human brain. The Club of Rome is an international group of industrialists, academic leaders and specialists in systems analysis dedicated to the proposition that only in this way can the world be spared a catastrophe.

While its members are western, the fact that two of its meetings, including one last July, have been held in Moscow at Soviet invitation, manifests Russian interest.

TIPPLERS TO STAR ON TV SHOW

BASINGSTOKE, England (UPI) — Alcoholics soon will be able to see themselves as other see them — on video tape shown the morning after the night before.

The video tape unit is being installed at Park Prewett Hospital next month following a grant from the department of health.

"Next day they refuse to believe how bad they were when they rolled back in," the doctor said. "But a film show will be beyond dispute. They will get quite a shock when they see how they behaved."

Union for Unemployed Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Delegates to the International Woodworkers of America annual regional convention Tuesday unanimously passed a motion calling for provincial federations of labor and the Canadian Labor Congress to set up a union for the unemployed.

The 200 delegates also passed a resolution outlining a six-step program to combat the problem of rising housing costs.

The resolution calls for federal government action to curtail the abnormal rise in the cost of building materials, massive land assembly by all levels of governments with long-term lease arrangements and federal and provincial subsidizing of interest rates and mortgages to bring levels down.

REVIEW BOARDS

It also calls for the elimination of speculators in low-cost subsidized housing developments and the establishment of a department of housing and urban affairs and rental review boards in all areas aimed at controlling profiteering.

The preamble to the resolution said research shows the average Canadian worker cannot afford adequate housing for himself and his family.

Provincial Labor Minster James Chabot told delegates that unions must remove technical change as an obstacle to improved labor relations.

"I feel it is through technological change that the working people of our province will more rapidly be able to enjoy improved working conditions and increased job satisfaction," he said.

However, the main obstacle to this progress was associated with the problems of technical change.

NEW WAYS

"In coming years, our unions and companies will be required, of necessity, to adopt new methods, new materials, new techniques, to sustain themselves," he said.

"In this regard, labor and management must be increasingly receptive to the suggestions to iron out problems and minor irritations that inevitably accompany changes in working procedures.

While on the subject of labor management co-operation, Chabot said that without such co-operation and if inflation persists it is possible that Canada might be faced with the same type of wage and price controls as have been instituted in the U.S.

"Accordingly, labor, management and government must share in an over-all policy whereby future collective agreements reflect in equal terms fair and just treatment for the worker, the firm, and the general public," he said.

Chabot said that although B.C. is the only province that has shown a drop in unemployment for September compared to last year's rate, it is faced with the problem of how it can most "effectively and efficiently" provide for a "very rapidly growing manpower resource."

Hydro Counters With 12% Offer

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority has offered its electrical workers wage increases of 32 cents an hour in each year of a two-year contract.

The proposal, made Tuesday at an arbitration hearing before Supreme Court Justice Nathan Nemetz, amounts to an increase of about 12 per cent on the average hourly rate for about 2,200 members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

The IBEW asked Monday for wage increases totalling 22 per cent in the two-year contract retroactive to April 1.

Hydro said its proposed wage increases would, by the end of the contract's term, put linemen's hourly rates ahead of those in utility companies elsewhere in Canada. It said fringe benefits and working conditions provisions would add $1.74 an hour to the linemen's current rate of $5.39.

Arbitration proceedings began Thursday following a four-day strike by the IBEW.

Mr. Justice Nemetz said the hearing will probably continue into next week to allow Hydro to complete its case and the union to present a rebuttal. His decision will be binding.

Progress Reported

REGINA (CP) — Progress is being made in discussions with Alberta and Manitoba aimed at setting up a farm machinery testing centre for the Prairies, Saskatchewan Agriculture Minister Jack Messer said Tuesday.

Messer made the announcement at a meeting between Clarence Barber, who conducted a one-man royal commission study of farm machinery, and 75 businessmen, farmers and Prairie government representatives. A farm machinery testing centre was one of Dr. Barber's recommendations.

Act Questioned

REGINA (CP) — The constitutional validity of Saskatchewan's Family Farm Protection Act was questioned Tuesday by lawyer J. M. Goldenberg of Saskatoon.

Goldenberg expressed his doubts in a brief to the special legislative commitee examining the effectiveness of the act.

The act was passed during the summer by the recenity-elected New Democratic Pary provincial government, and places a one-year moratorium on all farm machinery, land and livestock debts incurred before the bill was passed in August.

Hulking Problem

EDMONTON (CP)—The Alberta Department of Highways has a problem: 11,000 car hulks collected during a two-week campaign to clean up the province last May.

Department Engineer V. E. McCune said today 15,000 were collected and only 4,000 have been processed by scrap metal firms. The government has asked for bids on the remainder.

McCune said an estimated 40,000 cars will be scrapped in the province this year and the problem of disposing of them is increasing.

Lads Cause Fire

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two brothers, aged nine and 13, have been accused of touching off a $200,000 fire at a fuel oil supply firm last month. Police said the older boy has been charged with arson in the blaze that destroyed 10 oil tanker trucks. The younger boy was not yet charged.

BANKS CUT RATES IN CANADA, U.S.

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Dominion Bank announced today a reduction in its prime lending rate to 6 per cent from 6½.

A statement from the bank said the move "is intended to assist in stimulating loan demand in the expectation this will contribute to the creation of new employment opportunities."

There was no immediate reaction from other banks but a change in the prime rate by one bank is usually duplicated by others.

Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., one of the biggest United States banks, cut its prime lending rate to 5 per cent from six per cent today and other banks followed suit.

Chief Dan Bags One-Ton Buffalo

'Salmon-Fishing' George Brings Down a Buffalo

The 73-year-old actor from Vancouver shot the animal while on a hunting trip as guest of big-game outfitter Frank Laviolette in the Grande Detrout Camp region near the Alberta border.

"I guess I'm the first Coast Salish that ever shot a buffalo," said Chief George, an Academy Award nominee last year for his role in the film Little Big Man.

"My people were salmon people although they hunted deer and moose. But it did have special significance for me. Being Indian, whether Coast Salish or Cheyenne, hunting has been an important part of my history and the buffalo was an important part of that past."

He arrived at the camp 40 miles west of here Sunday and spent the night in one of the tents on the bank of the Slave River.

The pilot of a spotter aircraft reported two buffalo Monday and the hunt began. That, however, was the only use of mechanical transport.

"This one was a real hunt," said Laviolette. "We did the whole thing on foot from the river and the old chief can walk better than I can."

"That was one hell of a shot," said the outfitter, describing the first shot. "He hit that bull from 200 yards while the animal was on the dead run away from us through the trees."

The chief said he was "glad to have the privilege" of the hunt.

"This was pretty important to me but it was my last hunt. This was hard. This was the right way to hunt."

The 20-square-foot hide will be used for a rug but the animal's meat was inedible because the buffalo had tuberculosis.

"It was too bad about the meat," Laviolette said. "I know it was important to the old man to use what he shot.

"I'm going to try and get him the hind quarter off another buffalo and send it down to him."

Kissinger in Peking

Delicate Task Begins

By JOHN BURNS
Special to the Times

PEKING — Though westerners have been visiting the seat of power in China ever since Marco Polo reached the court of the Mongols in 1275, few have been charged with the momentous responsibilities which faced Henry Kissinger when he alighted from his presidential jetliner in Peking this morning.

GUEST HOUSE

Kissinger and his 20-man party were driven through Peking in a fleet of curtained limousines to a luxurious state guest house normally reserved for heads of state. Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia stayed there earlier this month.

Members of the Kissinger party begin four days of talks in which they are to make concrete arrangements for the visit President Nixon himself is to make to China sometime before next May.

NIXON VISIT

It is an assignment fraught with difficulty for the talks will cover not only the key questions, such as a date and an agenda for the Nixon visit, but a web of subsidiary complications such as protocol, security and press coverage.

In the diplomatic community here, as in the world outside, there will be an acute hunger for information on the talks but the present indications are that there is very little chance of the hunger being requited, at least until Kissinger returns to Washington.

LITTLE SAID

Since the talks were announced two weeks ago both the Americans and the Chinese have retreated behind a shield of confidentiality, allowing only the barest of details to be known.

Correspondents here have been told that there will be no statements of any kind while the talks are in progress.

The date for the Nixon visit may prove to be the least of the problems, for the president has already said that he would prefer it to take place sooner rather than later, a sentiment with which the Chinese appear to agree.

The betting among observers here now centers on a date in December, possibly just before Christmas.

A Pre-Christmas visit appears sound for several reasons. It would allow the dust to settle after the debate on Chinese representation at the United Nations, which finds the United States pushing a two-China policy unacceptable to Peking.

It would allow time for detailed planning and — one of the president's prime considerations — minimize the in-

Cambodia Chief Now Dictator

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Prime Minister Lon Nol declared a state of emergency today and appointed a new government to rule by "ordinance" rather than by constitutional law. He said he no longer will "play the game of democracy and freedom" since it stands in the way of victory.

The prime minister, in a nationwide broadcast following a silent protest by Buddhists against Saturday's suspension of the national assembly, appealed for unity but coupled it with a veiled threat against dissenters.

"Recently, certain groups have launched acts aimed at creating confusion," he said. "There is a fifth column at work."

He said: "Should we vainly play the game of democracy and freedom which will lead us to complete defeat or should we curtail anarchic freedom in order to achieve victory? The government has made it's decision. We have selected the way that will bring us to victory."

Environment Study For Pipeline Plan

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Governor Wendell Anderson has directed the Minnesota natural resources department to begin an environmental review of plans for a Canadian-based gas pipeline.

Under state law, Robert Herbst, commissioner of natural resources, has to review the plans and a company cannot use condemnation powers to obtain right-of-way until the plans are approved.

The 1,500-mile line will be built by Dome Petroleum Corp., of Calgary and will extend from western Saskatchewan to Green Springs, Ohio.

Plans for the line were submitted to the department of natural resources last Thursday.

In a letter to Herbst, Anderson said representatives of the Canadian firm "appear sensitive to the necessity of public review of their plans."

The company plans to begin construction early next year, with costs estimated at more than $200 million. Additional state permits will be needed where the line crosses public waters in Minnesota.

IRA FLUSH-OUT ATTEMPT FOILED BY STUDENTS

BELFAST (Reuter) — Troops and police withdrew today from Queen's University in Belfast following a seven-hour seige to flush out an IRA official.

They moved away from the college just before daybreak after students refused to hand over Thomas MacGiolla, 45, political leader of the official wing of the Irish Republican Army.

The student barricades went up before midnight Tuesday night when detectives tried to arrest MacGiolla, who was addressing a meeting on the Common Market.

In other areas of Belfast, three explosions, within minutes of each other, damaged two shops and a government office near the British Army's headquarters at Lisburn on the outskirts of the city. One man was injured.

Four explosions also were reported in Londonderry during the night.

A policeman was shot in the leg at Dungannon, when he tried to stop the driver of a stolen car.

In London, government sources disclosed that British Army intelligence and Scotland Yard are investigating reports that West Germany, Belgian and American mercenaries are operating in Belfast.

A report from Belfast said bounties of up to $170 were being offered to hired assassins for every policeman or soldier killed in Ulster.

In another development, police of the Irish Republic began questioning 128 passengers from the liner Queen Elizabeth 2 after a cache of illegal arms and ammunition were found in suitcases in a Cork Harbor customs shed.

Trio Plucked From Lonely Beach

A man and woman and a seven-year-old boy were rescued Tuesday from an isolated beach on Langara Island in the Queen Charlottes after being stranded for 11 days.

Edward Besner, Ellen Lorraine and her son, James, all of Masset, had gone to the island in the 26-foot trawler Vernon Bay.

They were ashore, unloading supplies, when the boat broke up on the rocks.

They were taken in by a man who lives in a cabin at Sialun Bay but were unable to send a radio message until Tuesday.

The boat is owned by Billy Bowman of Prince Rupert. Rescue Co-ordination Centre officials were told by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Masset, who investigated the incident, that Bowman had either loaned or chartered the boat to Besner.

Jobs Plan 'Generous'

Money To Flow —Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal officials say the government intends to be generous and elastic in doling out $100 million for local community works projects designed to create jobs this winter.

The program is part of a $500 million acceleration of federal make-work and job-training plans announced by Finance Minister E. J. Benson in last week's mini-budget.

PLAN YOUR OWN

Officials are enthusiastic about the $100 million program for community works projects which are to grow from local initiatives. They liken it to last summer's $25 million Opportunities for Youth program in which young people dreamed up their own ideas and submitted projects for federal subsidy.

In this case, the initiative is being left to municipal governments to propose plans through their provincial authorities, and to public-spirited groups ranging from service clubs and community groups to propose their plans directly to the federal manpower department.

The over-all program breaks down this way:

—$160 million in loans for job-creating capital works projects to be undertaken quickly by the provinces and, through them, the municipalities.

—$113 million in mortgage lending by Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. for public housing, home-owner houses, student housing, sewage treatment plants, and housing project land assembly, originally earmarked for 1972 but now to be made before the end of 1971.

CREATE JOBS

—$100 million in grants for labor-intensive projects that will "create jobs without delay" for community improvements, half of the $100 million earmarked for municipal governments and half for voluntary community groups or private organizations.

—$90 million for federal public works, including $10 million for grants to exhibition authorities or similar bodies to build new multi-purpose exhibition buildings that might be used as community centres.

—$35 million in grants or tax relief for job training programs, including on-the-job training to be offered by employers preparing for expansion, with special emphasis given to unemployed young people.

A manpower official said applications for grants can be made to the department's regional offices in Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Community organizations and private groups should submit their requests for grants before Jan. 31, 1972, but they will be approved or rejected as rapidly as they are submitted before that.

TORIES ARRESTED AFTER PUNCH-UP

TORONTO (CP) — Three Progressive Conservative campaign workers in Dovercourt riding were arrested Tuesday following complaints that two New Democratic Party workers were beaten with stakes from election lawn posters.

Police, called by the NDP at a west-end Toronto neighborhood, said they found the two party workers injured and other NDP campaigners surrounding a van bearing posters supporting the Progressive Conservative candidate. Injured were Donald Muldoon and Gary Cristall, both 21.

Charged with assault causing bodily harm and possession of weapons dangerous to the public peace were Joseph Bellissimo, 34, and Vincenzo Orlando, 32, both of Toronto. Joseph Garisto, 38, of Toronto, was charged with common assault.

Canada-Russia Sign Accord

Times News Service

OTTAWA — Soviet Premier Kosygin and Canadian Prime Minister Trudeu today signed a joint scientific and cultural exchange agreement following a stinging attack by the Soviet leader on U.S. economic policies.

The two leaders put their signatures to the agreement which was negotiated over the last few years. The ceremony took place in the chamber of the standing committee on external affairs and national defence.

Kosygin earlier had confronted questioning from Canadian parliamentarians in the same room on international affairs. He caused a furore i nthe diplomatic community following a speech Tuesday which attacked the U.S. economy as war-oriented and disruptive of international trade.

NO COMMENT

The U.S. embassy declined to comment on the attack, but diplomatic sources said the text of his remarks was under close scrutiny in Washington.

At the signing, Trudeau, with an oversized red rose in his lapel, offered Kosygin a glass of champagne and toasted the signing of the pact.

"To many more," Kosygin replied.

The two sides issued a communique which said in part: "The Canadian government and the government of the USSR are of the view that cooperation in expanding their exchanges will promote the development of good relations and will broaden mutual understanding."

STABLE SYSTEM

Earlier, Kosygin called for international trade to be based on a "stable system of foreign exchange rates" and in a veiled but stinging attack on the United States denounced "economic miscalculations of others."

Kosygin discussed the U.S. 10 per cvent import surtax and

Brandt Wins Peace Prize

The 57-year-old head of the Bonn government receives about $88,000 from funds endowed by Alfred Nobel, the inventor of dynamite. The peace prize is awarded annually by the Norwegian parliament.

Danish socialists and fellow German Social Democrats had recommended Brandt for the prize, saying his efforts to improve his country's relations with East Europe were the most important initiative for relaxation of tension in the last decade.

Brandt signed non-aggression treaties this year with Poland and the Soviet Union. While the treaties have yet to be ratified, their signing improved the East-West climate and made possible a tentative four-power agreement on Berlin.

Clearwater Gets Its Hospital

In a letter to the Thomson-Nicola regional hospital district Loffmark said initial construction will provide a diagnostic and treatment centre which will be expanded later to include kitchen facilities and hospital beds. Clearwater residents have fought for two years for a hospital.

Loffmark's letter states additional cost of the kitchen facilities and beds will be $200,000. He gave no estimate of total hospital costs.

Loffmark said his action followed discussions with Clearwater residents who were united in pushing for a hospital.

"What the Clearwater and district residents want and must have is a hospital which will provide facilities where a doctor can function effectively and bring good medical care to the residents of the valley. This is a reasonable request and it will be met," Loffmark said.

Canada Fares Best

ZURICH (AP) — Britain is leading the inflation stakes among the world's industrialized nations with a cost-of-living rise of 10.1 per cent during the 12 months ending in September, a Swiss bank survey says. Canada fared best.

The Swiss Credit Bank figures put Holland after Britain with a rise of 7.6 per cent followed by Japan seven per cent, Switzerland 6.7 and West Germany 5.4.

MILITARY COLLEGES, CADETS TO EXPAND—MACDONALD

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Donald Macdonald said Tuesday he will try to build up cadet forces and military colleges in Canada — contrary to recommendations on government youth policy.

A government-appointed committee on youth recommended last summer that cadet military training be dropped. Michael Forrestall (PC—Dartmouth-Halifax East) asked for the minister's reaction.

"I can confirm statements that I made outside the House . . . that the recommendation of the committee on youth in this regard will not be accepted," Macdonald said.

"Quite the contrary — we will try to find all possible resources to further assist the cadet groups."

He added that "exactly the same answer" applied to a question about the future of military colleges.

Economic, scientific and technical exchanges can be developed between Canada and the Soviet Union "with regard for the international division of labor and the position which both countries occupy correspondingly in world systems," Mr. Kosygin said.

SAYS TRADE MUST GROW

"At the same time, bot the Soviet Union and Canada, like any other nation engaged in international trade, are naturally concerned that this trade should be on a stable footing and that it should expand as the economies of the countries involved grow.

"This means of course that it must be based on a stable system of foreign exchange rates, on a system which does not compel some countries to pay for it by slowing down their economic development, by curtailing their commercial operations, by increasing unemployment on account of the economic miscalculations of others.

"This is all the more unacceptable when these miscalculations are not due to chance circumstances, but are in fact rendered inevitable by the pursuit of policies creating focuses of tension and conflict in various parts of the world.

"Those who pursue such policies still maintain that an end to the arms race and limitation of military expenditure will create even greater difficulties for the economies of the Western countries.

"But to accept this argument is to accept the fatal inevitability of unceasing growth of military expenditure and arms production in the world and, hence, the constantly growing danger of war."

The times of colonial usurpations are past, he said, adding a tribute to what he called the heroic epic of the Vietnamese people and "the struggle for freedom and independence waged by patriots of other countries of Indochina."

He also commended the struggle of Arab peoples "for the liberation of Arab territories occupied by Israel."

For a change, no protest placards or shouting demonstrators were visible as Kosygin began his rounds today.

He was preceded, surrounded and followed by several dozen security personnel as he left his hotel, five minutes late, for a meeting in the Parliament Building with the Commons external affairs committee.

He was whisked from one place to another so fast that one woman bystander told a friend "he just got out of the car and all we saw was the bald spot on the back of his head."

Tuesday night the premier was hustled into the National Arts Centre through a subterranean entrance as RCMP decoyed yelling Maoists at the main entrance.

An expectant hush was followed by standing applause as Trudeau and Kosygin arrived.

All smiles, they clapped back from their first-balcony box near the stage. Mrs. Trudeau and the premier's daughter, Mrs. Lyudmilla Gvishiani, joined in.

Moments later, everyone stood silent for the Soviet and Canadian anthems — except a man near the stage who remained seated for the Soviet anthem, but stood for O Canada.

While the concert was in progress, plain-clothes security men ringed the hall, uniformed RCMP kept watch outside and faces could be seen peeping down from a ceiling catwalk.

terim period and with it the things that can go wrong.

An agenda may prove more difficult, for each side may try to include issues which the other finds unacceptable. For example it is doubtful that the Chinese will want to give hte appearance of negotiating with the Americans on Vietnam, an issue they have always said is for the Vietnamese to settle. For their part the Americans may balk at discussing their military presence in South Korea and Japan, which the Chinese want ended.

Security is a topic which gives rise to endless speculation on the Peking cocktail party circuit. On the face of it it should present few problems, since the kinds of people who present an ever-present threat in the west — demonstrators, would-be assassins and others — are simply not a problem in China.

But is this a point of view which will win ready acceptance with Robert Taylor, chief of the president's secret service detail and a member of the Kissinger party, who is notoriously hawkish about protection?

Taylor will not be alone in his dilemma. In the past much has been made of the importance of the president keeping in direct touch with the Pentagon while abroad — there is talk of a little black box, capable of transmitting the president's order to launch a nuclear strike — so observers here will be fascinated to see how Briggen Albert Redman, chief of the White house communications agency, handles the problem.

PUBLICITY?

And what of the press? Although Kissinger is coming without reporters it is inconceivable that the president would forego coverage at home. Kissinger may have been closer to the mark than he thought when he told a Washington press conference recently that the Chinese have never encountered anything like a presidential press party (upwards of 150 is common) so there may be some hard bargaining on the number of newsmen to be admitted.

And then there is the question of television. Chinese TV, for all its merits, is hardly equipped to meet the requirements of American-style coverage, live by satellite, in color, so there will likely be some tricky negotiation on the question of the U.S. networks establishing temporary transmitting facilities.

TACT NEEDED

All in all it is an assignment which demands all the tact and discretion the Americans can muster. So it seems safe to predict that they will be doing their utmost to deny the Chinese any new evidence to back the accusation made in one of the chairman's quotations, currently on display across the street from the great hall.

United States imperialists, says the chairman, are the kind of people who barge around the world subjecting others to "aggression, control, interference and bullying." It doesn't sound a bit like the quiet bespectacled professor who will be leading the most important American mission to China in a generation.

Tougher Fire Regulations Urged by Death Probe

Tougher fire regulations and rigid enforcement of them by fire departments were recommended Tuesday by a coroner's jury investigating the death of a 92-year-old woman in a fire where the alarm system was inadequate.

The jury found that the woman, Mary Green, of 830 McClure, died accidentally in a fire that swept her lodging house home Sept. 24. The recommendations and findings will be sent to the attorney-General's department.

Mrs. Green died in the second-floor hallway of the 45-year-old building. Evidence was that she suffered asphyxiation and burns to 95 per cent of her body.

Victoria fire department Insp. Alexander Satchwell testified that department records showed the building's alarm system was "non-conforming."

The method of activating it, by a light switch, Satchwell said, "was not a proper, easily discernible system."

"I felt that the alarm system was inadequate for the residence and the stairwell contributed to the high conflagration rate of the dwelling."

He said records revealed that the fire alarm system had a history of malfunctioning.

The cause of the fire, the inspector said, was a heating pad in the room rented by Frank O'Leary on the floor below that of Mrs. Green.

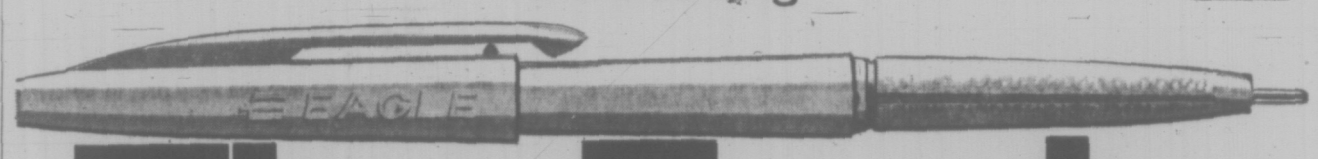
All 19¢ pens are no longer created equal.

Introducing



The Eagle

From Eagle/North-Rite. And with our reputation for quality products, there's no way we'd bring out an ordinary pen. Not even for 19¢.

If you've written with 19¢ pens before, good. Now try the Eagle. It's so smooth, it virtually glides on paper.

More good news: it writes up to 50% longer than its best-known 19¢ competitor. By test. And down to the last bit of ink, it won't skip or blob. We put our most expensive ink in the Eagle. It's non-goop and ultra-smooth flowing. Because we didn't skimp, the Eagle performs like an expensive pen — instantly. What's more, we hand-test every Eagle pen to make sure its performance is perfect.

Most 19¢ pens look simply like sticks that write. We wouldn't settle for that kind of styling.

The Eagle has a solid-fitting cap with a secure lock-grip. There's a textured comfort-grip to help you write your best, plus a dependable clip that holds the Eagle securely in your pocket.

There are 4 new Eagle pens. Try your hand at them all.

19¢

25¢

Eagle DELUXE Medium. Has a strong stainless steel point and a smart metal clip. Writes twice as long as our 19¢ Eagle. (For an extra 10¢ that's a lot of extra writing.)
29¢

Eagle DELUXE Fine. The fine-point companion to the 29¢ Eagle DELUXE.

Did Love Turn Sour For the Honeymooner?

By DONNA CLEMENTS
Times Staff

HONEYMOON BAY — The Dear John letter may have gone astray. It could be the early settler changed his mind when he saw his English bride-to-be.

Whatever the reason, the honeymoon for which this Cowichan Valley community was named never happened — at least here.

It was the wife of Henry March, who once owned 600 acres in the area, who gave the bay its name in the late 1890s.

Their son, Charlie, who inherited the land when his father died in 1949 explained how it happened:

★ ★ ★

"The name came after my mother was teasing this homesteader, who was returning to England to marry, about bringing his new bride to spend their honeymoon in the bay," said March. "This was around 1895. Although the homesteader never returned, the name Honeymoon stuck."

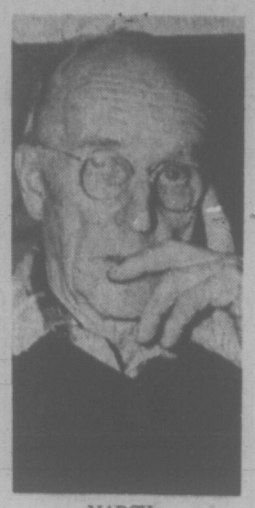
When Edith March named it Honeymoon Bay it boasted about 15 homesteaders living in the vicinity who had come here from England, Scotland and Ireland.

The March family's roots first began to grow in Honeymoon Bay when March, who hailed from Rochdale in Lancashire, Eng., took up a homestead in 1887. The Marchs' had two sons Charlie and John. John was killed in a logging accident in 1924.



MARCH
. . . the name stuck

Since he inherited the property, Charlie March, now 72 and a lifelong resident of the bay, has sold 360 acres to Western Forest Industries and 150 acres to three local businessmen to construct a golf course, now the March Meadows Golf and Country Club.

He plans to keep the remaining land which borders the lake.

As a youth March can recall the population of the bay being between three to four hundred. The current population is about 400.

"When I was young the population was mainly made up of loggers living in camps," recalled March. "Now the community is made up mainly of families whose men are employed in WFI's mill and logging operations here."

March said when his father first started farming he had to clear his land. Although it was a combined farming operation, the family concentrated mainly on the dairy side until 22 years ago when Charlie March switched to beef cattle.

★ ★ ★

March retired from farming two years ago and, although he is busier than ever caring for the 11 cottages he rents out and his public utility called the Honeymoon Bay Water Works, which supplies water to over 30 homes, he said he finds he is bored for the first time in his life. His wife died just over a year ago.

What March misses most from the "good old days" is the excellent fishing and hunting he enjoyed in the bay.

March noted that although the Cowichan Lake area is well known for these sports that there is no comparison to what he used to enjoy.

"Now if you go out hunting you nearly always bump into someone around every tree. Before I could go out for a week and never never see anyone."

Plebiscite on Malaspina Said Justified, Overdue

DUNCAN — Cowichan School Board chairman Dave Haywood said today the proposed plebiscite asking residents if they wish to continue to participate in the Malaspina Regional College is "an excellent opportunity for the people to express an opinion that is long overdue."

He does not agree with statements made Tuesday by college chairman Dr. Roy MacMillan charging that the board's decision to hold a plebiscite is a "calculated stab in the back."

Cowichan trustees agreed Monday to hold the plebiscite with the December elections because they feel concerned "with the steadily increasing burden the property owner is being asked to carry."

Trustees explained that the initial three-year operation of the college in temporary facilities will expire in 1972 and taxpayers will then be faced with a capital construction referendum.

They want to know how Cowichan school district taxpayers feel about participating in the college before they make a decision on whether to support the holding of a referendum.

MacMillan termed Cowichan's move as a deliberate attempt to sabotage the college, as well as to deprive Duncan ratepayers of the benefits of remaining in the College region.

"It would be only a costly straw vote, a public opinion poll, which could serve no purpose in that a binding contract already exists," he noted. "The Duncan Board cannot opt out of a legal contract."

MacMillan also called the timing of the Duncan announcement "vindictive" because he feels it can't help but effect the current attempt by a group of Port Alberni citizens to bring that district into full participation with Malaspina college.

Haywood contended this morning that "the plebiscite will probably only benefit the college."

He said that ever since a plebiscite was held in 1967 asking school districts if they agreed with a college concept there has been confusion.

"Many people expected a second vote to be held right after requesting the expenditure of funds," Haywood said.

"Once and for all we will be able to establish Cowichan's position in the college and we can get off the fence," he said.

SPLIT PROTEST

Cowichan pulled out of the project in May, 1970, because they do not agree with the cost-sharing agreement. Six months later they returned after the participating boards agreed to re-negotiate. Cowichan feels the meetings have been "unsuccessful."

Haywood said that Cowichan's share — raised by local dollars alone — in Malaspina's 1971 operating budget is $165,000. With 86 full-time students from Cowichan attending, this makes the cost contributed by local taxpayers $1,920 per student.

Cowichan school district's operating costs for 1971 are $2,990,205. With 6,200 students attending the schools this makes the cost $482 per student.

"These amounts are all monies paid by the local taxpayers, they do not include monies paid by the government," Haywood pointed out. "I feel we are contributing far too much to Malaspina college."

Haywood said he disagrees with MacMillan's charge that the plebiscite will be costly to taxpayers because it is being held along with the civic elections. "The only cost will be the making up of the ballots and that will be minimal."

"At no time did we say that the proposed plebiscite would have any legal status," Haywood stressed. "We are only asking for an expression of opinion from the people to guide the board in future relationships with the college."

Curtis Deplores Apathy On Gorge Development

Public apathy towards development of the Gorge waterway was deplored Tuesday night by Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis.

Addressing about 40 members of the Portage Inlet and Gorge Waterway Society at the annual meeting, Curtis said the small attendance was "symptomatic of the problem facing your society and all other organizations trying to improve the area — we simply can't get people interested."

He said he had taken many aldermen, civic leaders, real estate board members and other officials up the waterway to try to show what had been accomplished and what was planned for the area.

"They went away terribly enthusiastic and stayed away," he added.

Curtis suggested the society should try to boost its membership not only from the Gorge area but from all over Greater Victoria.

Saanich design engineer Frank Neate told members the biggest cause of pollution in the gorge is raw sewage discharged by Victoria. But he said once the city and the B.C. government agree on methods of sewage treatment the area could be cleaned up within five years to the point where people could safely swim there.

Neate is the author of the Gorge Waterway report which outlines recommendations for improvement and restoration of the waterway.

In the elections which followed the round table discussion there was some difficulty in finding members to stand as directors. Only seven were elected, all by acclamation, compared with 13 last year.

Log Salvage Closure

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Forest Service Tuesday announced a 10-day log salvage closure in all waters adjacent to Qualicum Beach, Parksville, Northwest Bay and Ballenas Channel.

The closure is to allow owners to recover logs scattered by rough weather.

TRUCE CALL

So Let's Hear It For Our Girls

jack scott

At first glance — namely in Wendy Dey's entertaining review of it—I was prepared to welcome Germaine Greer's new treatise, "The Female Eunuch," as a respite in The Battle of the Sexes. But then I began dipping into the book, itself, and it seems to me just another invitation to one more back-biting, meaningless skirmish in that old, cold war.

I don't happen to believe in the popular generalization, the war cry of the women liberationists, that the trouble with women is men. But I won't believe, either, as Miss Greer would have it, that the trouble with women is women. To carry it a step further, I believe that we're all our own worst enemies, male or female, as individuals, and it's time we declared a sexual truce.

This, it seems to me, would be the best time ever to re-issue a little-known book by the late Betty MacDonald whose best-seller was "The Egg and I."

Her more obscure, more important work was titled, "Anybody Can Do Anything." If I were a young man or woman I'd seek my inspiration in that positive philosophy and start thinking of males and females as allies rather than combatants.

Miss Greer's book, like so many of those others that have emerged on this subject, dating clear back to the days of Emmeline Pankhurst, deals with stereotypes, not people. She props up cardboard cut-outs, labelled "Man" or "Woman" and invites the reader to identify with one and knock down the other. Thus the whole book is yet anther rationalization calculated to widen, rather than narrow, the schism. It's a new viewpoint, especially coming from within their ranks, that women must accept the blame for any real or imagined inequality in today's society, but it is still a kind of academic, prejudicial jousting and I say the hell with it.

This stereotyping is no more evident than it is in Miss Greer's bitchy assessment of the roles of mother and wife and as the son of one and the husband of another I find it moderately infuriating. To define marriage, for instance, as an employer-employee relationship in which women are exploitable, is simply a dodge to sell books and by no means a truism of matrimony.

Miss Greer writes of women to whom the producing and raising of children becomes an "obsessive interest" and decides that child-bearing was never intended by biology as a time-consuming, self-conscious compensation for neglecting all other forms of fulfilment and achievement. She writes of the housewife whose mind is blunted and circumscribed and comes to "the dawning realization that a housewife's work has no results; it simply has to be done again."

★ ★ ★

As an illustration of how hateful women can be to other women this is a classic. Sure, there are slob women, just as there are slob men, but looking about at the wives and mothers I know I can't think of a single one so "obsessed" with bringing up children that it excludes all other interests. I can't think of a single one whose mind is "blunted and circumscribed" by the demands of housework. It can be demanding and tiresome, I know, but when Miss Greer says it has no results, that it simply has to be done again, she might be speaking of almost any kind of work, man's or women's. What else is a newspaperman's work, for example, but doing again what he did yesterday?

It all makes me wonder if I shouldn't be hard at work myself—and it would have to be man's work—on a book in praise of women's role and in praise of the way nine out of ten of them handle it.

When you come right down to it the job of "homemaker," either as wife or mother or both, must surely be the most challenging, the most demanding, the most rewarding, the most meaningful of all life's pursuits. That it is the least appreciated, as well, just makes it that more ennobling.

To Germaine Greer and to our Wendy Dey housework is "just a drag." For myself, having watched two women managing it proudly and serenely all the years of my life, I am convinced it is an art and a science. The making of a home "a drag"? The shaping and forming of children's characters and values "a drag"? The complementing of a partner's contribution "a drag"? Why, it is the one continuing function that all of society is built upon.

I think of the years when I was a correspondent in Latin America and in Europe, constantly on the move with a wife and three daughters, and the uncanny ability of that woman to create the environment of a home, the continuity of family life, against incredible odds. Yet these were just the extension of skills and management that are less dramatically demonstrated every day of the year in millions of suburban homes.

That it does occasionally prove so time-consuming and burdensome to women that their interests may be narrowed is inevitable, but it is my observation that just as many men whose jobs are demanding and fatiguing have exactly the same problem. The remarkable thing, really, is that women are increasingly able to widen their horizons culturally and intellectually, yet still find satisfaction and accomplishment in the home-maker role.

Certainly the stereotyping becomes ludicruous when Miss Greer elects to define marriage as an "employer-employee" relationship. When I think of the men I know who are guided by the instinct, wisdom, and imagination of the women they married, who'd have been lost without it, it seems to me that it is the truest of all partnerships, the perfect contract of give and take.

Women, as Miss Greer would have it, "owe their current sorry lot to the fact that that's what they are — a sorry lot." Sorry lot, indeed! They're magnificent.

A COUNTER-ATTACK has been launched at Work Point Barracks by the 700-strong 3rd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. Beginning last Thursday, each officer and man of the battalion will undergo a course in preventive dentistry, first learning how to properly use a tooth brush and working up, in order, to the dentist's chair position. Today's assault force was understandably reluctant to show off their "pearlies" on parade as they began operations, led by Lt.-Col. D. H. Protherde and Master WO S. E. Robertson of the base dental office.

POLLEN LIKELY IN MAYOR'S RACE

Ald. Peter Pollen's candidacy for mayor appears certain following a statement today that he will announce his intentions next week.

Pollen refused to commit himself at this stage but said he is "seriously considering" running.

Mayor Courtney Haddock is seeking a second two-year term. Saanich Ald. Foster Isherwood has also declared his candidacy, as has "lighthouse philosopher" Bill Scott.

Pollen had earlier denied an intention to run, and even gone as far as to publicly urge Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis and school board chairman Allan McKinnon to seek the position.

He said today, however, there has been considerable pressure on him to run for mayor.

8.91% Pay Raise Devastating: Trustee

A decision to increase Vancouver teachers' pay by 8.91 per cent will have a devastating effect throughout the province, a Victoria trustee predicted today.

Greater Victoria trustee Peter Bunn said the decision of Vancouver school board Tuesday coupled with the recently announced two per cent reduction in expenditures of large school districts, will be "very serious indeed" for the local educational scene.

He was referring to a statement earlier this month by Education Minister Donald Brothers that in 1972 school districts with budgets in excess of $3 million will be allowed to spend 108 per cent of the "basic education program" determined for those districts, instead of the .110 per cent coverage allowed in the past.

Bunn noted that if the Greater Victoria school board is faced with the same salary increase commitment as Vancouver the budget increase will not even cover the higher salary figure.

"In any case," he said, "I take it this 8.91 per cent is just a raw, basic increase. One would have to take into account also any fringe benefits that might accure in the final agreement, and this could easily push the actual increase to 11 per cent on the payroll."

He charged that the trustees of the province are to blame for the present situation because of their failure to agree to a provincial scale for teachers' salaries.

OVERSHADOWS ALL

"If they had we would not be putting up with this nonsense. But so many of the boards revere this thing called autonomy. Unfortunately there is always one board that gives way and the rest follow suit."

Greater Victoria school board chairman Allan McKinnon said the seriousness of the situation can hardly be over-emphasized.

"It is of such concern to us that it overshadows everything else we have to think about over the next few months," he said.

McKinnon said on the basis of the revised finance formula the board's operating expenses come to $1.1 million, but if the pattern of the Vancouver wage settlement is followed the board will have to find $1.5 million.

"That leaves us with $400,000 to find from somewhere and no possibility of doing so on the budget we are allowed by the provincial government.

"Among the things that would have to go are the teachers themselves — there is just no other way," McKinnon added.

Sooke school trustee R. J. Anderson, who is in charge of salary negotiations for the board, declined comment on the Vancouver school board decision until after a meeting with teachers scheduled for next week.

He did say, however, that if Vancouver is committed to an increase "of that magnitude" this would have no automatic binding effect on local negotiations.

BASED ON AVERAGE

Vancouver school board chairman Fritz Bowers said the wage increase formula is based mainly on the average increase won by Vancouver workers this year. This is nine per cent, a much larger jump than was anticipated last year when the formula agreement was made.

The average teacher's salary in Vancouver is now $11,000. The increase would add about $3 million to the city's current $30 million teacher salary costs.

'Sit and Listen' Forest Men Told

Executives of the Canadian forest industry were told today they should "sit still and listen" to environmental groups who criticize some industry practices.

W. D. Moore, managing director of the W. D. Moore Logging Co., Winter Harbor, B.C., was speaking to the annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Forestry in Victoria.

Moore said he believes that many of the so-called environment preservation programs advertised widely by forest product companies "are not simply environmental but are programs that bring about a more economical product."

SEEN THEM ALL

"The forest industry has played host not only to the solid business firm but has seen the gamblers, the quick-buck artists and the swindlers," Moore added.

He said there has been "too much short-signted economics and not enough long-term forestry" in the industry.

Moore accused both management and unions of the industry letting old prejudices get in the way of real bargaining and discussions to prevent accidents and wasting money.

"The defensive attitudes of those in power — be it government of management — with the new voices of the environmental culture is not conducive to the proper atmosphere of really solving problems."

Moore told the meeting that "no one is infallible" so "why can't some of the policies of some forestry firms or forestry agencies or government be wrong once in a while ... may I suggest the growth of thicker skins for leaders — and the regrowth of the old fashioned ability to sit still and listen."

Moore said there must be a Spec, there must be a Sierra Club — and there must be an opposition. And that opposition must be respected and be listened to."

"The sad story is that so many firms are so defensive about pollution control they will not even listen to their own people ..."

Q: Is it possible to purchase Sea Monkey Growth Food on the West Coast, to avoid having to send to New York for it? — B.E.

A: It seems the answer is no. Local retailers of health food products don't appear to have heard of this particular brand, and a major Vancouver importer said it isn't in his stock range.

Highrises Mean High Tax, Expert Says

Traffic, Other Problems Would Result

Highrise construction on Victoria's waterfront means the public will be forced to pay higher costs for relieving resultant traffic congestion and related problems, an urban planning expert said today.

Prof. Leonard K. Eaton, of the University of Michigan's department of architecture, was here to open a showing of the architecture of Samuel Maclure at the Greater Victoria Art Gallery.

It's not going to do you any good to have highrises along the waterfront," Eaton said. "You will have to spend money to relieve downtown traffic congestion arising from the high density projects, plus construct additional parking facilities."

Eaton said taxpayers invariably have to pay the costs to solve these problems.

Eaton, who has wide experience in urban development and planning, praised the design of Centennial Square.

"I was so impressed that I wrote an article on it for the Journal of American Institute of Architecture," he said.

But he expressed the hope that something would be done to preserve a "string of Chinese buildings" in downtown Victoria.

"They are excellent," he said, "But I realize their preservation poses a problem as most Chinese Canadians today live outside Chinatown."

Eaton also suggested the preservation of some of Victoria's residential dirtricts, such as the St. Charles and Rockland areas. Many of Maclure's homes are in this district.

He said some U.S. cities, such as Charleston, South Carolina, had done this by zoning certain areas as historic districts.

The architect is also appalled at the damage superhighways are doing to urban and rural districts.

"I was glad they stopped the Spadina express highway in Toronto," he said.

"It's about time the engineer is checked," he said. "In the past he has had all the say."

Eaton says Victoria is still a pleasant place in which to live, but he warns this may not always be so if nothing is done to protect and preserve its amenities.

"It may have more open spaces than other cities," he said. But this does not mean that it has enough and should not have more."

Ship's Engineer Fined $1,000 For Fouling Harbor With Oil

The second engineer of a Liberian cruise ship was fined $1,000 in Victoria provincial court today for pumping an oily mixture into the Inner Harbor where his ship was berthed Oct. 6.

Neil D. Clarke of the ship West Star pleaded guilty to contravening the federal oil pollution prevention regulations. Maximum fine is $5,000.

Robert Baird, Department of Transport steamship inspector, testified that he received a complaint Oct. 7 from the Undersea Gardens.

Baird said he traced the slick to the West Star and spoke to Clarke, the senior engineer on board at the time.

The accused admitted pumping the bilges into the harbor from 8:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. the night before.

The inspector said he suggested the ship take such mixtures away in a tanker truck and this was done later.

The ship's company also hired a firm to clean up the oil in the harbor.

He estimated the slick to be 800 feet by 70 feet.

Baird said there was a strong smell of diesel oil from the slick and divers from Undersea Gardens had to swim around it.

Judge William Ostler said the offence was one of "utmost gravity" as the Inner Harbor was "an area well known to persons aboard" the West Star.

THE FREEDOM FIGHTER engaged in guerrilla struggle on his invaded native soil commands my admiration. But the dissident national who leaves his birthland to find political asylum in Canada is not in the same position. As an immigrant, we can reasonably expect that he won't embarrass his adopted country by roughing up her guests. When he does so, as a young Hungarian did in Ottawa on Monday, he becomes a damned nuisance.

I don't think we can afford to have Canada used as a staging-ground for the hates of Europe. We have enough domestic discords of our own to settle, and a way to make for ourselves in a world that obviously does not intend to pamper us.

If you find this view pragmatic and even harsh, I'm sorry. But it becomes dismayingly plain that the golden future so glibly prophesied by politicians of a more innocent era isn't going to fall into our hands like a ripe plum from a tree.

We need friends. It isn't necessary that we approve their ideologies, or subscribe to their operating methods. But we must establish good business relationships where we can, because without them we could be deep in trouble.

The United States, hitherto our best customer, hasn't seen fit to exempt Canada from its 10 per cent surcharge on imports. That dropping of preferential treatment by our neighbor is going to hurt.

We may, in fact, be required to stand on our own national feet much more solidly than we have ever been forced to do before.

With these thoughts in mind, I find it hard to dispense sunshine, and harder still to maintain patience with self-appointed spokesmen for this or that race or religion who seem bent on turning the Kosygin tour of Canada into a saturnalia of loudmouthed protest.

Premier Kosygin came among us as the representative of a world power with which Canada has initiated industrial exchanges. Part of his errand is to talk about trade — a subject of extreme importance to Canadians.

That fact apart, Canada and Russia are on diplomatic terms. Each can be counted upon for hard bargaining, but to the best of my knowledge, there is no present quarrel between that country and ours.

This being so, I wish most heartily that we could be spared the troublemaking of those whose Canadianism runs much thinner than their desire to grind some other nation's axe.

No use to blame our immigration policies, either. With the possible exception of the Canadian Indian — and even he may be only the first-comer — we are all of immigrant stock. That's good. It makes for national vigor.

Nor is there any harm in honest pride in racial extraction, as long as it isn't permitted to stand in the way of a more vital consideration.

This is that we be Canadians, and that nothing in the way of racial baggage brought with us in the crossing takes precedence over being or becoming Canadian.

We haven't got as far as we should have with that endeavor. We'll be getting somewhere with it when we quit talking about "founding races" and "ethnic rights," and concentrate upon matters more vital to our progress.

In this I disagree most vehemently with Ottawa's recently-announced intention to make grants to ethnic groups for the preservation of their race cultures.

What's worth keeping will be preserved without any such self-conscious nonsense, as it has been from one generation to the next. It will help flavor the rich and wonderful Canadian melting-pot which has scarce begun to simmer as yet.

What we can't tolerate in our progress toward adult nationhood is to be lumbered up with imported hatreds of the sort visited on a guest of Canada this week. We have no place for them, and we should have none for any newcomer who persistently deals in them.
